Woodstock OKs Trespass Law; Buys Dump

By LYNN MULVANEY

Woodstock — a happy haven for "hippies", clamped down on this segment of its colorful community last night by imposing a new law which will prohibit such things as sleeping in cars, breaking in homes and trespassing in general.

The measure passed unanimously but not without incident.

At the public hearing that preceded the vote, a spirited discussion on the rights of the hippies and the rights of the property owners brought forth angry concern from all sides.

Another controversial issue also reached a climax last night when the town board also agreed unanimously to purchase the Cashdollar dump property for use as a landfill operation.

The purchase of the $29,000, 88-acre dump on West Saugerties Road was previously delayed due to strong opposition to the proposal presented by members of the Democratic party at a public hearing.

The town board studied the matter further, heard a report of the engineering firm of Brinnier and Larios last night advocating the purchase and then passed the measure.

The new trespassing ordinance allows for the arrest of a trespasser without the previously required written consent of the owner. Persons other than the property owner would be able to make verbal complaints and persons found trespassing on property while the owner was away could be apprehended without delay or red tape.

"We have considered a trespassing law for a long time because we have been trespassed against," stated a man who was among those who previously urged the board to take action.

"Maybe I like hippies," countered another man. "The law would be telling me they will prosecute MY trespassers when I may not want them to. Possibly it would violating my civil rights."

The proposed law, which is patterned after one employed at Lake George, states in part that anyone who enters into or remains on any lot or land without the authority of the owner is liable to prosecution. The law states further that vehicles or structures on another's property may be removed.

The penalty would be a $50 fine or 30 days in jail or both.

The big bone of contention seemed to be whether or not the property owner's rights would be violated should the police arrest someone on his property on the complaint of a neighbor or anyone other than himself? "Can the police assume people do not have the permission to be on property?, a woman asked.

"The difference is", Supervisor Milton Houst replied," that the complaint can be made verbally. It does not have to be written."

Several persons asked if a tired truck driver found sleeping in his vehicle or a hunter on non-posted land could be prosecuted under the new law?

Houst replied they could but cautioned that prosecution would depend upon "intent". He said he thought the local constabulary was lenient and educated enough not to arrest a person under such circumstances.

Several women complained about "hippies" having entered or broken into homes during the winter. "The trouble is discovered when the owners return in the spring and find their homes were lived-in and ransacked." Then it is too late to do anything about the trespassers, she concluded.

"I do not want people on my property that have not been invited," added another angry woman.

"Let's clean up this town,

Blast Red Wave

By JACK WALSH

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. paratroopers leveled heavy artillery into a human wave of North Vietnamese troops and blasted the Communist lines apart, killing 131 Reds and routing the attack on their outpost near Saigon, military spokesmen said today.

The paratroopers lost four dead and 48 wounded Tuesday in point-blank fighting that brought them revenge upon a North Vietnamese unit that had killed 37 of their men and wounded 27 in fighting nine days ago.

366 Killed in Week

Tuesday's battle occurred at a U.S. 25th Division fire support base 40 miles northwest of Saigon, where allied troops have reported killing 366 Communists this week in sweeps designed to crush potential Red buildups for a nationwide third offensive.

Reds Charge Outpost

The spokesmen said 200 North Vietnamese charged six deep from two separate directions at the outpost in an attack so fierce the paratroopers had to bring down the barrels of long-range artillery and fire directly into the attackers.

In another battle five miles farther north in Tay Ninh province Tuesday, 245th Division Infantrymen reported killing 11 Communists while suffering one killed and 22 wounded.

U.S. fighter-bombers flew 125 missions into North Vietnam and pilots reported damaging or destroying 81 supply boats, 16 trucks and 50 sections of highway. No American planes were reported lost.

Other U.S. troops Tuesday discovered the fifth largest Communist munitions cache in the Saigon area since Sunday. It included thousands of bullets, a long-range rocket and high explosives found near Tan Son Nhut Airbase, and was added to more than 50 tons of ammo captured earlier this week.

U.S. Marine Brig. Gen. William Chip, 49, suffered a fractured spine when his field command helicopter crashed Tuesday of unknown causes near the Demilitarized Zone between the two Vietnams as he directed his troops in battle.

Chip, deputy commander of the 3rd Marine Division, was reported in satisfactory condition today. He narrowly escaped becoming the fifth American and sixth allied general to die in Vietnam. U.S. Army Maj. Gen. Keith L. Ware was killed in a similar helicopter crash during Cambodian border fighting last week.

Chip was directing Marine forces in action 21 miles west of Dong Ha in the northwest sector.

U.S. B52 bombers today flew their second raid in two days across the DMZ to pound targets in North Vietnam's southern panhandle. The raids broke a month's moratorium on B52 flights into the north.

Other B52 strikes Tuesday and early today laid more than two million pounds of bombs on suspected Communist positions in the Central Highlands, the Mekong Delta and infiltration routes around Saigon.

Violence Try Doomed, Vance Tells N. Viet

PARIS (UPI)—The United States told North Vietnam today its attempts to "terrorize and coerce the South Vietnamese people" into accepting Communism were foredoomed to failure.

Vance accused Hanoi of attempting to picture the National Liberation Front (NFL) as the only legal representative of the South Vietnamese population.

"The reality is that the government of North Vietnam in seeking to impose its control by force on the people of South Vietnam was carrying out a campaign of violence.

"You have tried to terrorize and coerce the South Vietnamese people into accepting your political system," the U.S. delegate said at today's 22nd negotiating session of the drawn-out talks.

Vance warned Thuy that efforts by North Vietnam's Lao Dong (Communist) party to ram the flood of Vietnamese nationalism with force will fail.

He told the Hanoi delegation that the best proof of the South Vietnamese people's opposition to Communism was their "courageous and brave" resistance.

Vance again urged Hanoi to reduce the level of violence, bring the war to an end and open talks on the withdrawal of all foreign forces from the south.

He said that Washington was prepared to stop all remaining bombing of the North if Hanoi shows its readiness "to join with us in deescalating the fighting and moving seriously towards peace."

Vance said he will clearly show to the chief North Vietnamese negotiator, Xuan Thuy, that according to the historic record the "NLF was created in Hanoi, is controlled by Hanoi and is directed by Hanoi and that it seeks to impose its will on the people of South Vietnam by force and violence."

Vance said he was not prepared to comment on a declaration Monday by visiting U.S. Secretary General Thant that American should immediately stop the bombing of North Vietnam.

"Mr. Thant knows our position," Vance said. He said that position was that an end to U.S. bombing can come only in exchange for a deescalation on the part of the North Vietnamese.

Vance represented the United States as chief negotiator in the absence of delegation chief W. Averell Harriman, who was in the United States on family business and for consultations with the Johnson administration.

HHH Pins 'Hawk' Label on Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey, in a major escalation of his attacks on Richard M. Nixon, says the Republican presidential candidate "is farther to the hawk side" on the Vietnam war than anyone in the current administration.

The vice president put the hawk label on Nixon Tuesday during a stopover in Rochester, N.Y., before returning to Washington from a one-day trip to the Empire State.

In an interview show taped in Buffalo for television, Humphrey was scornful of the third party race mounted by former Democratic Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama.

"I can only say one thing for Mr. Wallace's candidacy. I think it's bad news for the United States," he said.

In a speech to party workers in Buffalo, Humphrey strongly criticized Nixon for saying he favors Senate ratification of the nuclear nonproliferation treaty, but would like a vote delayed because action now might imply approval of the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Then, after quoting the Republican candidate as saying he would double criminal convictions while Humphrey would double the antipoverty program, the vice president asserted:

"Let Mr. Nixon build his penitentiaries. I want to build neighborhoods and homes for Americans."

For Humphrey, the two-city visit to New York state apparently provided a big psychological boost. His crowds were bigger and generally more enthusiastic than during the earlier days of his campaign.

Of course, Humphrey ran into anti-Vietnam war demonstrators.

He silenced one group at Canisius College in Buffalo by urging them to voice their dissent "in a way that commands respect, because then and only then can you really influence public opinion, then and only then can you even change things."

Before the same college audience, Humphrey made another effort to depict himself as a moderate on the Vietnam war.

Declaring that "I've never been very much interested in wars," Humphrey promised that if elected, he would do anything necessary to achieve an honorable peace. And he reminded his audience that he could exercise no control in this area before Jan. 20, adding:

"We only have one president at a time—and that's enough."

Locked Out—No School Today

Padlocked gate thwarts pupils who showed up at Central Commercial High School in midtown Manhattan. A school board member, the Rev. Milton A. Galamison, tried to open the school but the key to the lock could not be found. He charged that teachers and pupils who want to return to school in spite of the strike are being locked out. The strike, which has kept most of the city's 1,200,000 students on extended summer holiday, continued into its sixth day today. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Jordan Gun Duel Goes On

AMMAN (AP) — Jordan claimed today that it drove off an Israeli hit-and-run sabotage team that tried to cross the Jordan river Tuesday night.

A Jordanian army spokesman said the Israelis tried to cross near the Sheikh Hussein Bridge in the north Jordan Valley, but were driven back by machine-gun fire. The spokesman said the raiders were thought to have suffered casualties.

Israeli and Jordanian troops continued their almost nightly artillery duels across the river, and the U.N. Security Council neared approval of a resolution calling once more on Israel and her Arab foes to observe the cease fire.

Israel reported Jordanian firing Tuesday night near Sidra, 30 miles north of the Dead Sea, at Umm Sidra, and at the desert settlement of Neot Hakikar, 15 miles south of the Dead Sea. A spokesman in Tel Aviv said the fire was returned, and no Israeli casualties were reported.

A Jordanian army spokesman charged that the Israelis shelled Kurtyemeh Village, a refugee center in north Karameh. He said although the village school was damaged, there were no Jordanian casualties.

Meanwhile, Jordan reported that three persons—a man, his wife and their child—were injured Tuesday morning when Israel shelled the town of Irbid. The Israelis said the shelling was in retaliation for an Arab rocket attack Monday night on the town of Bet She'an in which eight Israelis were reported wounded.

Israeli officials were particularly concerned about the attack on Bet She'an because it was the first attack on a populated area in the Beisan Valley since June 4 and because for the first time big 130mm rockets were used.

At the United Nations, members of the 15-nation Security Council were awaiting approval from their governments before voting on a resolution drafted by the council's 10 nonpermanent members.

Diplomatic sources said it was possible the council members could meet today to adopt the proposal, which calls on Israel and the Arab nations to "rigorously respect" the cease-fire ordered by council resolutions and to give full cooperation to Gunnar Jarring of Sweden, the special U.N. representative in the Middle East who has been trying to arrange an Arab-Israeli settlement.

The resolution is the council's answer to complaints from Israel and Egypt about recent clashes across the Suez Canal. The United Nations earlier Tuesday protested to Egypt and Israel that their exchange of fire across the canal on Sept. 8 put U.N. cease-fire observers "in grave and unnecessary danger" and damaged U.N. installations.

The protest said that two control centers, three observation posts and seven houses used by U.N. personnel had been fired on deliberately.

O'Connor Coming Here

FRANK O'CONNOR

New York City Council President Frank D. O'Connor will be the guest speaker at the Democratic City Committee's annual dinner Saturday night at the Walnut Grove on Field Court.

This will be O'Connor's second address before the City Committee. He was guest speaker at a dinner held Oct. 11, 1964.

O'Connor, who was defeated by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller in his bid for the governorship in 1966, is currently a candidate for a 14-year term for the State Supreme Court in Manhattan. He has received the endorsement of the Rpublican, Democratic and Liberal parties.

The dinner will honor Democratic candidates for election this fall. Expected to attend are John S. Dyson, (congress), William B. Martin (sheriff), Dr. Gerald P. Gorman (assembly), Al E. Wolley (state senate) and the 13 aldermanic candidates seeking one-year terms in the Common Council.

Chairman for the dinner is Ernest Smith and the committee includes Stanley J. Petro Jr., and J. Austin MacDonald, tickets and Lawrence Woerner, journal chairman.

O'Connor, 58, graduated from Niagara University in 1932 and earned his bachelor of laws degree from Brooklyn Law School in 1934. He was admitted to the bar in 1935 and practiced in Queens for more than 20 years. He was elected to three terms in the State Senate beginning in 1948 and in 1955 was elected to his first of three terms in the State Senate Queens County.

He was elected New York city council president in 1965 by more than 430,000 votes. He lost to Rockefeller in 1966 by 392,000 votes.

Investigative Phase Underway

The commission has already begun it investigative phase of potential sites and facilities. Letters will be forwarded by the commission to all town supervisors in the county requesting information about land that is available for county recreation purposes. A study will be conducted by the commission and a report filed with the County Legislature on the most favorable sites.

The next meeting of the commission is scheduled for Wednesday, Sept. 25 at 8 p. m. in the legislator's room of the county office building. At that time a program will be set up and possibly a schedule for inspection of various sites in the county proposed for recreation purposes.

The study of recreation sites will include types, sizes and location of facilities, projected construction and maintenance costs and state and federal aid grants available.

The five members of the commission were chosen to provide representation from various geographical areas of the county. The position is unsalaried. An amount not to exceed $500 has been allocated from the contingency fund for any initial expenses incurred. Eventual funding will be appropriated in the next county budget.

Opinions in Ulster:

Zoning a Little Late

A capacity crowd jammed the East Kingston Firehouse Tuesday night for the second in a series of three informational meetings on the proposed zoning ordinance for the Town of Ulster.

The opinions of most of those who spoke indicated that zoning for the residents of the East Kingston area is too late.

Mrs. Doris E. Mulvin, chairman of the town's Zoning Commission said most of those in attendance did not appear to be interested in zoning. Some of the 11 residents who spoke said if the Town of Ulster wanted zoning, they should have proposed the law directly after World War II.

The problems of the area including blasting and dust were discussed. The East Kingston area is adjacent to Hudson Cement Company where excavation work is going on for raw material in the manufacture of cement products. Some speakers observed that the only hope of recovery from property loss in the area is to sell to the cement company or some other industry. The opinions expressed indicated that it would be extremely difficult to sell any of the homes in that area to prospective homeowners because of existing conditions.

Mrs. Mulvin said she has the feeling that East Kingston does not want zoning and "I must respect their feelings." They also indicated that they did not want to hurt the rest of the township. Mrs. Mulvin said, "We will never be able to convince the people of East Kingston on the need for zoning." She noted that despite the overflow audience, everyone was courteous and calm.

Attorney Abraham Streifer attended representing the firm doing the excavation for the cement company.

The third in the series of informational meetings will be held Tuesday, Sept. 24 at 8 p. m. in Spring Lake Firehouse.

Mrs. Mulvin said the commission will consider all recommendations and some changes in the proposed ordinance will be necessary. She said that one more informational meeting would have to be held after the changes are made and prior to presentation of the proposed zoning law to the Town Board.

The proposed zoning map is on display at the office of Supervisor Thaddeus Musialkiewicz in Town of Ulster Post Office, Vincent Street. Copies of the proposed ordinance are also available at the supervisor's office.

Supervisor Musialkiewicz and Councilman Anthony Cicoria represented the Town Board at the meeting.

AN APPEAL TO REASON

We are all taxpayers —
We are all emotional about money

WHAT DO WE SAVE WHEN WE:

a) close down a self-supporting cafeteria already built and equipped?

b) lose all our matching federal grants for new library books and a substantial part of state aid for textbooks?

c) eliminate all but emergency maintenance of equipment and buildings in which we have already invested heavily?

d) lose accreditation of our school system, therefore endangering our students' college entrance possibilities?

e) forfeit the good citizenship fostered by extra-curricular activities such as sports, music and student government?

f) endanger the lives, safety and health of many of our children when they are committed to walking on unprotected, heavily traveled roads?

How high will our taxes have to go next year to make up for the "economy" of this year?

If the drive to "economize" continues into next year, how much more damage will result?

Those who wish to pin their hopes on a future option vote for — transportation, for instance, cannot depend upon the support of fellow taxpayers who oppose this budget and do not share the same concerns.

WHO LOSES? We all lose—for this is our community and whether or not we are parents, these are OUR children —

WHO IS HURT? Everyone who believes in his community; who wants to see it a place where skills are taught, minds are opened and careers are started —

Let a pen in a child's hand be mightier, for us, than the sword in the hands of an irresponsible "tax-saver".

Nixon Begins Taking Steps For Occupancy in Capital

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard Nixon already has men at work overhauling the federal budget and is sending a personal emissary abroad, preparing in midcampaign for a Republican White House.

But even as he took those steps, in anticipation of a Nov. 5 election victory, the Republican presidenial nominee said the public opinion polls that show him running ahead are not going to lull the GOP into overconfidence.

"The pollsters have been wrong all year long," Nixon said. "And so consequently, even though the polls show me ahead, all that I did when I heard the news about the Gallup Poll was to give orders to pour on the coal."

Slates TV Show

Nixon bid for votes in populous California Tuesday night with a statewide television show, one in a series of live voter interview programs in the major states.

He accused Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, his Democratic rival, of wavering on issues. "Before we can have a debate between Nixon and Humphrey, Humphrey's got to settle his debate with himself," Nixon said.

"It's Humphrey vs. Humphrey. He's taken positions on twice as many issues because he's been on both sides of every issue."

Nixon added he might be willing to debate Humphrey—but not if the confrontation had to include third party candidate George C. Wallace.

Today, Nixon plans a stop in Fresno and another in Salt Lake City before heading eastward toward a Thursday night fundraising dinner his organization hopes will raise $3 million for his campaign.

At a news conference in Anaheim, Nixon, said that his often-repeated call for steps to balance the federal budget will require a complete reappraisal of Washington spending.

"That reappraisal, incidentally, is going on right now," he said. "Having in mind the fact that I will have the responsibility to look at these budge problems right after the election. . . ."

Nixon said the budget balance he seeks will require a reappraisal of U.S. commitments abroad in all areas, including the military.

Nixon's campaign ambassador overseas is William W. Scranton, former governor of Pennsylvania. That assignment, which began today and will end Oct. 9, produced speculation that the Pennsylvanian might be considered to become secretary of state if Nixon wins the election.

Scranton is to visit London, Paris, Bonn and Brussels. Nixon said he asked Scranton to find out what European leaders want done to rebuild the Western alliance, and how they view direct negotiation between leaders of he United States and the Soviet Union.

Nixon said he didn't assign Scranton to check European viewpoints on the Vietnam war.

"I would not ask Gov. Scranton, directly or indirectly, to make any statement to a European leader that could be misinterpreted and get back to the negotiators in Paris and weaken the hands of our negotiating team," Nixon said.

Hears of Collusion

Nixon also said he had received reports that "there may be collusion developing" between Southern Democratic leaders and supporters of George C. Wallace, candidate of the American Independent party.

"I would certainly hope that Vice President Humphrey would repudiate any attempt on the part of Southern Democrats to join with Mr. Wallace in attempting to throw this race into the House of Representatives," Nixon said. The House would decide the election should any candidate fail to secure a majority in the electoral college.

At the Fresno rally, Nixon said the nation "must move to improve the life of the migratory worker in America today and to offer new hope to him and his family tomorrow."

50 States to Have Wallace on Ballot

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — George C. Wallace, showing signs of fatigue after a strenuous campaign swing through the Southwest, has completed an eight-month effort to meet the qualifications as a third-party presidential candidate for the ballots of all 50 states.

Wallace talked by telephone Tuesday night to 700 of his followers at a state convention in Seattle, Wash., the final state in which he met ballot requirements.

Wallace has been certified on the ballots of only 45 states but has met the qualifications in all, an accomplishment that required the signatures of nearly three million persons.

In Ohio, however, his certification awaits a ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court, expected Oct. 7.

In his conversation to Seattle, where his voice was broadcast in a meeting room and he was frequently interrupted by applause, Wallace repeated many of his standard points, stressed at rallies throughout his campaign. He spoke from his hotel room, seated in a chair, legs crossed.

The former Alabama governor has been suffering from a virus and complained to aides in recent days about his crowded campaign schedule.

He said he planned to take a few days off early next week to relax at his home in Montgomery, Ala. He also said he perhaps would announce his choice for a vice presidential running mate at that time.

Wallace spoke in Tulsa to an overflow crowd of more than 7,500, but his performance lacked the fire and dash that has typified his past campaign oratory.

His schedule today began at 6:20 a.m. and ends at 12:45 a.m. Thursday without a break.

Syracuse Shootout; Three Hurt

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) -- A 27 - year - old man, apparently despondent over the death of a friend last year, carried a shotgun and 250 rounds of ammunition into a downtown motel Tuesday and fired eight blasts into a crowded street.

Three persons were injured by the pellets, but none seriously.

Police said Daniel Ballard walked down from his second - story room after his gun jammed and on the eighth round surrendered quietly. As he was ushered into a patrol car, police quoted him as saying: "I did n't mean to kill them. Why don't you kill me?"

In the room, where Ballard apparently had fired several rounds into the walls and a table, police said they found a note indicating that Ballard had contemplated suicide.

At the end he had written: "No other shall die by my hands," police said.

Ballard, they said, was apparently despondent over an incident about a year ago when a friend was killed in an automobile accident in which Ballard had been driving.

They said he purchased the gun and several rounds of the ammunition Tuesday afternoon at the K-Mart Department store, a discount house.

Although he carried the shotgun into the motel, the Mayfair Inn, in a gun-carrying case, his entrance may have gone unnoticed as guests at the motel are able to park their cars and walk to their rooms without going through the lobby, police said.

Motel officials said Ballard was made to pay in advance for his room since he carried no luggage while registering. His registration card carried a Florida address, but police said he was well known in the Syracuse area.

He was charged with first-degree assault and remanded to city jail to await a court hearing.

Slates TV Show

Nixon bid for votes in populous California Tuesday night with a statewide television show, one in a series of live voter interview programs in the major states.

He accused Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, his Democratic rival, of wavering on issues. "Before we can have a debate between Nixon and Humphrey, Humphrey's got to settle his debate with himself," Nixon said.

"It's Humphrey vs. Humphrey. He's taken positions on twice as many issues because he's been on both sides of every issue."

Nixon added he might be willing to debate Humphrey—but not if the confrontation had to include third party candidate George C. Wallace.

Today, Nixon plans a stop in Fresno and another in Salt Lake City before heading eastward toward a Thursday night fundraising dinner his organization hopes will raise $3 million for his campaign.

At a news conference in Anaheim, Nixon, said that his often-repeated call for steps to balance the federal budget will require a complete reappraisal of Washington spending.

"That reappraisal, incidentally, is going on right now," he said. "Having in mind the fact that I will have the responsibility to look at these budge problems right after the election. . . ."

Nixon said the budget balance he seeks will require a reappraisal of U.S. commitments abroad in all areas, including the military.

Nixon's campaign ambassador overseas is William W. Scranton, former governor of Pennsylvania. That assignment, which began today and will end Oct. 9, produced speculation that the Pennsylvanian might be considered to become secretary of state if Nixon wins the election.

Scranton is to visit London, Paris, Bonn and Brussels. Nixon said he asked Scranton to find out what European leaders want done to rebuild the Western alliance, and how they view direct negotiation between leaders of he United States and the Soviet Union.

Nixon said he didn't assign Scranton to check European viewpoints on the Vietnam war.

"I would not ask Gov. Scranton, directly or indirectly, to make any statement to a European leader that could be misinterpreted and get back to the negotiators in Paris and weaken the hands of our negotiating team," Nixon said.

Hears of Collusion

Nixon also said he had received reports that "there may be collusion developing" between Southern Democratic leaders and supporters of George C. Wallace, candidate of the American Independent party.

"I would certainly hope that Vice President Humphrey would repudiate any attempt on the part of Southern Democrats to join with Mr. Wallace in attempting to throw this race into the House of Representatives," Nixon said. The House would decide the election should any candidate fail to secure a majority in the electoral college.

At the Fresno rally, Nixon said the nation "must move to improve the life of the migratory worker in America today and to offer new hope to him and his family tomorrow."

50 States to Have Wallace on Ballot

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — George C. Wallace, showing signs of fatigue after a strenuous campaign swing through the Southwest, has completed an eight-month effort to meet the qualifications as a third-party presidential candidate for the ballots of all 50 states.

Wallace talked by telephone Tuesday night to 700 of his followers at a state convention in Seattle, Wash., the final state in which he met ballot requirements.

Wallace has been certified on the ballots of only 45 states but has met the qualifications in all, an accomplishment that required the signatures of nearly three million persons.

In Ohio, however, his certification awaits a ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court, expected Oct. 7.

In his conversation to Seattle, where his voice was broadcast in a meeting room and he was frequently interrupted by applause, Wallace repeated many of his standard points, stressed at rallies throughout his campaign. He spoke from his hotel room, seated in a chair, legs crossed.

The former Alabama governor has been suffering from a virus and complained to aides in recent days about his crowded campaign schedule.

He said he planned to take a few days off early next week to relax at his home in Montgomery, Ala. He also said he perhaps would announce his choice for a vice presidential running mate at that time.

Wallace spoke in Tulsa to an overflow crowd of more than 7,500, but his performance lacked the fire and dash that has typified his past campaign oratory.

His schedule today began at 6:20 a.m. and ends at 12:45 a.m. Thursday without a break.

Syracuse Shootout; Three Hurt

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) -- A 27 - year - old man, apparently despondent over the death of a friend last year, carried a shotgun and 250 rounds of ammunition into a downtown motel Tuesday and fired eight blasts into a crowded street.

Three persons were injured by the pellets, but none seriously.

Police said Daniel Ballard walked down from his second - story room after his gun jammed and on the eighth round surrendered quietly. As he was ushered into a patrol car, police quoted him as saying: "I did n't mean to kill them. Why don't you kill me?"

In the room, where Ballard apparently had fired several rounds into the walls and a table, police said they found a note indicating that Ballard had contemplated suicide.

At the end he had written: "No other shall die by my hands," police said.

Ballard, they said, was apparently despondent over an incident about a year ago when a friend was killed in an automobile accident in which Ballard had been driving.

They said he purchased the gun and several rounds of the ammunition Tuesday afternoon at the K-Mart Department store, a discount house.

Although he carried the shotgun into the motel, the Mayfair Inn, in a gun-carrying case, his entrance may have gone unnoticed as guests at the motel are able to park their cars and walk to their rooms without going through the lobby, police said.

Motel officials said Ballard was made to pay in advance for his room since he carried no luggage while registering. His registration card carried a Florida address, but police said he was well known in the Syracuse area.

He was charged with first-degree assault and remanded to city jail to await a court hearing.

Election Reform

Congress is still talking about reforming the election system and especially the national conventions which name the candidates for President and Vice President. The Chicago convention spurred election reform as nothing had done for years.

The trouble is that reform is a perennial. It is strongly advocated around election time, when its faults are so obvious. After election, it is conveniently shunted off until four years more roll around. Whether this time talk will die or turn into action is hard to tell.

True, both Senator Mike Mansfield, the Democratic Senate leader, and Rep. Gerald R. Ford, the Republican House Leader, are agreed that the Elecoral College must be abolished, and with it the convention system of picking the candidates. They favor the plan proposed by the American Bar Association, for the popular election of the President, with a run-off election if necessary.

Conventions are not prescribed by the Constitution. They may be changed by party ruling. Primaries, however, are provided for in only 15 states. For a national primary to choose the candidate, a Constitutional amendment would be necessary. One would also be necessary to abolish the archaic Electoral College, under which each state choose electors who, in turn, elect the President and Vice President.

This year, as Ford and others have warned, there is a chance that the Electoral College will not be able to elect because it may not be able to cast a majority vote for any one of the candidates. The fear is that George C. Wallace may carry enough states to make it a three-way race with no candidate receiving a majority.

This could be avoided by a direct popular vote. The question then is: will the man with the largest nationwide vote be declared the winner, or must the outcome be determined by electoral votes assigned to the states as at present? These are some of the hurdles, but they can all be overcome if it is determined that a nationwide primary and election by direct popular vote will remove the inequities of the present system.

Gun Accidents

Americans pay a price for the exercise of their constitutional right to bear arms. In 1966, an estimated 2,600 of them paid the ultimate price—their lives.

That many either shot themselves accidentally or were accidentally shot by others. Nearly 60 per cent, or 1,500, of these mishaps occurred in or about the home.

Metropolitan Life has published some statistics based on a study of the death claims of 143 of its policyholders who died in home firearms accidents in 1964-66. The weapon most often involved was a shotgun or rifle.

Every age group contributed to the toll. An appalling 11 per cent of those fatally injured were children under age 10. Nearly two-fifths of the victims were between 10 and 24, most of them in their teens. Most frequently, the gun was accidentally fired by the victim himself or by another youngster, often a brother.

At least 29 of the 143 fatal accidents occurred during the servicing or repairing of the firearms. Several were caused by that most dangerous weapon of all, the "unloaded" gun.

Twenty-six lives were lost while playing with guns, most of these from playfully pointing it at the victim. At least four deaths were caused by "Russian roulette." Another 26 persons were killed either while demonstrating the weapon, target practicing or shooting at birds and small animals.

While 83 victims died of self-inflicted wounds, another 24 were shot by family members. Five accidents resulted from scuffling for possession of a gun, four of these cases involving husbands and wives.

These particular statistics are not an argument for gun control legislation, unless someone comes up with a way of insuring that all licensed gunowners would display common sense at all times.

For registered guns would kill just as surely as unregistered ones, so long as some people treat them as toys or let them fall into the hands of children or fail to use ordinary prudence in handling these very lethal instruments.

Registration Dates

Registration for the general election on November 5 will be held at each polling place in the city of Kingston and County of Ulster on the following dates:

Saturday, Sept. 28
12 noon to 10 p. m.
Friday, Oct. 4
6 a. m. to 12 noon
Saturday, Oct. 5
12 noon to 10 p. m.

A drive to register non-white voters in New York is meeting with indifference and apathy. "Why should I vote? Nobody's interested in us," is the state of mind of the majority. Rejection of the democratic process could have a serious effect on the outcome of the election.

Episode at Chicago Has Lesson for U.S. Mayors

WASHINLTON — The city of Chicago's presentation of its side of the controversy about the turbulence which occurred during the week when the Democratic National Convention has held really revealed no surprises. Anybody who is familiar with the misuse of "demonstrations" — presumably to express opinions on public affairs — has known for a long time that violence is often deliberately incited. The police are provoked until some of them become angered and use their night sticks indiscriminately, and the net result is injury to scores of participants as well as bystanders.

The question that has been lost sight of is related to the issuance of permits to "demonstrate" by means of "parades" or "marches." Chicago's Mayor Daley knew in advance that the purpose of many of the leaders of the invading "demonstrators" was to stir up trouble. He refused permits to parade, though he did agree to let protesters gather in Lincoln Park.

Sooner or later, there will be general approval whenever the mayor of a city declines a permit to any organization whose spokesmen have previously used provocative phrases and plainly indicate an intention to do things that incite violence.

The moment Mayor Daley agreed to let "demonstrators" gather in Lincoln Park, he had a potential riot on his hands Quotations from the leaders who had boasted that they would "disrupt" the Democratic National Convention were available. Yet the Mayor, feeling that he had to bow to the right of "free speech and assembly," finally let the demonstrators hold a protest meeting in Grant Park, just across the street from the hotel where the Democratic Headquarters was located.

It was obvious from the start that at some stage there would be a "confrontation" between the police and the demonstrators and that individuals on both sides would lose their tempers and violence would ensue.

The television networks naturally picked out the most sensational aspects of the disturbances then going on, and gave nationwide audiences the impression that innocent demonstrators and bystanders were being clubbed without justification. When Mayor Daley presented his side of the story, he showed some of the preparations being made by the demonstrators and exhibited some of the weapons — rocks, knives, broken glass, clubs and missiles of metal and wood — which were used against the police.

It is significant that in the pictures carried by the TV networks during convention week and those in the film by the city of Chicago shown on Sunday night, hardly any Negroes were visible in the crowds. There were no racial overtones. It was a contest with city authorities by a group of radicals — mostly from other states — who claimed they were primarily interested in agitating against the Vietnam war but who gave every impression of being "exhibitionists" anxious for attention and desirous of expressing their own emotions. All of this, in the presence of cameras, led to acts of violence.

The episode has a lesson in it for the mayors of American cities. They must decide for themselves whether they will issue permits to everybody who merely states a desire to "demonstrate." The nature of the organization, its background and the comments made by its leaders in advance, when put together can justify a refusal to grant a permit for a parade in the streets. Opportunity would be given instead for mass meetings to be held inside an auditorium or stadium which could be guarded from the outside by police.

Fortunately, nobody was killed in Chicago "demonstrations." Scores were injured, however, and the city itself unfortunately was given a bad reputation through the country. This has made many organizations reluctant to send their conventions to that metropolis.

The TV networks, it is claimed, did not give all of the story, but it often happens that cameras are concentrated on the most sensational aspects or that they are not present when some of the episodes occur. Now that "both sides" have been presented widely on TV, the public knows that "demonstrations" are certainly a tragic phase of American life.

Ways and means to prevent such outbursts should occupy the attention of the mayors of cities and the leaders of the organizations of police chiefs. Perhaps court tests can be made to determine whether the right of "free speech" extends to those who make public threats plainly related to "demonstrations" not of a peaceful, but of a violent nature.

Czech Invasion Raises Many Vital Questions

BURCHAREST, Romania — The Russian occupation of Czechoslovakia has been most momentous European event since Hitler invaded the country in 1938 in his prelude to World War II, or since Archduke Franz Ferdinand was assasinated at Sarajevo in 1914. It has raised vitally important questions which effect the United States such as:

1. Is the Soviet Union's vast empire of many different ethnic groups about to break up?

2. To prevent a breakup, will Russian troops be moved into other countries one year later, just as Nazi troops were one year later and occupied Poland?

3. Should the United States drastically curtail its military operations in Southeast Asia or even end the Vietnam war altogether in order to strengthen NATO?

4. Should Lyndon Johnson persevere in his efforts to talk long-range peace with Moscow or drop his efforts altogether?

5. Is there a chance of change in Moscow either of policy or leadership?

No Easy Answers

To answer these questions I have visited most of the capitals immediately adjacent to Czechoslovakia, interviewed many leaders, some off the record. The answers are not easy. To reach conclusions, you must ascertain what was in the Soviet leaders' minds when they reached the drastic decision to use brute force against Czechoslovakia.

Czechoslovakia was extremely friendly to Russia. Even as early as 1923, five years after the Czech republic was founded, Edouard Benes, then foreign minister, told me Czechoslovakia's policy must be interwinded with Russia's. Later the Soviet sided with Czechs at the time of Munich, when Neville Chamberlain took a runout powder. After that it was the Russian army which largely rescued the Czechs from the Nazi occupation.

Despite all this. Soviet leaders took the drastic step of doing to the Czechs what they had fought Hitler for doing. Why? The basic reason undoubtedly was the domino theory which John Foster Dulles made famous in Southeast Asia. The Kremlin saw other communist-bloc countries getting contaminated by the new Czech freedoms and figured that if Czechoslovakia got away with it, the entire bloc would fall, one by one.

Yugoslavia had left the Soviet orbit long before, but it was geographically more isolated and in recent years had been careful not to criticze the Soviet Union. Romania five years ago had bolted the Warsaw Alliance and conducted its independent foreign policy, but it had adhered to rigid communist doctrine. It also maintained friendly, uncritical relations with Moscow.

Czechoslovakia, however, had substituted social democracy for communism and was rapidly heading toward a parliamentary system.

Furthermore,

Czechoslovakia occupies a key military corridor splitting communist nations in two, which when occupied by Nazi troops led to the downfall of Poland and the invasion of Russia.

Idea of Freedom Contagious

Finally and perhaps most importantly, the Russian intelligenzia is getting contaminated by Czech political ideas. Russian tourists were crossing the border to marvel at Czech freedoms and came home to spread the word. In Moscow, for instance, you cannot buy a single foreign newspaper or magazine except communist publications. But in Prague, newsstands featured Life, Look and all British and American journals. Furthermore they read news and criticism of the Soviet which they had never been able to read at home. So the word spread. It spread especially to the Ukraine, which borders on Czechoslovakia where thousands of tourists crossed the border and which has long been restless under Soviet rule. In the final showdown, it was Ukrainian Secretary General Pyotr Shelest who was most vigorous against Czech leaders. He shouted, waved his fists and even threatened physical violence.

All these things led up to the first four-day showdown between Czech and Russian leaders at Cierna and Bratislava. As previously reported in this column, these talks were far less friendly than indicated by the final handshaking and bear hugs. At one time the arguments were so bitter that the Russians refused to drink Czech coffee and even started calling each other "Mister" instead of "Comrade."

Hawks and Doves

Surprisingly, Premier Kosygin, who seemed mild-mannered at the Glassboro sessions, was one of the toughest. Brezhnev was more conciliatory, though somewhat changeable. Surprisingly, Mikhail Suslov, the Stalinist hardliner, was more conciliatory than the others. He's in charge of the Communist parties in Italy, France, Austria and the rest of Europe, so knew what their reaction would be to any crackdown on Czechoslovakia.

One hardline communist attending the final Bratislava conference was Walter Ulbricht, leader of East Germany and a long bitter skeptic about any cooperation with West Germany, who had noted with concern Czechoslovakia's new trade and tourist interchange and its generally friendly relations with the West German government. One week after Bratislava, he returned to Czechslovakia for the conference at Karlovy Vary Aug. 12, where he proposed conciliatory steps for economic and scientific cooperation and emphasized the importance of Czech-East German understanding. This was quite a change for Ulbricht and the Czechs frankly didn't believe him. They rebuffed his overtures.

This may have been their biggest mistake. Ulbricht flew to Moscow immediately with reports that the Czechs had no intention of carrying out their Bratislava pledges. This was one of the major factors in tipping the scales for a military invasion, as will be detailed in a later column.

Drew Pearson, interviewed by Mike Wallace on the CBS Radio show "Dimension," declared that while an overwhelming majority of Congressmen are honest but that many of them "cut corners."

Asked about the new book, "The Case Against Congress," he wrote with Jack Anderson, Pearson told Wallace that most Congressmen are good men. He added:

"There's a lot of cutting corners, such as relatives on the payroll, such as junkets abroad. There's nothing illegal about this, but still the public gets pretty fed up with things such as taking your office allowance and spending it on your own law office.

"We point out in this book that there 300 Congressman have law firms, and it's pretty hard to differentiate, draw the line, as between when they're practicing for their law firms, and when they're practicing for the government, sometimes on the floor of the Congress."

Wallace then wondered if alcoholism is much of a problem is Washington. Pearson said.

"Not with a majority, but with a minority it is. This is one of the problems of Adam Clayton Powell and one for the problems of Tom Dodd. I've publicly called attention to the fact that Senator Long of Louisiana, who's a very fine Senator, I think, has his problem late in the afternoon and he's told me, "Drew, you're wrong about my like of Bourbon. You're absolutely wrong — it's Scotch!'

"Mendel Rivers has said several times, 'Drew Pearson's got me on the wagon.' That is correct, and he has been on the wagon interminably, but he has fallen off on occasion.

Wallace asked Pearson how he started to specialize in Washington exposes. Pearson explained:

"I think it goes back to the Hoover administration when Bob Allen and I wrote a book, 'The Washington Merry-go-round,' because there was so much news that we saw not being published. Those were the rather complacent days of Herbert Hoover and you have a big majority of the newspapers, then and now, which are Republican and they glance over a lot of things. So we wrote a book, and it was a best seller and we were both fired from our jobs as a result of that book. So we started writing a column daily to write the same kind of exposes."

Jim Bishop: Reporter

You can bury a pet canary for $15. There are cemeteries for beloved pets in California, Missouri, New York State, and Florida. There may be others, but $15 for a feathered friend who has uttered his last peep seems to be for the birds. I saw a necropolis in Los Angeles where the headstones are carved as statues of the deceased. A six-foot stone parakeet standing beside a two-foot German shepherd is impressive.

Pet lovers — and I'm one — are candidates for the funny farm anyway. We love cats, dogs, birds, monkeys, armadillos, rabbits and not one of them would dream of burying us. Unless, of course, Fido regarded us as an assortment of bones, in which case we'd be interrred all over the neighborhood.

Darrell Eiland of the Miami Herald discovered the pet cemetery to end all pet graveyards. It is on the edge of a little town called Plantation, Florida. There, an ex-football player, Mitch Steffler, has built the American Pet Memorial Cemetery. Mr. Steffler doesn't just shovel a pussycat into an excavation. Even the canaries have caskets.

The point is not even moot. Mitch told Darrell Eiland that the price of placing a pet in the boneyard tenderly can run up to a very pretty penny. Would you believe $12,000 for a German silver casket? I josh you not. I know a few ever-loving husbands who buried their old ladies with that kind of insurance and got $11,500 change.

The entrance to the American Pet Memorial Cemetery — (keep those letters coming in, folks!) — consists of a big white statue of a Great Dane who once kept Steffler from freezing to death. Touching. A path around the statue is edged with colorful buds.

You ready? Behind it is an administration building where dear dead Prince is taken to a room for embalming. When my dog Rocky goes, I want his ears standing up and this is going to require a little work because he has tired ears. Then there is a place where you can sit with your dog, cat, canary, monkey, seagull, capon or whatever it is you are hooked on. This — what else? — is called the Slumber Room.

Mr. Steffler was a casket maker for a time, so he understands the biz from the ground up. His place is new. It opened in July and already there are 31 of our dear, departed, feathered, befurred and whiskered friends in permanent repose. The place is nowhere near complete. Mitch plans to build a Garden of Devotion to the left of the entrance.

This is bound to be impressive because there will be a bronze tablet with this profound inscription: "A pet who has passed from this world dies only when we whom they love forget them." I get the message but I'm afraid that when Rocky goes he's going to get a Cheap-Sam sendoff. Anything beyond $5 I'll put him in an orange crate myself and mail him to the LBJ Ranch.

There will be a Garden of Memories too. This will feature an open Bible on a pedestal. Here, Steffler is missing something. If he is going to have the Bible, he should have a statue of St. Francis of Assisi holding it, because St. Francis loved dogs. Or, to put it plainly, they fell into the habit of following him, sniffing.

There is a lake too. And an island where memorial stones may be built and statuary erected. Then there is the Japanese Garden of Love. This is for cats and birds, the latter of whom spent a lifetime trying to avoid the former.

A crematorium, of course. There will be a sort of Potter's Field for rotters such as I who will not spring for the big bundle under any circumstances. The callous may bury their pets in this section for a lousy $25. What kind of music goes with it?...

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In part, President Johnson hasn't stopped bombing North Vietnam because his Secretary of State Dean Rusk remembers Korea and Panmunjom all too well.

At the time of Korea, Rusk was assistant secretary of state for the Far East. He did much of the behind-the-scenes masterminding for the Panmunjom talks.

Rusk and his aides have thought a great deal about those frustrating days. The lessons of Korea are today being applied to Vietnam.

As State Department men who were in on Korea see it now, the greatest mistake the United States made at Panmunjom was to make good will concessions to get the talk going.

The old-timers believe these concessions caused the war to last a year longer and thus led to the unnecessary loss of many American and Allied lives.

These diplomats also believe, in hindsight, the one-sided concessions resulted in an armistice agreement far less favorable than we could otherwise have achieved.

As men who were in on these negotiations analyze it, if Western negotiators agreed to a North Korean proposal without insisting on an equal concession, the North Koreans immediately concluded that our position was deteriorating. They became more aggressive and even less conciliatory. They immediately came up with further demands that we must meet before the discussions could move ahead.

At Panmunjom, for example, the North Koreans insisted the first order of business must be to fix the armistice line. Otherwise the talks could not proceed. Washington became impatient with the delays and agreed. Once the line was agreed to, the military pressure was off the North Koreans. There was no inducement for them to agree to anything. They could, in safety, bring in troops, rebuild their airfields and strengthen their positions so firmly that if the talks broke down it would be too expensive for the United States to resume the advance.

Had the United States stood firm on insisting that the truce line would be the line of contact at the time the armistice was signed, the United Nations forces could have kept up the pressure. Every day of delay would have cost the North Koreans and their Communist Chinese allies. The experts think this would have shortened the talks by 12 months.

By contrast, U.S. negotiators learned that when they dug in and were as hard-nosed as the North Koreans, they got results. They achieved even greater results when the United Nations made the North Koreans pay a price for delay.

Hanoi today insists it won't talk until the United States stops the northern bombing "unconditionally."

An "unconditional" bombing halt would take the military pressure off the North Vietnamese homeland, but not off the South Vietnamese cities and villages or off the U.S. or South Vietnamese or Allied troops. It would signal to Hanoi that the U.S. position was weak. It would convince Ho Chi Minh that if he stalls longer he will get more; it would cause Ho's men to raise their ante.

That is, if the Korean example is valid and if President Johnson halts the bombing, this U.S. concession would lead to further demands before talks could successfully proceed.

This Ho strategy has already been signaled, as noted in a recent newspaper headline which said, "Bomb Halt Alone Won't End Stalemate, Hanoi Indicates."

Election Reform

Congress is still talking about reforming the election system and especially the national conventions which name the candidates for President and Vice President. The Chicago convention spurred election reform as nothing had done for years.

The trouble is that reform is a perennial. It is strongly advocated around election time, when its faults are so obvious. After election, it is conveniently shunted off until four years more roll around. Whether this time talk will die or turn into action is hard to tell.

True, both Senator Mike Mansfield, the Democratic Senate leader, and Rep. Gerald R. Ford, the Republican House Leader, are agreed that the Elecoral College must be abolished, and with it the convention system of picking the candidates. They favor the plan proposed by the American Bar Association, for the popular election of the President, with a run-off election if necessary.

Conventions are not prescribed by the Constitution. They may be changed by party ruling. Primaries, however, are provided for in only 15 states. For a national primary to choose the candidate, a Constitutional amendment would be necessary. One would also be necessary to abolish the archaic Electoral College, under which each state choose electors who, in turn, elect the President and Vice President.

This year, as Ford and others have warned, there is a chance that the Electoral College will not be able to elect because it may not be able to cast a majority vote for any one of the candidates. The fear is that George C. Wallace may carry enough states to make it a three-way race with no candidate receiving a majority.

This could be avoided by a direct popular vote. The question then is: will the man with the largest nationwide vote be declared the winner, or must the outcome be determined by electoral votes assigned to the states as at present? These are some of the hurdles, but they can all be overcome if it is determined that a nationwide primary and election by direct popular vote will remove the inequities of the present system.

Gun Accidents

Americans pay a price for the exercise of their constitutional right to bear arms. In 1966, an estimated 2,600 of them paid the ultimate price—their lives.

That many either shot themselves accidentally or were accidentally shot by others. Nearly 60 per cent, or 1,500, of these mishaps occurred in or about the home.

Metropolitan Life has published some statistics based on a study of the death claims of 143 of its policyholders who died in home firearms accidents in 1964-66. The weapon most often involved was a shotgun or rifle.

Every age group contributed to the toll. An appalling 11 per cent of those fatally injured were children under age 10. Nearly two-fifths of the victims were between 10 and 24, most of them in their teens. Most frequently, the gun was accidentally fired by the victim himself or by another youngster, often a brother.

At least 29 of the 143 fatal accidents occurred during the servicing or repairing of the firearms. Several were caused by that most dangerous weapon of all, the "unloaded" gun.

Twenty-six lives were lost while playing with guns, most of these from playfully pointing it at the victim. At least four deaths were caused by "Russian roulette." Another 26 persons were killed either while demonstrating the weapon, target practicing or shooting at birds and small animals.

While 83 victims died of self-inflicted wounds, another 24 were shot by family members. Five accidents resulted from scuffling for possession of a gun, four of these cases involving husbands and wives.

These particular statistics are not an argument for gun control legislation, unless someone comes up with a way of insuring that all licensed gunowners would display common sense at all times.

For registered guns would kill just as surely as unregistered ones, so long as some people treat them as toys or let them fall into the hands of children or fail to use ordinary prudence in handling these very lethal instruments.

Registration Dates

Registration for the general election on November 5 will be held at each polling place in the city of Kingston and County of Ulster on the following dates:

Saturday, Sept. 28
12 noon to 10 p. m.
Friday, Oct. 4
6 a. m. to 12 noon
Saturday, Oct. 5
12 noon to 10 p. m.

A drive to register non-white voters in New York is meeting with indifference and apathy. "Why should I vote? Nobody's interested in us," is the state of mind of the majority. Rejection of the democratic process could have a serious effect on the outcome of the election.

"So Where Do We Go from Here?"

David Lawrence Says

Episode at Chicago Has Lesson for U.S. Mayors

WASHINLTON — The city of Chicago's presentation of its side of the controversy about the turbulence which occurred during the week when the Democratic National Convention has held really revealed no surprises. Anybody who is familiar with the misuse of "demonstrations" — presumably to express opinions on public affairs — has known for a long time that violence is often deliberately incited. The police are provoked until some of them become angered and use their night sticks indiscriminately, and the net result is injury to scores of participants as well as bystanders.

The question that has been lost sight of is related to the issuance of permits to "demonstrate" by means of "parades" or "marches." Chicago's Mayor Daley knew in advance that the purpose of many of the leaders of the invading "demonstrators" was to stir up trouble. He refused permits to parade, though he did agree to let protesters gather in Lincoln Park.

Sooner or later, there will be general approval whenever the mayor of a city declines a permit to any organization whose spokesmen have previously used provocative phrases and plainly indicate an intention to do things that incite violence.

The moment Mayor Daley agreed to let "demonstrators" gather in Lincoln Park, he had a potential riot on his hands Quotations from the leaders who had boasted that they would "disrupt" the Democratic National Convention were available. Yet the Mayor, feeling that he had to bow to the right of "free speech and assembly," finally let the demonstrators hold a protest meeting in Grant Park, just across the street from the hotel where the Democratic Headquarters was located.

It was obvious from the start that at some stage there would be a "confrontation" between the police and the demonstrators and that individuals on both sides would lose their tempers and violence would ensue.

The television networks naturally picked out the most sensational aspects of the disturbances then going on, and gave nationwide audiences the impression that innocent demonstrators and bystanders were being clubbed without justification. When Mayor Daley presented his side of the story, he showed some of the preparations being made by the demonstrators and exhibited some of the weapons — rocks, knives, broken glass, clubs and missiles of metal and wood — which were used against the police.

It is significant that in the pictures carried by the TV networks during convention week and those in the film by the city of Chicago shown on Sunday night, hardly any Negroes were visible in the crowds. There were no racial overtones. It was a contest with city authorities by a group of radicals — mostly from other states — who claimed they were primarily interested in agitating against the Vietnam war but who gave every impression of being "exhibitionists" anxious for attention and desirous of expressing their own emotions. All of this, in the presence of cameras, led to acts of violence.

The episode has a lesson in it for the mayors of American cities. They must decide for themselves whether they will issue permits to everybody who merely states a desire to "demonstrate." The nature of the organization, its background and the comments made by its leaders in advance, when put together can justify a refusal to grant a permit for a parade in the streets. Opportunity would be given instead for mass meetings to be held inside an auditorium or stadium which could be guarded from the outside by police.

Fortunately, nobody was killed in Chicago "demonstrations." Scores were injured, however, and the city itself unfortunately was given a bad reputation through the country. This has made many organizations reluctant to send their conventions to that metropolis.

The TV networks, it is claimed, did not give all of the story, but it often happens that cameras are concentrated on the most sensational aspects or that they are not present when some of the episodes occur. Now that "both sides" have been presented widely on TV, the public knows that "demonstrations" are certainly a tragic phase of American life.

Ways and means to prevent such outbursts should occupy the attention of the mayors of cities and the leaders of the organizations of police chiefs. Perhaps court tests can be made to determine whether the right of "free speech" extends to those who make public threats plainly related to "demonstrations" not of a peaceful, but of a violent nature.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

You can bury a pet canary for $15. There are cemeteries for beloved pets in California, Missouri, New York State, and Florida. There may be others, but $15 for a feathered friend who has uttered his last peep seems to be for the birds. I saw a necropolis in Los Angeles where the headstones are carved as statues of the deceased. A six-foot stone parakeet standing beside a two-foot German shepherd is impressive.

Pet lovers — and I'm one — are candidates for the funny farm anyway. We love cats, dogs, birds, monkeys, armadillos, rabbits and not one of them would dream of burying us. Unless, of course, Fido regarded us as an assortment of bones, in which case we'd be interrred all over the neighborhood.

Darrell Eiland of the Miami Herald discovered the pet cemetery to end all pet graveyards. It is on the edge of a little town called Plantation, Florida. There, an ex-football player, Mitch Steffler, has built the American Pet Memorial Cemetery. Mr. Steffler doesn't just shovel a pussycat into an excavation. Even the canaries have caskets.

The point is not even moot. Mitch told Darrell Eiland that the price of placing a pet in the boneyard tenderly can run up to a very pretty penny. Would you believe $12,000 for a German silver casket? I josh you not. I know a few ever-loving husbands who buried their old ladies with that kind of insurance and got $11,500 change.

The entrance to the American Pet Memorial Cemetery — (keep those letters coming in, folks!) — consists of a big white statue of a Great Dane who once kept Steffler from freezing to death. Touching. A path around the statue is edged with colorful buds.

You ready? Behind it is an administration building where dear dead Prince is taken to a room for embalming. When my dog Rocky goes, I want his ears standing up and this is going to require a little work because he has tired ears. Then there is a place where you can sit with your dog, cat, canary, monkey, seagull, capon or whatever it is you are hooked on. This — what else? — is called the Slumber Room.

Mr. Steffler was a casket maker for a time, so he understands the biz from the ground up. His place is new. It opened in July and already there are 31 of our dear, departed, feathered, befurred and whiskered friends in permanent repose. The place is nowhere near complete. Mitch plans to build a Garden of Devotion to the left of the entrance.

This is bound to be impressive because there will be a bronze tablet with this profound inscription: "A pet who has passed from this world dies only when we whom they love forget them." I get the message but I'm afraid that when Rocky goes he's going to get a Cheap Sam sendoff. Anything beyond $5 I'll put him in an orange crate myself and mail him to the LBJ Ranch.

There will be a Garden of Memories too. This will feature an open Bible on a pedestal. Here, Steffler is missing something. If he is going to have the Bible, he should have a statue of St. Francis of Assisi holding it, because St. Francis loved dogs. Or, to put it plainly, they fell into the habit of following him, sniffing.

There is a lake too. And an island where memorial stones may be built and statuary erected. Then there is the Japanese Garden of Love. This is for cats and birds, the latter of whom spent a lifetime trying to avoid the former.

A crematorium, of course. There will be a sort of Potter's Field for rotters such as I who will not spring for the big bundle under any circumstances. The callous may bury their pets in this section for a lousy $25. What kind of music goes with it?...

Drew Pearson Says
Czech Invasion Raises Many Vital Questions

BURCHAREST, Romania — The Russian occupation of Czechoslovakia has been most momentous European event since Hitler invaded the country in 1938 in his prelude to World War II, or since Archduke Franz Ferdinand was assasinated at Sarajevo in 1914. It has raised vitally important questions which effect the United States such as:

1. Is the Soviet Union's vast empire of many different ethnic groups about to break up?

2. To prevent a breakup, will Russian troops be moved into other countries one year later, just as Nazi troops were one year later and occupied Poland?

3. Should the United States drastically curtail its military operations in Southeast Asia or even end the Vietnam war altogether in order to strengthen NATO?

4. Should Lyndon Johnson persevere in his efforts to talk long-range peace with Moscow or drop his efforts altogether?

5. Is there a chance of change in Moscow either of policy or leadership?

No Easy Answers

To answer these questions I have visited most of the capitals immediately adjacent to Czechoslovakia, interviewed many leaders, some off the record. The answers are not easy. To reach conclusions, you must ascertain what was in the Soviet leaders' minds when they reached the drastic decision to use brute force against Czechoslovakia.

Czechoslovakia was extremely friendly to Russia. Even as early as 1923, five years after the Czech republic was founded, Edouard Benes, then foreign minister, told me Czechoslovakia's policy must be interwinded with Russia's. Later the Soviet sided with Czechs at the time of Munich, when Neville Chamberlain took a runout powder. After that it was the Russian army which largely rescued the Czechs from the Nazi occupation.

Despite all this. Soviet leaders took the drastic step of doing to the Czechs what they had fought Hitler for doing. Why? The basic reason undoubtedly was the domino theory which John Foster Dulles made famous in Southeast Asia. The Kremlin saw other communist-bloc countries getting contaminated by the new Czech freedoms and figured that if Czechoslovakia got away with it, the entire bloc would fall, one by one.

Yugoslavia had left the Soviet orbit long before, but it was geographically more isolated and in recent years had been careful not to criticze the Soviet Union. Romania five years ago had bolted the Warsaw Alliance and conducted its independent foreign policy, but it had adhered to rigid communist doctrine. It also maintained friendly, uncritical relations with Moscow.

Czechoslovakia, however, had substituted social democracy for communism and was rapidly heading toward a parliamentary system.

Furthermore, Czechoslovakia occupies a key military corridor splitting communist nations in two, which when occupied by Nazi troops led to the downfall of Poland and the invasion of Russia.

Idea of Freedom Contagious

Finally and perhaps most importantly, the Russian intelligenzia is getting contaminated by Czech political ideas. Russian tourists were crossing the border to marvel at Czech freedoms and came home to spread the word. In Moscow, for instance, you cannot buy a single foreign newspaper or magazine except communist publications. But in Prague, newsstands featured Life, Look and all British and American journals. Furthermore they read news and criticism of the Soviet which they had never been able to read at home. So the word spread. It spread especially to the Ukraine, which borders on Czechoslovakia where thousands of tourists crossed the border and which has long been restless under Soviet rule. In the final showdown, it was Ukrainian Secretary General Pyotr Shelest who was most vigorous against Czech leaders. He shouted, waved his fists and even threatened physical violence.

All these things led up to the first four-day showdown between Czech and Russian leaders at Cierna and Brataslava. As previously reported in this column, these talks were far less friendly than indicated by the final handshaking and bear hugs. At one time the arguments were so bitter that the Russians refused to drink Czech coffee and even started calling each other "Mister" instead of "Comrade."

Hawks and Doves

Surprisingly, Premier Kosygin, who seemed mild-mannered at the Glassboro sessions, was one of the toughest. Brezhnev was more conciliatory, though somewhat changeable. Surprisingly, Mikhail Suslov, the Stalinist hardliner, was more conciliatory than the others. He's in charge of the Communist parties in Italy, France, Austria and the rest of Europe, so knew what their reaction would be to any crackdown on Czechoslovakia.

One hardline communist attending the final Bratislava conference was Walter Ulbricht, leader of East Germany and a long bitter skeptic about any cooperation with West Germany, who had noted with concern Czechoslovakia's new trade and tourist interchange and its generally friendly relations with the West German government. One week after Bratislava, he returned to Czechslovakia for the conference at Karlovy Vary Aug. 12, where he proposed conciliatory steps for economic and scientific cooperation and emphasized the importance of Czech-East German understanding. This was quite a change for Ulbricht and the Czechs frankly didn't believe him. They rebuffed his overtures.

This may have been their biggest mistake. Ulbricht flew to Moscow immediately with reports that the Czechs had no intention of carrying out their Bratislava pledges. This was one of the major factors in tipping the scales for a military invasion, as will be detailed in a later column.

Drew Pearson, interviewed by Mike Wallace on the CBS Radio show "Dimension," declared that while an overwhelming majority of Congressmen are honest but that many of them "cut corners."

Asked about the new book, "The Case Against Congress," he wrote with Jack Anderson, Pearson told Wallace that most Congressmen are good men. He added:

"There's a lot of cutting corners, such as relatives on the payroll, such as junkets abroad. There's nothing illegal about this, but still the public gets pretty fed up with things such as taking your office allowance and spending it on your own law office.

"We point out in this book that there 300 Congressman have law firms, and it's pretty hard to differentiate, draw the line, as between when they're practicing for their law firms, and when they're practicing for the government, sometimes on the floor of the Congress."

Wallace then wondered if alcoholism is much of a problem is Washington. Pearson said.

"Not with a majority, but with a minority it is. This is one of the problems of Adam Clayton Powell and one for the problems of Tom Dodd. I've publicly called attention to the fact that Senator Long of Louisiana, who's a very fine Senator, I think, has his problem late in the afternoon and he's told me, "Drew, you're wrong about my like of Bourbon. You're absolutely wrong — it's Scotch!'

"Mendel Rivers has said several times, 'Drew Pearson's got me on the wagon.' That is correct, and he has been on the wagon interminably, but he has fallen off on occasion.

Wallace asked Pearson how he started to specialize in Washington exposes. Pearson explained:

"I think it goes back to the Hoover administration when Bob Allen and I wrote a book, 'The Washington Merry-go-round,' because there was so much news that we saw not being published. Those were the rather complacent days of Herbert Hoover and you have a big majority of the newspapers, then and now, which are Republican and they glance over a lot of things. So we wrote a book, and it was a best seller and we were both fired from our jobs as a result of that book. So we started writing a column daily to write the same kind of exposes."

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In part, President Johnson hasn't stopped bombing North Vietnam because his Secretary of State Dean Rusk remembers Korea and Panmunjom all too well.

At the time of Korea, Rusk was assistant secretary of state for the Far East. He did much of the behind-the-scenes masterminding for the Panmunjom talks.

Rusk and his aides have thought a great deal about those frustrating days. The lessons of Korea are today being applied to Vietnam.

As State Department men who were in on Korea see it now, the greatest mistake the United States made at Panmunjom was to make good will concessions to get the talk going.

The old-timers believe these concessions caused the war to last a year longer and thus led to the unnecessary loss of many American and Allied lives.

These diplomats also believe, in hindsight, the one-sided concessions resulted in an armistice agreement far less favorable than we could otherwise have achieved.

As men who were in on these negotiations analyze it, if Western negotiators agreed to a North Korean proposal without insisting on an equal concession, the North Koreans immediately concluded that our position was deteriorating. They became more aggressive and even less conciliatory. They immediately came up with further demands that we must meet before the discussions could move ahead.

At Panmunjom, for example, the North Koreans insisted the first order of business must be to fix the armistice line. Otherwise the talks could not proceed. Washington became impatient with the delays and agreed. Once the line was agreed to, the military pressure was off the North Koreans. There was no inducement for them to agree to anything. They could, in safety, bring in troops, rebuild their airfields and strengthen their positions so firmly that if the talks broke down it would be too expensive for the United States to resume the advance.

Had the United States stood firm on insisting that the truce line would be the line of contact at the time the armistice was signed, the United Nations forces could have kept up the pressure. Every day of delay would have cost the North Koreans and their Communist Chinese allies. The experts think this would have shortened the talks by 12 months.

By contrast, U.S. negotiators learned that when they dug in and were as hard-nosed as the North Koreans, they got results. They achieved even greater results when the United Nations made the North Koreans pay a price for delay.

Hanoi today insists it won't talk until the United States stops the northern bombing "unconditionally."

An "unconditional" bombing halt would take the military pressure off the North Vietnamese homeland, but not off the South Vietnamese cities and villages or off the U.S. or South Vietnamese or Allied troops. It would signal to Hanoi that the U.S. position was weak. It would convince Ho Chi Minh that if he stalls longer he will get more: it would cause Ho's men to raise their ante.

That is, if the Korean example is valid and if President Johnson halts the bombing, this U.S. concession would lead to further demands before talks could successfully proceed.

This Ho strategy has already been signaled, as noted in a recent newspaper headline which said, "Bomb Halt Alone Won't End Stalemate, Hanoi Indicates."

Majority of Adults Back Chicago Police

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J., Sept. 17 — A person's views on the clash between the Chicago police and the protesters at the time of the Democratic convention depend in large measure on his age, his race and his politics.

A majority of the nation's adults, 56 per cent, approve of the way the Chicago police dealt with the protesters, and 31 per cent disapprove, but backers of Vice President Hubert Humphrey are almost evenly divided in their views.

On the other hand, two in three Nixon supporters approve the police action and the figures goes as high as 71 per cent in the case of backers of third party candidate, George Wallace.

Six in ten whites express approval of the police action, but six in ten Negroes disapprove.

Young adults in their twenties are considerably more inclined to express disapproval of the way the police dealt with the protesters than are older persons.

Interviewing was conducted last weekend, following a week of emotionally charged exchanges between newsmen, politicians, police officials and Mayor Richard J. Daley over the struggle which was witnessed by millions on television.

The following question was asked of a carefully-selected sample of 1507 persons in face-to-face interviews during the period September 3-7:

"Do you approve or disapprove of the way the Chicago police dealt with the young people who were registering their protest against the Vietnam war at the time of the Chicago convention?"

	Approve	Disapprove	No Opinion
National	56	31	13
HHH backers	44	41	15
Nixon backers	63	25	12
Wallace backers	71	20	9
21-29	47	41	12
30-49	58	30	12
50 & over	58	28	14
Whites	59	29	12
Negroes*	18	63	19
Men	61	27	12
Women	52	35	13
East	47	38	15
Midwest	64	27	9
South	59	27	14
Far West	54	31	15

*The results for Negroes are subject to greater fluctuations than the other groupings reported because they are a smaller proportion of the population and therefore a smaller part of the total sample. Nevertheless the results shown indicate that a sizeable majority of all Negroes disapprove.

Here are typical reactions to the controversy:

"For a bunch of intelligent young people who say they want peace, they put on a pretty violent show. I think they got what they deserved." (51-year-old lawyer).

"Anyone who understands young people and their feelings would have handled the situation in a different way. I wouldn't want a son of mine treated the way those kids were." (Wife of a manager of a textile company).

"The police were justified in using force to keep things under control. Many young people were there just to make trouble." (72-year old housewife).

"The police went much further than they needed to go. But at least it was good for the peace movement to show the police in action." (Commercial artist).

All survey results based on sampling procedures are subject to error depending on the number of persons included in the study. The recommended tolerance for nationwide figures in this report is between two to four percentage points.

Israeli Leaders Soft-Pedal Fears of New Middle East War

By JAY BUSHINSKY
Chicago Daily News Foreign Service

TEL AVIV — Israeli leaders are mounting a concerted effort to soft-pedal fears of a new Middle East war being close at hand.

The current "war scare," heightened by last Sunday's unprecedented Israeli-Egyptian sun duel at the Suez Canal, has been sustained by persistent reports of Israeli preparations for an assault on the United Arab Republic.

These reports have been emanating primarily from Cairo and have been echoed in other capitals, especially London. The latest Israeli denial has come from Foreign Minister Abba Eban, who called yesterday for urgent repair of the Israel-U.A.R. cease-fire.

In remarks at a Foreign Press Assoc. luuncheon, Eban addressed himself to the Egyptian people, urging them not to be swayed by talk of new war.

"I would say this to the people of the U.A.R.," Eban said

"Do not let yourselves be stirred or agitated by false reports about Israeli plans for an offensive.

"Such false counsel and agitation and information from sources inside and outside the Middle East have had grave results in the past."

Eban apparently was referring to the weeks preceding last year's six-day war, when the Soviet Union is believed to have advised U.A.R. President Gamal Abdel Nasser that Israel was about to begin a massive attack against Syria.

It was this advise that prompted Nasser to send his legions into the Sanai Peninsula, setting the stage for the June war.

Referring to the recent four-hour-long shootout at the canal, Eban said he prefers to believe that "what has so far occurred are isolated eruptions and that it is not inevitable that the cease-fire should further deteriorate."

In a similar vein, Defense Minister Moshe Dayan told a radio audience that he did not believe last Sunday's artillery warfare marked a new stage in the conflict with Israel."

Nevertheless, troops lining the 100-mile-long waterway have been showing sign of nervousness throughout the week with sniper fire sporadically shattering the artificial stillness along its banks.

Commenting on speculation to the effect that the Soviet Union may be about to send its ships into the canal or to undertake a unilateral canal dredging operation, Eban said he "cannot believe" that a UN member state would take such action.

However, he asserted that the current situation is "grave enough for Israel to be very vigilant."

Eban cited an August, 1967, agreement between Israel and the U.A.R. barring navigation in the canal by all parties.

Turning to the 9-month-long peace mission undertaken by Seeden's Dr. Gunnar V. Jarring, Eban siad the Scandinavian envoy plans to resume his talks with both sides later this month at UN headquarters.

Eban denied that Israel has been taking a rigid tack regarding direct negotiations. "We are not stuck in any dogmatic procecural situation," he said.

On the contrary, he said, a dialog with the Egyptians and Jordanians has been going on through Dr. Jarring's good offices.

Israel has submitted an agenda for peace talks to Dr. Jarring, Eban said, adding that final delineation of postwar boundaries are "open to negotiation."

Freeman Readers Write the Editor

R.F.D. Box 293
West Hurley, New York
September 12, 1968

Editor, The Freeman

The writer, who is a taxpayer and parent of two children in the Onteora School District attended the budget meeting on September 9, 1968 at Boiceville.

In reading your story, I came to the conclusion that your reporter was biased in favor of those opposed to the School Board and the proposed budget. The following points should be made:

1. — The School Board and Administrators were subject to abuse, tirades and criticism out of the realm of common decency.

2. — The meeting degenerated into a "verbal brawl" where those who shouted loudest and longest supposedly made their point, and the more quiet and restrained were shoved out of the way. Questions were unanswered, confusion was compounded and the two "camps" each hardened their opposition to the other.

3. — Dr. Snyder attempted to explain the Contingency Budget by showing slides of the laws. This was a mistake as no-one but lawyers could understand this legal "mumbo jumbo" and even they quarrel about it. However if Dr. Snyder had attempted to give a non-legal interpretation of the laws, and opinions of the State Department of Education, he would have been accused of "lying," "fraud" and various other sins as many in the crowd had no intention of accepting anything said or proposed by the School Superintendent.

4. — In retrospect it is clear that the Board and Administration are either not making themselves heard or the people are not listening. Anger, vilification and hate are the instruments of communication.

5 — Also in retrospect it is clear that the Board and Administration should have cautioned teachers and staff to avoid any vestige of pressure on students and to avoid cynical remarks. However, teachers and staff members must not be subject to stifling censorship, especially when they have the right to their own beliefs and desires in the matter of school budgets and related matters.

6. — The Woodstock Township Taxpayers Association in its approach, gives the impression its only concern is to save taxes. They seem not to care one whit for the needs of the schools or the children, nor do they offer any real alternatives. All too many individuals have this same basic creed and will vote "no" automatically — knowing very well that someone else must take responsibility.

7. — Mrs. Anthony J. De Lisio used the "authority" of an Assistant Commissioner of Education. Unfortunately she does not name the person, nor does she tell under what circumstances the discussion was held. Was the Assistant Commissioner speaking for the Department of Education or simply expressing a personal opinion? I suggest that this person be invited to appear before members of the Onteora School Board, the School Superintendent and members of the press and to repeat his opinions and we would expect those opinions to reflect the opinions and practices of the State Education Department and the Commissioner. Otherwise, the propriety of using quotations from this unknown "expert" is extremely questionable.

8. — The point was made that 90 per cent of the proposed budget is mandated by State Law or by agreements under the Taylor Law. The remaining 10 per cent was the subject of a discussion whose sense was neither caught by this writer nor by the Freeman reporter. One thing is certain — the people have no control over the basic education — they can only vote for some of the "extras that provide convenience for parents and enjoyment and better education for the children.

9. — If the parents are required to pay the fees for book rental and purchase certain supplies, many will find that their costs exceed the increased taxes which they would otherwise pay. The Board and Superintendent have said they have eased the requirements for those people who cannot afford these fees. Unfortunately nothing has been resolved with respect to those persons who will not pay because they are enraged at the Board or School Board and Superintendent Authorities.

10. — Those persons who oppose the budget may win a "Pyrrhic Victory." They may save their taxes, but the result will be that the control of education will move completely to Albany or Washington. When this occurs, local control will disappear and they will have little to say about what taxes they pay or how the education funds are spent.

Please insert a brief item in your paper for a worried mother.

My oldest son, Michael Gary Larkin was critically injured on September 6 in a fatal accident on the River Road. He is now immobile on a Striker Frame at Albany Medical Center. Being only 19 and alone he is rather despondent and depressed. If people who did know him would respond with a card, it would help very much. He is not to have visitors just yet.

The rumors and accounts that followed the accident were incorrect and with God's help he will pull through and walk again.

Thank you from a mother's heart. Also thank all the wonderful friends who have taken loving care of me.

The Gallup Report

Majority of Adults Back Chicago Police

By GEORGE GALLUP

Copyright, 1968, American Institute of Public Opinion. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with written consent of the copyright holders.

PRINCETON, N.J., Sept. 17 — A person's views on the clash between the Chicago police and the protesters at the time of the Democratic convention depend in large measure on his age, his race and his politics.

A majority of the nation's adults, 56 per cent, approve of the way the Chicago police dealt with the protesters, and 31 per cent disapprove, but backers of Vice President Hubert Humphrey are almost evenly divided in their views.

On the other hand, two in three Nixon supporters approve the police action and the figures goes as high as 71 per cent in the case of backers of third party candidate, George Wallace.

Six in ten whites express approval of the police action, but six in ten Negroes disapprove.

Young adults in their twenties are considerably more inclined to express disapproval of the way the police dealt with the protesters than are older persons.

Interviewing was conducted last weekend, following a week of emotionally charged exchanges between newsmen, politicians, police officials and Mayor Richard J. Daley over the struggle which was witnessed by millions on television.

The following question was asked of a carefully-selected sample of 1507 persons in face-to-face interviews during the period September 3-7:

"Do you approve or disapprove of the way the Chicago police dealt with the young people who were registering their protest against the Vietnam war at the time of the Chicago convention?"

	Approve %	Disapprove %	No Opinion %
National	56	31	13
HHH backers	44	41	15
Nixon backers	63	25	12
Wallace backers	71	20	9
21-29	47	41	12
30-49	58	30	12
50 & over	58	28	14
Whites	59	29	12
Negroes*	18	63	19
Men	61	27	12
Women	52	35	13
East	47	38	15
Midwest	64	27	9
South	59	27	14
Far West	54	31	15

*The results for Negroes are subject to greater fluctuations than the other groupings reported because they are a smaller proportion of the population and therefore a smaller part of the total sample. Nevertheless the results shown indicate that a sizeable majority of all Negroes disapprove.

Here are typical reactions to the controversy:

"For a bunch of intelligent young people who say they want peace, they put on a pretty violent show. I think they got what they deserved." (51-year-old lawyer).

"Anyone who understands young people and their feelings would have handled the situation in a different way. I wouldn't want a son of mine treated the way those kids were." (Wife of a manager of a textile company).

"The police were justified in using force to keep things under control. Many young people were there just to make trouble." (72-year old housewife).

"The police went much further than they needed to go. But at least it was good for the peace movement to show the police in action." (Commercial artist).

All survey results based on sampling procedures are subject to error depending on the number of persons included in the study. The recommended tolerance for nationwide figures in this report is between two to four percentage points.

Israeli Leaders Soft-Pedal Fears of New Middle East War

By JAY BUSHINSKY
Chicago Daily News Foreign Service

TEL AVIV — Israeli leaders are mounting a concerted effort to soft-pedal fears of a new Middle East war being close at hand.

The current "war scare," heightened by last Sunday's unprecedented Israeli-Egyptian sun duel at the Suez Canal, has been sustained by persistent reports of Israeli preparations for an assault on the United Arab Republic.

These reports have been emanating primarily from Cairo and have been echoed in other capitals, especially London. The latest Israeli denial has come from Foreign Minister Abba Eban, who called yesterday for urgent repair of the Israel-U.A.R. cease-fire.

In remarks at a Foreign Press Assoc. luuncheon, Eban addressed himself to the Egyptian people, urging them not to be swayed by talk of new war.

"I would say this to the people of the U.A.R.," Eban said

"Do not let yourselves be stirred or agitated by false reports about Israeli plans for an offensive.

"Such false counsel and agitation and information from sources inside and outside the Middle East have had grave results in the past."

Eban apparently was referring to the weeks preceding last year's six-day war, when the Soviet Union is believed to have advised U.A.R. President Gamal Abdel Nasser that Israel was about to begin a massive attack against Syria.

It was this advise that prompted Nasser to send his legions into the Sanai Peninsula, setting the stage for the June war.

Referring to the recent four-hour-long shootout at the canal, Eban said he prefers to believe that "what has so far occurred are isolated eruptions and that it is not inevitable that the cease-fire should further deteriorate."

In a similar vein, Defense Minister Moshe Dayan told a radio audience that he did not believe last Sunday's artillery warfare marked a new stage in the conflict with Israel."

Nevertheless, troops lining the 100-mile-long waterway have been showing sign of nervousness throughout the week with sniper fire sporadically shattering the artificial stillness along its banks.

Commenting on speculation to the effect that the Soviet Union may be about to send its ships into the canal or to undertake a unilateral canal dredging operation, Eban said he "cannot believe" that a UN member state would take such action.

However, he asserted that the current situation is "grave enough for Israel to be very vigilant."

Eban cited an August, 1967, agreement between Israel and the U.A.R. barring navigation in the canal by all parties.

Turning to the 9-month-long peace mission undertaken by Seeden's Dr. Gunnar V. Jarring, Eban siad the Scandinavian envoy plans to resume his talks with both sides later this month at UN headquarters.

Eban denied that Israel has been taking a rigid tack regarding direct negotiations. "We are not stuck in any dogmatic procecural situation," he said.

On the contrary, he said, a dialog with the Egyptians and Jordanians has been going on through Dr. Jarring's good offices.

Israel has submitted an agenda for peace talks to Dr. Jarring, Eban said, adding that final delineation of postwar boundaries are "open to negotiation."

Editor, The Freeman

The writer, who is a taxpayer and parent of two children in the Onteora School District attended the budget meeting on September 9, 1968 at Boiceville.

In reading your story, I came to the conclusion that your reporter was biased in favor of those opposed to the School Board and the proposed budget. The following points should be made:

1. — The School Board and Administrators were subject to abuse, tirades and criticism out of the realm of common decency.

2. — The meeting degenerated into a "verbal brawl" where those who shouted loudest and longest supposedly made their point, and the more quiet and restrained were shoved out of the way. Questions were unanswered, confusion was compounded and the two "camps" each hardened their opposition to the other.

3. — Dr. Snyder attempted to explain the Contingency Budget by showing slides of the laws. This was a mistake as no-one but lawyers could understand this legal "mumbo jumbo" and even they quarrel about it. However if Dr. Snyder had attempted to give a non-legal interpretation of the laws, and opinions of the State Department of Education, he would have been accused of "lying," "fraud" and various other sins as many in the crowd had no intention of accepting anything said or proposed by the School Superintendent.

4. — In retrospect it is clear that the Board and Administration are either not making themselves heard or the people are not listening. Anger, vilification and hate are the instruments of communication.

5 — Also in retrospect it is clear that the Board and Administration should have cautioned teachers and staff to avoid any vestige of pressure on students and to avoid cynical remarks. However, teachers and staff members must not be subject to stifling censorship, especially when they have the right to their own beliefs and desires in the matter of school budgets and related matters.

6. — The Woodstock Township Taxpayers Association in its approach, gives the impression its only concern is to save taxes. They seem not to care one whit for the needs of the schools or the children, nor do they offer any real alternatives. All too many individuals have this same basic creed and will vote "no" automatically — knowing very well that someone else must take responsibility.

7. — Mrs. Anthony J. De Lisio used the "authority" of an Assistant Commissioner of Education. Unfortunately she does not name the person, nor does she tell under what circumstances the discussion was held. Was the Assistant Commissioner speaking for the Department of Education or simply expressing a personal opinion? I suggest that this person be invited to appear before members of the Onteora School Board, the School Superintendent and members of the press and to repeat his opinions and we would expect those opinions to reflect the opinions and practices of the State Education Department and the Commissioner. Otherwise, the propriety of using quotations from this unknown "expert" is extremely questionable.

8. — The point was made that 90 per cent of the proposed budget is mandated by State Law or by agreements under the Taylor Law. The remaining 10 per cent was the subject of a discussion whose sense was neither caught by this writer nor by the Freeman reporter. One thing is certain — the people have no control over the basic education — they can only vote for some of the "extras that provide convenience for parents and enjoyment and better education for the children.

9. — If the parents are required to pay the fees for book rental and purchase certain supplies, many will find that their costs exceed the increased taxes which they would otherwise pay. The Board and Superintendent have said they have eased the requirements for those people who cannot afford these fees. Unfortunately nothing has been resolved with respect to those persons who will not pay because they are enraged at the Board or School Board and Superintendent Authorities.

10. — Those persons who oppose the budget may win a "Pyrrhic Victory." They may save their taxes, but the result will be that the control of education will move completely to Albany or Washington. When this occurs, local control will disappear and they will have little to say about what taxes they pay or how the education funds are spent.

Recounts a Tragic Ordeal: Hiking Friend Died Quietly

Cannon, 60, president of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, lay freezing on a wind and snow ravaged mountain in southwestern Washington as his hiking companion of many years was slowly dying next to him. He recounted from his hospital bed Monday the day and a half tragic ordeal.

By GARNETT CANNON
As Told to Associated Press

YAKIMA, Wash. (AP — She died quietly. Lying there in her sleeping bag being buried by the fiercely windblown snow. We were both freezing. Another hour and she might have lived.

We talked only a short time earlier. She had tried to reach into her pack for a candy bar. But her numb fingers just wouldn't work.

Una V. Davies, 65, of Lake Oswego, Ore., died without complaining.

We talked, wondering how long it would be before help came.

Both Being Buried

A wall of snow was building up between us. We both were being buried. I could only hear her breathing hard. Then I couldn't hear her anymore. I thought she had just dropped off to sleep.

We were hiking with three other companions about 10 miles south of the White Pass summit Saturday afternoon when caught in the fierce storm. The wind was up to about 85 miles per hour. I became exhausted and leaned up against a tree.

The next thing I remember is awakening in the sleeping bag. Miss Davies was about three feet from me in another bag.

Our other companions, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Cowen of Lake Oswego and Bernice Sterns, 43, Portland, had placed us there and gone for help.

My head was sinking down in the snow. I packed some snow under my head for a pillow and I think we dozed off a little.

We were both shivering. Her bag was about three feet away and she kept pushing over toward me. Once I thought she might be able to dig out part of the wall.

Later, after I couldn't hear her breathing, I called to her. I got no response.

I was wondering how I was going to get out of there. I was rubbing my feet, trying to stay warm.

About an hour later the mountain rescue party arrived. I don't know how much longer I could have held out.

Dealer Attends Unique Meeting at Los Angeles

Edward H. Franz of Franz Rambler Sales Inc. participated in the most unique dealer new car meeting in American Motors' history.

He was one of more than 2,100 American Motors dealers "airlifted" to Los Angeles International Airport in a single day to meet with company officials and to view AM's 1969 car lines.

Nineteen giant jets carried the entire American Motors dealer force from all parts of the country to Los Angeles in the morning, and returned them to their starting points late the same day. Franz traveled more than 6,000 miles round trip to attend meeting.

The meeting began even before the dealers arrived in Los Angeles. While on route, they watched a 45 minute product film on AA's Astrocolor, in the first sales meeting in the sky.

Upon arrival at the airport, they were taken to the American Airlines hangar area to see the 1969 Ambassador, Rebel, Rambler, AMX and Javelin cars, and to learn about AM's 1969 sales objective from Roy D. Chapin Jr., board chairman and William V. Luneberg, president.

Dealers had lunch at the airport, saw a performance exhibition by Craig Breedlove, world land-speed record holder, who drove the company's AMX sports car. There was also a display by Hayden Proffitt in the championship Grant-Rebel Dragster. The famous Javelin Racing Team then showed their winning styles of road racing on a simulated road track set up at the airport, and afterward the dealers reboarded the jets to return home.

NATIONAL RECORD — The 200 millionth prescription filled by Walgreens Drug Stores since its founding in 1901 was commemorated when the firm was presented a special mortar and pestle award by E. R. Squibb & Sons in Chicago. The presentation was made to A. A. Borg, (c) president of Walgreens Co., and R. Walgreen Jr., (r) chairman of the board, by Dennis Fill (l) president of the Squibb firm. Walgreens is the first druggist in the nation to reach this record figure. An index to the phenomenal growth of Walgreens prescription volume is that it has filled half of this 200 million prescription total within the last six years. Walgreens presently operates 547 stores in 34 states and Puerto Rico including one at the Kingston Plaza.

Mrs. Keating Dead at 68 In Rochester

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — Mrs. Louise DePuy Keating, wife of Associate Judge Kenneth B. Keating of the State Court of Appeals, died Tuesday at her home in suburban Brighton. She was 68.

A spokesman for the family said Mrs. Keating had been ill for a long time with multiple sclerosis.

Militant Blacks Only Fraction Leaders Say

NEW YORK (AP) — Two Negro leaders have told the Joint Legislative Committee on Crime that black extremists, including the militant Black Panthers Party, represent only a small fraction of the total Negro community.

Catherine Basie, a Queens civic worker and wife of bandleader Count Basie, and Assemblyman Arthur O. Eve, D-Buffalo, testified at a public hearing Tuesday.

They said that despite their small numbers, black extremists have coerced large numbers of Negroes into supporting unruly demonstrations by threatening violence against those who refused.

Eve, a committee member, said he had helped organize a 700-member "black men's club" in Buffalo to counter the influence of extremists and engage them in street debates.

Mrs. Basie told the committee that she had resigned from the South Jamaica Community Council, of which she was president for 16 years, after threats against her life and because "I feel I can no longer function there with the increased violence and the Black Panthers coming in."

In loving memory of our father, Paul Carpino, who passed away 11 years ago today, September 18.
Rest in peace, dear loving father,
Eleven long years have passed away,
You are gone, but still are living,
In the hearts of those who stay.

Memoriam

In loving memory of our mother and grandmother, Mrs. Claire Lockwood, who passed away three years ago, Sept. 18.
Remembrance of one so dear,
Often brings a silent tear,
Thoughts return of things long past,
Time rolls on but memories last.
SON, DAUGHTER-IN-LAW and GRANDCHILDREN

Memoriam

In loving memory of our mother, Mrs. Rose Altomari, who departed 38 years ago, September 18, 1930.
Although from our lives, our mother passed,
Our love for her still lives on.
The love and guidance she gave,
Is a pleasant memory, we'll always save.
Although the Lord has seen it best
To put her sufferings to rest,
So many memories time cannot erase.
There is no one can take her place,
The things she taught, we won't forget,
And in our hearts she liveth yet.

Rich Resigns Post In Rondout District

Harold B. Rich, business manager of the Rondout Valley Central School District and clerk of the district's board of education, handed in his resignation at last night's meeting of the board. It will take effect after Nov. 30.

Rich has been associated with schools in the Rondout area since 1945.

The board ahd been given notice of the resignation last July, Rich said.

Rich has been associated with schools in the area since 1945-46, when he served as a board of education member and clerk of the board at the old Kerhonkson Union School. He became connected with the Rondout Valley Central School District as part-time clerk in 1956, and has been associated with the district full-time since 1959.

Prior to 1959, he conducted an accounting business in Kerhonkson. He stated that he plans to continue accounting, particularly income tax work, on a part-time basis after his retirement. He said he also expects to travel, "while I can still enjoy life."

Rich lives in Kerhonkson with his wife. The couple has one son.

Other action at the board meeting, the first since a special meeting held last month to decide on a 1,500 name petition calling for a revote on the extra-curricular activities issue, included the decision to retain bus service on an equal level as last year.

Bus transportation of students had been as big an issue as student activities, if not more. Following defeat of two proposed 1968-69 budgets, the board fell back on an austerity budget that needed no voter approval.

Bus service would have been cut in the measure, but was reinstated by voters in an option vote held in August. Voting that followed the petition for student activities reinstated that issue in the first part of September.

The board also approved two surveys of the district financial programs. One, according to Rich, is a survey of the school's monetary system, and the other is a "long term" financial survey to be conducted with state assistance.

The resignation of Miss Nancy Schoonmaker, a clerk in the high school was also accepted.

Arrested on Aug. 24 by Kingston Police, Daniel R. Brady, 20, of 212 North Keeler Street, Chicago, Ill., today pleaded guilty before City Judge Hubert A. Richter to a charge of criminal trespass. He was sentenced to 90 days in the county jail and received credit for time served.

County Investigator Harold T. Bowers is continuing the investigation.

Woodstock OKs

"My children were chased from the pump house by nude swimmers", a mother complained.

The word "hippie" was carefully avoided during the first part of the meeting and Supervisor Houst said that the law was not against "anyone in particular."

But those who backed him in his call for the new law did not hesitate to place the blame for trespassing problems where they felt it belonged.

Exception was taken by a man who asked everyone to "stop pussyfooting around. What you're really talking about is, Let's get the hippies." He argued that because he as a property owner might not be able to be contacted, the people using his property are called "guilty."

"What you are now saying," he added, "is that a man, because he commits an act, does not have the right to face his accusers."

"Why don't you put up a sign 'Hippies invited'" another man shouted.

Someone asked Supervisor Houst if it were true that people are afraid to sign complaints. Houst replied yes.

A constable volunteered that if residents call the police, the police will come whether or not the property owners have previously attempted to rid their land of trespassers.

Asked if the town board had contacted a lawyer for legal advice on the ordinance, Houst replied that two attorneys had been consulted.

Complaints of health hazards due to the lack of public sanitary facilities were registered. Other complaints were of verbal abuse by hippies experienced by residents.

"It might not be a perfect law but I sure as hell think we should give it a try," a man concluded.

IMPRESSED JUDGE: Anthony M. Arden embezzled $605,000 from a bank where he worked, but a judge was so impressed with his otherwise spotless record that he sentenced him to only six months in prison Tuesday.

Booklets Aid Students in Paltz School

Learning Together, A Handbook for Students, has been distributed to all students in the New Paltz Middle School.

This handbook contains information on the objectives of the New Paltz Middle School, school hours, class periods, textbooks, activities, marking, and many other things of interest to the students. It also contains floor plans of the building and suggestions which will help new students in the school.

This student handbook was prepared by Mrs. Marjorie Ackert, the guidance counselor in the New Paltz Middle School. Parents of students may wish to become familiar with their son's or daughter's handbook.

A second booklet has been prepared by Mrs. Ackert for members of the faculty. This is entitled Guidance in the New Paltz Middle School. It tells of the services of the guidance department and the pupil personnel staff. Information on the student's cumulative records and reporting to parents is included.

Covers for both booklets were designed by Keith Ingersoll, art teacher in the Middle School.

Forfeits Bail In Ellenville

A 48-year-old man who was arrested Sept. 9 on charges of jostling - pickpocketing and harassment as the result of an incident at the Town Tavern in Ellenville, failed to appear before Village Justice Ronald Elias and a bond of $125 was forfeited.

A warrant was issued for Earl Johnson of Greenfield Park, who was accused of taking a wallet containing $90 from Floyd Martin of Fallsburgh at the Tavern. The harassment charge stemmed from a complaint that Johnson, in his flight from the tavern, knocked down William Jones of Ellenville.

Edward Green, of 11 Hermance Street, who previously was charged by Ellenville police with drugs violations and loitering, was arraigned last night before Judge Elias on a charge of suppressing evidence. He was remanded to the county jail and hearing was adjourned until Oct. 9.

Blast Rips Porch Off Prison Site

MONTREAL (UPI)— An explosion early today tore a back porch off the home of the Bordeaux Jail governor, Albert Tanguay.

Tanguay, his wife and son were in the house, located across from the prison, at the time of the explosion, but were unharmed.

Windows were smashed by the impact of the explosion, believed caused by a bomb placed under the rear porch leading into the kitchen.

Mrs. Keating Dead at 68 In Rochester

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — Mrs. Louise DePuy Keating, wife of Associate Judge Kenneth B. Keating of the State Court of Appeals, died Tuesday at her home in suburban Brighton. She was 68.

A spokesman for the family said Mrs. Keating had been ill for a long time with multiple sclerosis.

A native of Rochester, Mrs. Keating was survived by her husband, a daughter and a brother.

Keating, who lost his U.S. Senate seat in the 1964 election to Robert F. Kennedy, previously served in the House of Representatives and was Monroe County's first senator.

Militant Blacks Only Fraction Leaders Say

NEW YORK (AP) — Two Negro leaders have told the Joint Legislative Committee on Crime that black extremists, including the militant Black Panthers Party, represent only a small fraction of the total Negro community.

Catherine Basie, a Queens civic worker and wife of bandleader Count Basie, and Assemblyman Arthur O. Eve, D-Buffalo, testified at a public hearing Tuesday.

They said that despite their small numbers, black extremists have coerced large numbers of Negroes into supporting unruly demonstrations by threatening violence against those who refused.

Eve, a committee member, said he had helped organize a 700-member "black men's club" in Buffalo to counter the influence of extremists and engage them in street debates.

Mrs. Basie told the committee that she had resigned from the South Jamaica Community Council, of which she was president for 16 years, after threats against her life and because "I feel I can no longer function there with the increased violence and the Black Panthers coming in."

Memoriam

In loving memory of our father, Paul Carpino, who passed away 11 years ago today, September 18.
Rest in peace, dear loving father,
Eleven long years have passed away,
You are gone, but still are living,
In the hearts of those who stay.

Memoriam

In loving memory of our mother and grandmother, Mrs. Claire Lockwood, who passed away three years ago, Sept. 18.
Remembrance of one so dear,
Often brings a silent tear,
Thoughts return of things long past,
Time rolls on but memories last.
SON, DAUGHTER-IN-LAW and GRANDCHILDREN

Memoriam

In loving memory of our mother, Mrs. Rose Altomari, who departed 38 years ago, September 18, 1930.
Although from our lives, our mother passed,
Our love for her still lives on.
The love and guidance she gave,
Is a pleasant memory, we'll always save.
Although the Lord has seen it best
To put her sufferings to rest,
So many memories time cannot erase.
There is no one can take her place,
The things she taught, we won't forget,
And in our hearts she liveth yet.

Rich Resigns Post In Rondout District

Harold B. Rich, business manager of the Rondout Valley Central School District and clerk of the district's board of education, handed in his resignation at last night's meeting of the board. It will take effect after Nov. 30.

Rich has been associated with schools in the Rondout area since 1945.

The board ahd been given notice of the resignation last July, Rich said.

Rich has been associated with schools in the area since 1945-46, when he served as a board of education member and clerk of the board at the old Kerhonkson Union School. He became connected with the Rondout Valley Central School District as part-time clerk in 1956, and has been associated with the district full-time since 1959.

Prior to 1959, he conducted an accounting business in Kerhonkson. He stated that he plans to continue accounting, particularly income tax work, on a part-time basis after his retirement. He said he also expects to travel, "while I can still enjoy life."

Rich lives in Kerhonkson with his wife. The couple has one son.

Other action at the board meeting, the first since a special meeting held last month to decide on a 1,500 name petition calling for a revote on the extra-curricular activities issue, included the decision to retain bus service on an equal level as last year.

Bus transportation of students had been as big an issue as student activities, if not more. Following defeat of two proposed 1968-69 budgets, the board fell back on an austerity budget that needed no voter approval.

Bus service would have been cut in the measure, but was reinstated by voters in an option vote held in August. Voting that followed the petition for student activities reinstated that issue in the first part of September.

The board also approved two surveys of the district financial programs. One, according to Rich, is a survey of the school's monetary system, and the other is a "long term" financial survey to be conducted with state assistance.

The resignation of Miss Nancy Schoonmaker, a clerk in the high school was also accepted.

Local Man Faces Federal Charges

Cornelius O'Neill, 35, of Pine Grove Avenue, who was arrested Monday on warrants charging him with failure to appear in City Court to face a charge of driving while intoxicated and, a federal probation violation, today was turned over to a U.S. marshal. O'Neill was taken to Foley Square in New York City for the federal count.

Arrested on Aug. 24 by Kingston Police, Daniel R. Brady, 20, of 212 North Keeler Street, Chicago, Ill., today pleaded guilty before City Judge Hubert A. Richter to a charge of criminal trespass. He was sentenced to 90 days in the county jail and received credit for time served.

A second charge accusing Brady of reckless endangerment, second degree, was dismissed.

Burglary Attempt

An attempted burglary at Blue Stone Lodge, Quarryville, Town of Saugerties, sometime after closing Wednesday morning was reported to the County Sheriff's Office.

Deputy Herbert Every said the glass in the front door of the restaurant was smashed and blood stains were found all over the door steps. He said entry to the building was not gained. The establishment is owned by Michael McGraw, the deputy said.

County Investigator Harold T. Bowers is continuing the investigation.

"My children were chased from the pump house by nude swimmers", a mother complained.

The word "hippie" was carefully avoided during the first part of the meeting and Supervisor Houst said that the law was not against "anyone in particular."

But those who backed him in his call for the new law did not hesitate to place the blame for trespassing problems where they felt it belonged.

Exception was taken by a man who asked everyone to "stop pussyfooting around. What you're really talking about is, Let's get the hippies." He argued that because he as a property owner might not be able to be contacted, the people using his property are called "guilty."

"What you are now saying," he added, "is that a man, because he commits an act, does not have the right to face his accusers."

"Why don't you put up a sign 'Hippies invited'" another man shouted.

Someone asked Supervisor Houst if it were true that people are afraid to sign complaints. Houst replied yes.

A constable volunteered that if residents call the police, the police will come whether or not the property owners have previously attempted to rid their land of trespassers.

Asked if the town board had contacted a lawyer for legal advice on the ordinance, Houst replied that two attorneys had been consulted.

Complaints of health hazards due to the lack of public sanitary facilities were registered. Other complaints were of verbal abuse by hippies experienced by residents.

"It might not be a perfect law but I sure as hell think we should give it a try," a man concluded.

IMPRESSED JUDGE: Anthony M. Arden embezzled $605,000 from a bank where he worked, but a judge was so impressed with his otherwise spotless record that he sentenced him to only six months in prison Tuesday.

Booklets Aid Students in Paltz School

Learning Together, A Handbook for Students, has been distributed to all students in the New Paltz Middle School.

This handbook contains information on the objectives of the New Paltz Middle School, school hours, class periods, textbooks, activities, marking, and many other things of interest to the students. It also contains floor plans of the building and suggestions which will help new students in the school.

This student handbook was prepared by Mrs. Marjorie Ackert, the guidance counselor in the New Paltz Middle School. Parents of students may wish to become familiar with their son's or daughter's handbook.

A second booklet has been prepared by Mrs. Ackert for members of the faculty. This is entitled Guidance in the New Paltz Middle School. It tells of the services of the guidance department and the pupil personnel staff. Information on the student's cumulative records and reporting to parents is included.

Covers for both booklets were designed by Keith Ingersoll, art teacher in the Middle School.

Forfeits Bail In Ellenville

A 48-year-old man who was arrested Sept. 9 on charges of jostling - pickpocketing and harassment as the result of an incident at the Town Tavern in Ellenville, failed to appear before Village Justice Ronald Elias and a bond of $125 was forfeited.

A warrant was issued for Earl Johnson of Greenfield Park, who was accused of taking a wallet containing $90 from Floyd Martin of Fallsburgh at the Tavern. The harassment charge stemmed from a complaint that Johnson, in his flight from the tavern, knocked down William Jones of Ellenville.

Edward Green, of 11 Hermance Street, who previously was charged by Ellenville police with drugs violations and loitering, was arraigned last night before Judge Elias on a charge of suppressing evidence. He was remanded to the county jail and hearing was adjourned until Oct. 9.

5-County SP Troop Opening Orange Site

Staff members of Troop F, the newest unit in the New York State Police, will be hosts on Sunday when the $1.3 million headquarters at Middletown is open for public inspection.

A large number of exhibits demonstrating the work of the State Police has been prepared for the open house event, which will begin at 3 p.m. and continue throughout the afternoon.

The new troop, which was activated last month, is serving a five-county area, including Greene, Ulster, Sullivan, Orange and Rockland. It completes a plan begun several years ago for a reorganization of troop areas to provide for more compact and easily manageable troop jurisdictions. A second new troop, Troop E, began operations a year ago, with headquarters at Canadaigua.

In announcing the open house plans, Major John W. Monahan, troop commander, expressed the hope that "everyone in the troop area who can possibly do so will take advantage of the opportunity to go through this new facility."

Preceding the open house a luncheon for invited public officials whose duties are related to law enforcement will be held in the garage area of the headquarters. It will be addressed by Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz.

Visitors at the open house will be able to see the new State Police helicopter, the mobile command - communications vehicle, and demonstrations of firearms shooting and the operation of radar. They will also be able to test their braking ability on two driver reaction machines. Exhibits will also show the work of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation and scuba diving and other State Police equipment. Among other attractions will be two bloodhounds from the Troop K kennels at Hawthorne.

The Troop F Headquarters is on Crystal Run Road and may be reached from Route 17 by using exit 122.

'Wait and See' Is View on Milk Hike

By JEAN F. DOLAN

"Wait and see" is the view of most local dairies on the most recent increase in bulk milk prices.

For the third time this year, per hundred weight prices of milk in the New York-New Jersey area were hiked by order of the U.S. Department of Agriculture Marketing Administrator. The latest increase of .24 cents per hundred weight went into effect Sept. 15. In all, boosts this year have placed the hundred weight price for bulk milk at 6.73 cents as compared to last year's 6.11 cents.

Absorb Increase

Most firms dealing with the retail trade have attempted to absorb the increases rather than passing them on to the consumer. Some local dairies are meeting the increase through cutbacks in delivery.

Boice Brothers Dairy, the only local dairy serving the Kingston area for 54 years, plans to try and hold to the present price. Some increases have been experienced on by-products which are purchased wholesale from other firms. However, milk produced on the local farm will remain at the same rate to the consumer.

Must Be Upped

Other dairies specializing in home delivery have adopted a wait-and-see approach to upping milk prices at the present time. Increases may prove necessary at a later date.

Some dairy firms, such as Silver Lake of Red Hook and Kingston, feel that the increase "must be reflected" in retail prices. Amount of the hike is under study at the present time.

Gotham Board May Rule on CATV Movies

NEW YORK (AP) — A State Supreme Court justice has cleared the way for the City Board of Estimate to rule on whether cable television companies should be allowed to show commercial-free movies to subscribers.

Justice Francis J. Bloustein rejected Tuesday a suit by several groups representing motion picture theater owners and the motion picture operators' union attacking the right of the Board of Estimate to rule on the franchise application.

The board was expected to consider the application tomorrow.

Bloustein said the plaintiffs' case did not warrant "the drastic remedy of injunction."

Charles F. Dolan, president of Manhattan Cable Television, said that if the Board approved a franchise, his company would begin showing "classic films" to subscribers on Monday evening. Such showings, Dolan contended, "will stimulate public interest in the film medium."

The other CATV company seeking a franchise is Manhattan CATV Corp., a subsidiary of Tele-Prompter.

The CATV companies charge about $20 for installation of their receiving device and about $5 a month rental for their services.

World's Dizziest Chickens Helping U.S. Space Plans

DAVIS, Calif. (AP) — The dizziest 96 chickens in the world are helping U.S. scientists study the physical problems which astronauts will face in long interplanetary trips.

"It's possible to paint a very dismal picture of what lies ahead for astronauts on the basis of our work," says Dr. Arthur H. Smith of the University of California at Davis.

But there's no reason to cancel the space program, he said Tuesday, because "necessary steps will be taken to offset disturbances for the human body."

His experiments, in which the roosters rotate continually with 10-minute feeding breaks once a day, are sponsored by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The roosters spin at 30 revolutions per minute on a double deck centrifuge. On the centrifuge, the weight of the roosters triples, because of increased gravitational pull on them, scientists say.

Smith, a physiologist, said "man in space for long periods will find his body decalcified.

"He will not be able to stand up without fracturing bones," he said. "All his muscles will shrivel up including those around his blood vessels.

"He will be overloaded with fat which he may not be able to use."

He said certain drugs can counteract the physiological problems man is sure to encounter. The chickens are good guinea pigs, he said, because their relative heart-to-head distance is similar to man's, they stand erect, and have other similarities in the circulatory system.

Voter League Plans Annual Finance Drive

Members of the League of Women Voters of Saugerties are formulating plans for the League's annual finance drive to be held Wednesday, Sept. 18. The League, a non-partisan organization established to promote informed and active participation of citizens in their government, is supported by members' dues and by contributions from non-members. Mrs. Charles Steele, finance chairman, has been contacting area businesses by mail, and during the one-day drive, Saugerties League members will visit local individuals to ask for their support and to explain the purpose and program of the League.

Since one of the most important of League activities is informing voters about registration, candidates, and issues, the Saugerties League is again preparing a voters' guide for the November elections in conjunction with the three other Ulster County Leagues. The League also again will be distributing "Facts for Voters," a pamphlet crammed with useful non-partisan information for voters. In October, the Saugerties League, together with the Saugerties Jaycees, plans to hold two candidates' nights.

In addition to its information service to voters, the League selects local, state, and national issues for study, decision, and action in the public interest. It tries to find workable solutions and to build public opinion and legislative support for them. Since it is a non-partisan organization, the League neither supports nor opposes any political candidate or party, but supports or opposes only issues after a thorough study of these has been made. As its local study item, the Saugerties League is continuing its two-year "Study and Evaluation of the Budgets of the Town and Village of Saugerties." It has joined the other three Ulster County Leagues in a study of "Forms of County Government."

Voter League Plans Annual Finance Drive

Members of the League of Women Voters of Saugerties are formulating plans for the League's annual finance drive to be held Wednesday, Sept. 18. The League, a non-partisan organization established to promote informed and active participation of citizens in their government, is supported by members' dues and by contributions from non-members. Mrs. Charles Steele, finance chairman, has been contacting area businesses by mail, and during the one-day drive, Saugerties League members will visit local individuals to ask for their support and to explain the purpose and program of the League.

Since one of the most important of League activities is informing voters about registration, candidates, and issues, the Saugerties League is again preparing a voters' guide for the November elections in conjunction with the three other Ulster County Leagues. The League also again will be distributing "Facts for Voters," a pamphlet crammed with useful non-partisan information for voters. In October, the Saugerties League, together with the Saugerties Jaycees, plans to hold two candidates' nights.

In addition to its information service to voters, the League selects local, state, and national issues for study, decision, and action in the public interest. It tries to find workable solutions and to build public opinion and legislative support for them. Since it is a non-partisan organization, the League neither supports nor opposes any political candidate or party, but supports or opposes only issues after a thorough study of these has been made. As its local study item, the Saugerties League is continuing its two-year "Study and Evaluation of the Budgets of the Town and Village of Saugerties." It has joined the other three Ulster County Leagues in a study of "Forms of County Government."

Moscow in Warning On West German Acts

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union warned today it was ready to take "the necessary effective measues to curb the dangerous activities of neo-nazism and militarism" in West Germany.

The warning was contained in a commentary in the Communist party newspaper Pravda and did not mention the word "invasion." Russia has at least 20 army divisions poised along the West German border.

Commentator Vladlen Kuznetsov said Russia had the right under the United Nations charter and the Potsdam agreements to "prevent the revival of German militarism and Nazism," in West Germany.

"The Soviet Union," he said, "is ready together with other peace-loving states to take, if the need arises, the necessary effective measures to curb the dangerous activities of neo-nazism and militarism" in West Germany.

The Soviets had at least 20 divisions in East Germany before the Aug. 20 invasion of Czechoslovakia. During the occupation of Czechoslovakia, they have added some along the Czechoslovak - West German frontier.

Russia has blamed West Germany for fomenting anti-socialist factions in Czechoslovakia and accused Bonn of supplying the Czechoslovak "counterrevolutionaries" with arms, ammunition and advice.

On Sept. 2, an official Soviet note to West German Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger warned him to stop "meddling" in East Europe or "face the consequences."

Under the Potsdam agreement, the Soviet Union claims the right to interfere in any of the old postwar occupation zones of Britain, France or the United States to prevent the revival of "Nazi and militarist activity or propaganda."

Organ Taken From Auto in Port Ewen

The theft of an $850 Farfessa organ taken from a locked car during the night at Port Ewen was reported to the County Sheriff's Office by Donald Newton of 200 Broadway, that community.

Newton told Deputy Donald Van Aken that he had picked up the organ at 10 p.m. last night at the Tropical Inn and had put it on the rear seat of his car. He parked the car in his driveway and locked up the vehicle.

At 7:25 this morning he noticed the organ was missing. There was no forced entry. Someone obviously used a key, he told the deputy.

Further investigation into the weekend burglary at Port Ewen Elementary School by the County Seriff's Department revealed two other musical instruments are missing in addition to the $300 Sandberg tape recorder.

Robert Graves, school principal reported to the Sheriff's Office Tuesday that the tape recorder was missing and there was no evidence of forced entry.

County Investigator Harold T. Bowers of the Sheriff's Office, upon investigation yesterday and a check of the music room, discovered that a Bundy clarinet in a dark green case and a trumpet are also missing. A violin was taken out of a case but not stolen, Bowers said. He noted someone used a key to gain entry into the music room.

Two Truckers Are Arrested On Thruway

Routine checks by Thruway state troopers resulted in the arrest of two truck drivers, one charged with possessing dangerous drugs and the other with illegal possession of a firearm. Both were booked for violations of the State Labor Law for having no log book.

Charles Martin Wellnitz, 37, of Janeville, Wisc., was stopped by Trooper J.D. Devine yesterday and later booked for criminal possession of a dangerous drug-emphetamine. Wellnitz had no log book on the truck.

Arraigned before Catskill Town Justice George Carl, the truck driver pleaded guilty and was fined $25 for the drugs violation. He also was fined $10 for the labor law violation.

Trooper Devine also arrested James Shannon Holly Sr., 45, of Charleston, S.C., and charged him with illegal possession of a firearm. He was fined $25 after pleading guilty before Ulster Town Justice Arthur A. Reilly. Holly also paid a $10 fine for a labor law violation. Trooper Devine said the truck driver was in possession of a .38 caliber revolver.

Drives Her Motorcycle

Home Ec Teacher Quite Popular

Small wonder.

Tuesday, for example, Mrs. Short, her blond hair trailing below her shoulders, false gold eyebrows glittering in the sunlight — wearing sandals, light blue slacks, a silver Nehru jacket and love beads — roared into classroom on a motorcycle.

The 50 wide - eyed students were entranced as the mother of three zipped down the sloping stairway to the lectern in the school of Journalism's electronic classroom.

After she distributed bubble gum to her students, psychedelic-type films were projected simultaneously on three walls in the room, 11 projectors beamed slides to the ceiling, and two overhead projectors bathed the room in brilliant color patterns.

A light show had been added to the curriculum.

"This is a required course," she told a reporter, "so I have to keep students from cutting classes.

"And you know, they never do cut my classes, because they don't want to miss out on any of it."

"You've got to turn the students on," she said, and besides, "education should be interesting and home economics isn't all cooking and sewing."

"Most of these kids were brought up on television, so why should we fall back on chalk and blackboards?" she added. "I'm just using the latest instructional technology, and I try to make things exciting."

She told her students that nutrition could be tied in with life, love, money and sex—"and we hope this will be a fun experience as well as a learning experience."

Tuesday's class, however, was just an introduction, she noted, and the course itself "won't all be like this."

Set Speed Limit

J. Burch McMorran, state commissioner of transportation, said today that new traffic control orders by the State Department of Transportation establishing a 40 mile an hour speed limit on Route 9W at Highland for a distance of five tenths of a mile.

Searching Study Due Next Year Of the Nation's Tax Picture

WASHINGTON (AP) — No matter who is president or which party controls the House, the complicated and much-amended tax code is due for a searching study and possible revision next year.

Both Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, and Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., who is in line to be chairman if the Republicans take over the House, say they favor a full-scale review of the Internal Revenue Code.

Many Hearings

In separate interviews, both said they would put the review high on the committee's order of business and were prepared to schedule weeks, possibly months, of hearings.

Although some minor modifications were made in the code in connection with the 1964 tax reductions, there has been no extensive review of the tax laws since 1954.

Over the years a host of special provisions have been attached to the code, many of which are said by critics to be loopholes for the well-to-do and the well-advised.

Demands were made in Congress earlier this year in connection with passage of the 10 per cent income surtax for revisions to allow for additional revenue without a general tax increase.

But the Treasury pleaded against what promised to be controversial and drawn-out study of the code at the time because of what it said was the urgent need for immediate passage of the surtax.

The Treasury did promise to recommend to Congress possible changes in the law. Congressional leaders don't expect the recommendations until after the November elections.

There has been no official disclosure of what the Treasury may recommend, but it is not expected to call for abolition or drastic reduction of the controversial 37½ per cent oil depletion allowance.

Other Likely Subjects

Other likely subjects for review include:

—Revisions in the capital gains tax, including possible changes in when it would be imposed and on the length of time assets can be held before straight income tax is applied in place of the capital gains tax.

—Limitations on income splitting within a family. Revision of estate and gift taxes so as to make it less attractive to give away property during lifetime in order to lower the estate tax ultimate heirs will pay.

—Tightening the regulations on tax-exempt foundations, which have already been the subject of extensive congressional studies.

—Limiting the present opportunity of reducing the taxes on a business by organizing it into several corporations.

—Possibly a proposal for a minimum income tax on higher incomes so that no one could escape taxation entirely as for example, by investing exclusively in tax-exempt municipal bonds. Such a proposal was incorporated in the Democratic party platform.

—In general, changes designed to lighten the tax burden at the lowest end of the income scale. A precedent of sorts may have been set this year when the lowest brackets were exempted from the surtax.

Moscow in Warning On West German Acts

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union warned today it was ready to take "the necessary effective measues to curb the dangerous activities of neo-nazism and militarism" in West Germany.

The warning was contained in a commentary in the Communist party newspaper Pravda and did not mention the word "invasion." Russia has at least 20 army divisions poised along the West German border.

Commentator Vladlen Kuznetsov said Russia had the right under the United Nations charter and the Potsdam agreements to "prevent the revival of German militarism and Nazism," in West Germany.

"The Soviet Union," he said, "is ready together with other peace-loving states to take, if the need arises, the necessary effective measures to curb the dangerous activities of neo-nazism and militarism" in West Germany.

The Soviets had at least 20 divisions in East Germany before the Aug. 20 invasion of Czechoslovakia. During the occupation of Czechoslovakia, they have added some along the Czechoslovak - West German frontier.

Russia has blamed West Germany for fomenting anti-socialist factions in Czechoslovakia and accused Bonn of supplying the Czechoslovak "counterrevolutionaries" with arms, ammunition and advice.

On Sept. 2, an official Soviet note to West German Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger warned him to stop "meddling" in East Europe or "face the consequences."

Under the Potsdam agreement, the Soviet Union claims the right to interfere in any of the old postwar occupation zones of Britain, France or the United States to prevent the revival of "Nazi and militarist activity or propaganda."

Organ Taken From Auto in Port Ewen

The theft of an $850 Farfessa organ taken from a locked car during the night at Port Ewen was reported to the County Sheriff's Office by Donald Newton of 200 Broadway, that community.

Newton told Deputy Donald Van Aken that he had picked up the organ at 10 p.m. last night at the Tropical Inn and had put it on the rear seat of his car. He parked the car in his driveway and locked up the vehicle.

At 7:25 this morning he noticed the organ was missing. There was no forced entry. Someone obviously used a key, he told the deputy.

Further investigation into the weekend burglary at Port Ewen Elementary School by the County Seriff's Department revealed two other musical instruments are missing in addition to the $300 Sandberg tape recorder.

Robert Graves, school principal reported to the Sheriff's Office Tuesday that the tape recorder was missing and there was no evidence of forced entry.

County Investigator Harold T. Bowers of the Sheriff's Office, upon investigation yesterday and a check of the music room, discovered that a Bundy clarinet in a dark green case and a trumpet are also missing. A violin was taken out of a case but not stolen, Bowers said. He noted someone used a key to gain entry into the music room.

Two Truckers Are Arrested On Thruway

Routine checks by Thruway state troopers resulted in the arrest of two truck drivers, one charged with possessing dangerous drugs and the other with illegal possession of a firearm. Both were booked for violations of the State Labor Law for having no log book.

Charles Martin Wellnitz, 37, of Janeville, Wisc., was stopped by Trooper J.D. Devine yesterday and later booked for criminal possession of a dangerous drug-emphetamine. Wellnitz had no log book on the truck.

Arraigned before Catskill Town Justice George Carl, the truck driver pleaded guilty and was fined $25 for the drugs violation. He also was fined $10 for the labor law violation.

Trooper Devine also arrested James Shannon Holly Sr., 45, of Charleston, S.C., and charged him with illegal possession of a firearm. He was fined $25 after pleading guilty before Ulster Town Justice Arthur A. Reilly. Holly also paid a $10 fine for a labor law violation. Trooper Devine said the truck driver was in possession of a .38 caliber revolver.

Drives Her Motorcycle

Home Ec Teacher Quite Popular

Small wonder.

Tuesday, for example, Mrs. Short, her blond hair trailing below her shoulders, false gold eyebrows glittering in the sunlight — wearing sandals, light blue slacks, a silver Nehru jacket and love beads — roared into classroom on a motorcycle.

The 50 wide - eyed students were entranced as the mother of three zipped down the sloping stairway to the lectern in the school of Journalism's electronic classroom.

After she distributed bubble gum to her students, psychedelic-type films were projected simultaneously on three walls in the room, 11 projectors beamed slides to the ceiling, and two overhead projectors bathed the room in brilliant color patterns.

A light show had been added to the curriculum.

"This is a required course," she told a reporter, "so I have to keep students from cutting classes.

"And you know, they never do cut my classes, because they don't want to miss out on any of it."

"You've got to turn the students on," she said, and besides, "education should be interesting and home economics isn't all cooking and sewing."

"Most of these kids were brought up on television, so why should we fall back on chalk and blackboards?" she added. "I'm just using the latest instructional technology, and I try to make things exciting."

She told her students that nutrition could be tied in with life, love, money and sex—"and we hope this will be a fun experience as well as a learning experience."

Tuesday's class, however, was just an introduction, she noted, and the course itself "won't all be like this."

Searching Study Due Next Year Of the Nation's Tax Picture

WASHINGTON (AP) — No matter who is president or which party controls the House, the complicated and much-amended tax code is due for a searching study and possible revision next year.

Both Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, and Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., who is in line to be chairman if the Republicans take over the House, say they favor a full-scale review of the Internal Revenue Code.

Many Hearings

In separate interviews, both said they would put the review high on the committee's order of business and were prepared to schedule weeks, possibly months, of hearings.

Although some minor modifications were made in the code in connection with the 1964 tax reductions, there has been no extensive review of the tax laws since 1954.

Over the years a host of special provisions have been attached to the code, many of which are said by critics to be loopholes for the well-to-do and the well-advised.

Demands were made in Congress earlier this year in connection with passage of the 10 per cent income surtax for revisions to allow for additional revenue without a general tax increase.

But the Treasury pleaded against what promised to be controversial and drawn-out study of the code at the time because of what it said was the urgent need for immediate passage of the surtax.

The Treasury did promise to recommend to Congress possible changes in the law. Congressional leaders don't expect the recommendations until after the November elections.

There has been no official disclosure of what the Treasury may recommend, but it is not expected to call for abolition or drastic reduction of the controversial 37½ per cent oil depletion allowance.

Other Likely Subjects

Other likely subjects for review include:

—Revisions in the capital gains tax, including possible changes in when it would be imposed and on the length of time assets can be held before straight income tax is applied in place of the capital gains tax.

—Limitations on income splitting within a family. Revision of estate and gift taxes so as to make it less attractive to give away property during lifetime in order to lower the estate tax ultimate heirs will pay.

—Tightening the regulations on tax-exempt foundations, which have already been the subject of extensive congressional studies.

—Limiting the present opportunity of reducing the taxes on a business by organizing it into several corporations.

—Possibly a proposal for a minimum income tax on higher incomes so that no one could escape taxation entirely as for example, by investing exclusively in tax-exempt municipal bonds. Such a proposal was incorporated in the Democratic party platform.

—In general, changes designed to lighten the tax burden at the lowest end of the income scale. A precedent of sorts may have been set this year when the lowest brackets were exempted from the surtax.

Caribbean Now Rated High As Vacation Area

By MURRAY J. BROWN

ST. JOHN, U.S. Virgin Islands (UPI)—"Unspoiled" is probably one of the most popular adjectives in travel borchures extolling the attractions of whatever destination they are promoting.

But with the tidal wave of tourism which has swept across the Caribbean, it has become increasingly difficult for Americans to find nearby island in the sun where time appears to have stood still.

High-rise hotels have sprouted like mushrooms after heavy rains on islands which not too long ago were little more than tangled tropical forests marching down to surf-swept beaches where sea birds nested in solitude.

And along with them came many of the amenities of modern life that Americans expect—pools and beach cabana clubs, black-tie cabarets and gourmet restaurants, and air conditioning and television. Also taxis and rental cars and other vehicles, and traffic problems.

Jammed Preserves

There is no doubt the development and expansion of tourist facilities in the West Indies helped transform what once was the private wintering preserve of the well-to-do into a prime year-round destinaton for even those who vacation on a budget.

The U.S. Virgin Islands are an outstanding example of the boom in tourism. In 1962, they played host to about 284,000 visitors. Last year, they welcomed nearly 745,000. The predictions for 1968 run close to 900,000.

St. Thomas, with its excellent harbor and international airport, is still the most popular. But St. John and St. Croix also are attracting more vacationists.

And, thanks in large measure to Laurance S. Rocefeller, visitors to St. John still can enjoy the scenic beauty of a relatively unspoiled island. A dedicated conservationist, Rockefeller donated more than 5,000 acres of his Caneel Bay Plantation to the United States for what is now the Virgin Islands National Park.

Sanctuary

The 9,500-acre park covers about two-thirds of the 18-square-mile island, which lies about five miles east of St. Thomas across Pillsbury Sound. It was dedicated as a wildlife sanctuary on Dec. 1, 1956.

From the sea, the island must look much as it did when Christopher Columbus first sighted it in 1493. The hills are thick with tropical growth while gulls, with sky-blue bellies, and other sea and land birds skim undisturbed over beaches lined with palm and seagrape trees.

Hidden from view in the park are public beach facilities, camp grounds, picnic areas and hiking and riding trails. There also is a commissary where visitors and campers can buy food and other supplies.

The commissary is near Big Cinnamon Bay, the longest continuous sandy beach on the island, and tropical beach cottage units built by the Park Service for rental at moderate rates to the public. The cottages which can sleep up to four persons are booked solid year long and applications must be made far in advance.

Change of Pace

Caneel Bay Plantation—the only resort hotel on the island—covers about 150 acres of parklike land and includes seven beaches. A favorite hideaway for many prominent Americans (VIPs are housed in Cottage 7), its privacy and serenity offer guests a refreshing change of pace from the modern hustle.

There are 106 cottage units, shaded by tropical trees, many with virtually private beaches. There are no telephones or televisions in guest rooms. Cooling is by ceiling fans and trade winds which provide cross-ventilation through louvers in front and rear walls.

Guests wear informal clothes during the day, even at breakfast, lunch and tea. Sport jackets and dresses are worn for dinner, dancing to a native band of employes and other after-dark entertainment.

There are two separate dining rooms and cocktail lounges—one at the main pavilion at Caneel Bay and the other at Turtle Bay.

There are boat and amphibian plane services to Cruz Bay from St. Thomas for sightseers and guided tours through the island and park. Caneel Bay operates a private boat service for its guests.

Wallace Strategists: Reasonable Chance

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Campaign strategists for George C. Wallace, encouraged by his gains in recent nationwide polls and a gathering momentum in his third-party race, have come to believe he has a reasonable chance to win the presidency.

In the manner of political hopefuls everywhere, they have always put on the public face of a winner, not that of a spoiler, now they seem actually to believe it.

"He's moving up, and moving up fast," said one strategist. "He could win this thing in a walk." Wallace also believes he can win, and while he admits that being president "is an awesome thing to contemplate," the possibility does not dismay him.

"When I was governor of Alabama I met Nelson Rockefeller and George Romney and some of those others who wanted to be president," he said in an interview, "and they didn't impress me as being better qualified than I."

His strategists said they intend to concentrate on 25 states with 357 electoral votes, 87 more than the 270 needed to win.

In a speech here Monday night he told 7,000 cheering Texans—who hope to deliver their state's 25 electoral votes to Wallace—that his "base" was the Southern Governor's Conference, an association of 17 states with 177 electoral votes.

In addition to Texas these include Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia.

The other eight states, where rousing crowds or relative ease in getting the required signatures to place his name on the ballot have given Wallace workers hope, are Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Connecticut, New Jersey and California.

These are the states Wallace will concentrate on, but, as Bill Jones, one of his top aides, said, "We're not going to slight any state—we could carry some others that might surprise you, too."

Wallace continually points out that, with three candidates in the presidential race, he only needs 34 per cent of the popular vote in any state, a plurality, to win all its electoral votes.

Jones said Wallace's mail has doubled from its 5,000 letters-a-day average of a few weeks ago to a 10,000-a-day average, with many of the letters containing campaign contributions. Cash from all over the country is flowing into the Montgomery, Ala., headquarters at a greater rate than ever.

The entire Wallace campaign has taken on a gayer, more optimistic tone in the past two weeks than it had before the Democratic and Republican conventions. His staff seems to sense that he is not on a quixotic crusade but a legitimate quest for the presidency.

Political Campaigners and the Crowd Judgers

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Backstairs at the campaign:

In national campaigns, it is common practice for a candidate's staff to overestimate the size of his crowd at any given rally or parade. And this year is no different.

For example, consider parade crowds strung out over several miles in the heart of a big city at lunch hour. No matter what the most veteran political expert may say, a crowd estimate under such conditions is so much campaign shorthand.

If the three presidential candidates—Republican Richard M. Nixon, Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey and independent George Wallace—were to go through the same city over the same route at the same hour of day with approximately the same weather conditions, then it would be possible to say that one of the three had the better crowd.

But to say that 500,000 persons turned out for Nixon in Chicago is to say only that he had a good crowd. The expert does not live who could back up such an estimate. Perhaps the most accurage statement about the Nixon street crowd in Chicago came from a police official who said, "I would say this was the best turnout for a candidate that I've seen for some time."

When Nixon spoke at Monument Circle in Indianapolis, the deputy police chief said the crowd was about 32,000. Later he upped this figure to about 50,000. One local reporter said, "when we have a candidate here, the original police estimate never starts lower than 20,000 and they usually revise their first esimate later to 30,000 or 32,000."

Translated, this means that Nixon drew an Indianapolis crowd certainly above average.

The only time when crowd estimates approach accuracy is when the meeting is held in an enclosure for which the seating capacity is known. In such cases, spokesmen for a candidate usually inflate the number of standees.

In campaign years, the size of a turnout usually denotes the efficiency and enthusiasm of the candidate's organization. In most cities, the favorite time for a political procession is at the noon hour, or just at the evening rush hour. This is why visiting heads of state invariably are paraded through Washington at about noon to 12:30 p.m. in order to catch the maximum number of government workers on the streets. To parade a visiting potentate in the nation's capital at 3 p.m. would be a lonely spectacle.

Caribbean Now Rated High As Vacation Area

ST. JOHN, U.S. Virgin Islands (UPI)—"Unspoiled" is probably one of the most popular adjectives in travel borchures extolling the attractions of whatever destination they are promoting.

There is no doubt the development and expansion of tourist facilities in the West Indies helped transform what once was the private wintering preserve of the well-to-do into a prime year-round destinaton for even those who vacation on a budget.

St. Thomas, with its excellent harbor and international airport, is still the most popular. But St. John and St. Croix also are attracting more vacationists.

And, thanks in large measure to Laurance S. Rocefeller, visitors to St. John still can enjoy the scenic beauty of a relatively unspoiled island. A dedicated conservationist, Rockefeller donated more than 5,000 acres of his Caneel Bay Plantation to the United States for what is now the Virgin Islands National Park.

Lazy, Shiftless Charges

Mexican-Americans React

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mexican-Americans say it's about time the United States found out they work hard, pay their bills and pronounce their "j's."

So the newly formed Mexican-American Anti-Defamation Committee has prodded Jose Jimenez to shape up and warned Madison Avenue to stop using that lazy fellow with sombrero and serape to sell everything from potato chips to dog food.

Armando Rodriguez walked into a news conference Monday and said, "We're here to say: 'Let's get with it. We're either part of the country or we're not."

"The labor and sweat of the Mexican-American have built the Southwest," said Tony Calderon. "The brush was cleared, the cotton picked and the irrigation ditches dug. The Mexican-American worked in 110-degree weather in the valleys of California."

"We're not just 'Si senor' citizens," said Calderone, chairman of a San Antonio, Tex., group called IMAGE.

Nick Reyes, an Equal Employment Opportunity Commission employe who will head the Mexican-American committee without pay, said entertainer Bill Dana has agreed to cast a new image for his comic Jose Jimenez character, who does commercials for the "jellow pages."

Reyes said he has written letters to six firms which he said sponsor advertisements demeaning to his race.

"Twenty years ago you had quite a lot of advertising using Negroes in a demeaning fashion," said Rodriguez, head of the Mexican-American unit in the Office of Education.

"Then came the Indians and they protested. Now it seems the Mexican-American is the new person used for advertising," he added.

Rodriguez said the committee will ask for air time to counter what they consider insulting Mexican-American characterizations and will boycott firms who persist in using the characterizations.

"We're American consumers, among other things," said Calderon, "but we have no identity."

Commissioner Albert Pena of Bexar County, San Antonio, Tex., said the federal government was one of the biggest offenders in the equal opportunity line. Federal officials had "better clean up their own house first" before preaching federal opportunities for minority groups, he said.

"The only place the Mexican-American sees his image is in the late-night programs when someone is being arrested. Members of all races are arrested but there is no offsetting image of the Mexican-American anywhere else but being arrested," Calderon said.

Chamber Advises On 'Free' Items

"You were selected" . . . so starts a letter from a Mid-Hudson Valley sales agency, announcing your good fortune in being "picked at random" to receive a deluxe sewing machine at no charge.

Maybe you were one of those who previously received a similar letter. You found out that "all" you had to do to get your "free" sewing machine was to pay for the cabinet. It was an expensive cabinet. This time, local recipients of such letters are being told they must buy a 10 year service and instruction policy for $7.95 per year. In other words the machine is being sold for $79.50, with a ten-year guarantee.

Peter O. Allen, executive vice president of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce suggests to all recipients of such letters that they carefully evaluate the sales agency's claims. He further suggests that comparisons be made between this machine and machines sold by other companies.

Finally Allen reiterated a long-standing warning of the National Better Business Bureau. "If it sounds too good to be true, watch out! It probably is!" Allen suggested that the wise shopper may decide that it is better business to deal with merchants who sell products and give service, rather than with those who claim to do it the other way around.

Saugerties GOP Event

Snyder Testimonial Oct. 5

The annual dinner-dance of Town of Saugerties Republican Committee Saturday, Oct. 5 at the Flamingo Restaurant will serve as a testimonial to honor Robert A. Snyder of Saugerties for more than 30 years of service as a GOP committeeman in his home community.

Dignitaries Due

Among the dignitaries expected to attend are the following candidates: for congress, Hamilton Fish; for state senator Jay P. Rolison; for assembly, H. Clark Bell; for county sheriff, Thomas F. Mayone and for coroner, Henry S. Hartley.

Committees for the event include: tickets, Legislator Freeman Lasher, Charles Fous and George Terpening; brochure, William R. Brown, Michael Caruso, Louis P. Francello and Frank Short; program, Henry Breitenbach; arrangements, Frank Naccarato, and master of ceremonies, Saugerties Town Councilman Bernard Rinaldi.

Tickets may be purchased from any member of the GOP Town Committee or the dinner committee. Charles J. Scala is chairman of the event.

ROBERT A. SNYDER

Snyder started his public service when elected Town of Saugerties supervisor in 1936. He served through 1939. During that time he was chairman of the Board of Supervisors from 1938 to 1939. Elected county clerk in 1939, he served three terms.

Upon completion of his third term as county clerk, he was named clerk of the Board of Supervisors and held that office and later the post of county budget officer until late in December 1967.

For many years, Snyder served as secretary of the County Republican Committee. During all this time he served as GOP committeeman in the Town of Saugerties.

He conducts an insurance agency which bears his name in the Village of Saugerties. He also serves as vice president of Saugerties National Bank and Trust Company and Saugerties Savings Bank.

Prominent Vol Fireman

A prominent volunteer fireman, Snyder served as president of the county association in 1948 and was president of R. A. Snyder Fire Company for 15 years. The company was named after his grandfather. He and his wife, the former Gertrude G. Glass have two children, John A. and Helen J.

Snyder was educated in Saugerties and is a Saugerties High School graduate and also graduated from St. Lukes' College and Dartmouth College where he received a BA degree.

He is a past president of Saugerties Lions Club and served as master of Ulster Lodge 193, F&AM, Saugerties.

New Type Traffic Signals to Be Installed At Nine Intersections in Ulster County

New type traffic signals will be installed at nine intersections along state highways in Ulster County.

The work will be part of a $140,000 contract awarded recently to M. Eisenberg Brothers Inc., West Nyack for improvement of the traffic signal system on state highways at 26 intersections in Orange County, and nine in Ulster according to the announcement by Governor Nelsen A. Rockefeller.

The firm submitted the lowest of three bids to the State Department of Transportation for the project to be paid for with funds from the Transportation Bond Issue, approved by the Voters last fall.

Dual sets of signals will be installed to replace existing single units, and will be actuated on a schedule geared to actual traffic volumes rather than fixed time limits.

The work in Ulster County includes the following intersections:

Route 209 at Center Street, Ellenville; Route 209 and Route 52, Ellenville; Routes 44-55 and Route 208, Ireland Corners; Route 32 and Route 44-55, Modena; Route 28 at Olive Firehouse; Albany Ave. Extension at Ulster Hose Company Firehouse; Albany Avenue and Interstate 587, two signals in Kingston, and Route 209 at railroad crossing near Hurley.

Scheduled for completion by June 4, 1969, all work will be under the supervision of M. Nicholas Sinacori, engineer in charge of the State Department of Transportation District Office at Poughkeepsie.

ROBERT A. SNYDER

Snyder started his public service when elected Town of Saugerties supervisor in 1936. He served through 1939. During that time he was chairman of the Board of Supervisors from 1938 to 1939. Elected county clerk in 1939, he served three terms.

Upon completion of his third term as county clerk, he was named clerk of the Board of Supervisors and held that office and later the post of county budget officer until late in December 1967.

For many years, Snyder served as secretary of the County Republican Committee. During all this time he served as GOP committeeman in the Town of Saugerties.

A prominent volunteer fireman, Snyder served as president of the county association in 1948 and was president of R. A. Snyder Fire Company for 15 years. The company was named after his grandfather. He and his wife, the former Gertrude G. Glass have two children, John A. and Helen J.

Snyder was educated in Saugerties and is a Saugerties High School graduate and also graduated from St. Lukes' College and Dartmouth College where he received a BA degree.

New Type Traffic Signals to Be Installed At Nine Intersections in Ulster County

New type traffic signals will be installed at nine intersections along state highways in Ulster County.

The work will be part of a $140,000 contract awarded recently to M. Eisenberg Brothers Inc., West Nyack for improvement of the traffic signal system on state highways at 26 intersections in Orange County, and nine in Ulster according to the announcement by Governor Nelsen A. Rockefeller.

The firm submitted the lowest of three bids to the State Department of Transportation for the project to be paid for with funds from the Transportation Bond Issue, approved by the Voters last fall.

Dual sets of signals will be installed to replace existing single units, and will be actuated on a schedule geared to actual traffic volumes rather than fixed time limits.

The work in Ulster County includes the following intersections:

Route 209 at Center Street, Ellenville; Route 209 and Route 52, Ellenville; Routes 44-55 and Route 208, Ireland Corners; Route 32 and Route 44-55, Modena; Route 28 at Olive Firehouse; Albany Ave. Extension at Ulster Hose Company Firehouse; Albany Avenue and Interstate 587, two signals in Kingston, and Route 209 at railroad crossing near Hurley.

Scheduled for completion by June 4, 1969, all work will be under the supervision of M. Nicholas Sinacori, engineer in charge of the State Department of Transportation District Office at Poughkeepsie.

Pharmacy Exhibits At Kingston Hospital

A pharmacy fair of exhibits by the major pharmaceutical companies and embracing the "then and now" of professional pharmacy will be held in the main lobby of The Kingston Hospital today, and Thursday.

Nine companies have shipped in displays for the event, believed to be the first of its kind ever held in Ulster County, according to Paul J. Wendrow, the hospital's chief pharmacist.

Professional personnel of the Benedictine Hospital, Ellenville Community Hospital, County Medical Board, Kingston City Laboratory, the Board of Health, all physicians, pharmacists, and persons affiliated with the profession, have been invited to attend. The displays will be on view between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. on the two days. Light refreshments will be served by the Kingston Hospital Auxiliary and several gift certificates will be presented as door prizes.

New Paltz Sets Adult Classes

Classes will begin the week of Sept. 30. All classes will meet at the high school on South Putt Corners Road this year. A brochure giving a brief description of the courses to be offered will be mailed to all of the residents of the school district.

Courses being offered the first semester include ceramics, high school equivalency, conversational Italian, driver education for residents of the district only, literature, investments, typing, bookkeeping, sewing, enjoying music instructions in oils and watercolors, stage equipment operation, woodworking, Spanish, piano, and Mainland China-United States Relations.

Olive Okays Constables at Onteora School

After much discussion at the last Town of Olive Town Board meeting, it was decided by the board to furnish constable service at the Onteora Central School at dismissal time as requested by the board of education.

Any town resident who is interested in serving as dog enumerator for the coming year should contact Town Supervisor Lester Davis.

A letter was received from the District Engineer of the New York State Department of Transportation stating that when the town accepts new roads, an official map or copy of the deed must be filed with that office and also recorded in the office of the county clerk.

John Rank inquired about the junk yard law during the meeting. Now one year since the law was paseed, he wanted to know what was being done to enforce it. In reply, the board said that the matter would be dealt with only upon a written and signed complaint.

Mr. Schatzel complained about noises created by the town's stone crusher and screening plant, asking that something be done to deaden the din. The matter was handed over to the superintendent of highways, Marcel Maier, for investigation.

September 24 was set aside as the night for the board to ready a preliminary budget for 1969. Bills in the amount of $1,047.37 and $3,504.69, from the general and highway funds, were approved for payment.

Riots, Rule Rather Than Exception In Rhinebeck During Last Century

By LYNN MULVANEY

"Violence was the order of the day" — with riots, racism and charges of police high-handedness.

Sounds like a description of the recent Chicago fiasco?

Of course it does but in this case it is Rhinebeck we are talking about and the time was about 1850.

It was a time when German property owners were fighting with the Irish railroaders and the Irish were at odds with the Negroes in Dutchess County.

According to Henry Noble McCracken, chronologist, there was a riot in Rhinebeck on Nov. 28, 1849 and again in December, 1850 in which two were killed and 60 arrested.

In recording the incident McCracken reports newspapers of the day stating, "the sheriff's high-handedness in these and other proceedings was severely condemned by the public which was itself responsible for the miseries of the railroad marooners."

On Jan. 29, 1850 the Journal and Eagle (Poughkeepsie) denounced the sternness with which the police and judge punished the rioters."

McCracken tells further that the politics of the time was confusing. He mentions a proliferation of political parties such as: Hunker and Barnburner (Conservative and Progressive Democrats) Locofoco and Bucktail (Reform and Machine Tammany), Hard and Soft Shell Democrat, Anti-Rent, Woolley Head, Doughface, Abolitionist, Anti-Masonic, Temperence and Backbone, just to name a few!

The newspapers cried "To the polls!" at every election, but all too often the people were indifferent.

In his book, "Old Dutchess Forever," McCracken tells of how in 1863 Dutchess County cheered, "Hurrah for the colored people of Poughkeepsie," when Victor Hugo was sent by them as a delegate to Washington, offering 10,000 men of color to be called "The Fremont Legion."

A Gallant Gesture

Ladies are said to have written Mrs. Abraham Lincoln urging her support. This was thought to indeed be a gallant gesture.

In those days it was the "Conservative" Party which was made up of voters opposed to the continuance of the war, as well as the conscience-led pacifists, McCraken contends.

Meanwhile draft riots were taking place in New York City and the "sober" Dutchess folks wondered whether the government could really be blamed, McCracken writes.

New York mobs created "terrible" riots and disorders, burning hundreds of buildings and some 300 persons were reported killed in the streets.

The draft of 1863 did not strike Dutchess County until after the New York City murders came to an end.

Allegations were made in the Dutchess County villages however, contending that Republicans were being exempted while Democrats were being taken.

The Daily Press of Poughkeepsie, speaking for those who "don't believe in a war for the Negro, Selah! (Pause here), attacked the draft with great bitterness."

Going back to the 1700's about five years before the Revolutionary War, McCracken tells of the burning of a Rhinebeck Palatine by some of his neighbors.

The grand jury charged that the defendants, using force and arms did "unlawfully, riotously and routously assemble and gather together to disturb the peace" and "did burn with live coals of fire and beat, wound and ill-treat him so that his life was greatly despaired."

Drinking Was Universal

McCracken relates that drinking was so universal at that time it went unmentioned in indictments and that taverns were invariably the rioter's rendezvous.

The case of the burned Palatine, Peter Lodowich, was described as typical of a number of riots and assaults in the country. The full court included the best justices and the indicting jury usually read like a "Who's Who of its citizens."

Olive Okays Constables at Onteora School

After much discussion at the last Town of Olive Town Board meeting, it was decided by the board to furnish constable service at the Onteora Central School at dismissal time as requested by the board of education.

Any town resident who is interested in serving as dog enumerator for the coming year should contact Town Supervisor Lester Davis.

A letter was received from the District Engineer of the New York State Department of Transportation stating that when the town accepts new roads, an official map or copy of the deed must be filed with that office and also recorded in the office of the county clerk.

John Rank inquired about the junk yard law during the meeting. Now one year since the law was paseed, he wanted to know what was being done to enforce it. In reply, the board said that the matter would be dealt with only upon a written and signed complaint.

Mr. Schatzel complained about noises created by the town's stone crusher and screening plant, asking that something be done to deaden the din. The matter was handed over to the superintendent of highways, Marcel Maier, for investigation.

September 24 was set aside as the night for the board to ready a preliminary budget for 1969. Bills in the amount of $1,047.37 and $3,504.69, from the general and highway funds, were approved for payment.

Prague, Kremlin To Talk

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovakia's Communist leaders directed new appeals today to thousands of Czechs and Slovaks, asking them to come home from the West where they are waiting to see how things go in their occupied homeland.

The appeal by the 21-man presidium of the Communist party said those who have not broken Czechoslovak laws have no fear of prosecution.

The presidium also announced after a meeting Tuesday that another round of talks would be held soon with the Soviet Union on the implementation of the Moscow agreement in which party chief Alexander Dubcek's regime agreed to meet Russian demands in return for gradual withdrawal of the Soviet occupation force.

Unconfirmed reports circulated that Dubcek, President Ludvik Svoboda and Premier Oldrich Cernik would go to Moscow later this week.

$2,500 Watch Is Taken From Albany Office

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — An antique watch worth an estimated $2,500 has been reported stolen from the Office of State History.

An attached fob on the key-winding watch, which dates back to 1750 or 1760, appears in Robert Earl's portrait of Baron Von Steuben, State Education Department officials told police.

The European-made timepiece is marked also by a cloisonne (raised) emblem on its frontpiece. It was taken in its yellow gold, domed case from a locked steel cabinet, which was pried open last weekend.

No Protection

There is no known permanent protection against the teredo, a wormlike bivalve which has been called the "termite of the sea" because of the billions of dollars of damage it has caused to wooden vessels and waterfront installations.

TEMPO Size, Coverage Increasing on Saturday

If you've been enjoying TEMPO, The Freeman's Saturday magazine, over the past year, you'll enjoy it even more in the future. This week, in honor of its first birthday, TEMPO is upping both its size and its coverage.

The new Tempo, starting this weekend, will be bigger; boast more pages, more pictures, more features. The new Tempo will have a wide variety of new columns — columns on new record releases, recently published books, and stamps of interest to collectors.

New, too, will be "Potpourri," a light, bright column contributed by Joan Woinoski of The Freeman staff that promises a "gossipy" flavor if the occasion merits. Dorothy Narel, Freeman's Woman's Page editor, will also contribute to a bigger and better TEMPO with a weekly food page. She'll aim at bringing readers news of gourmet cookery in its more exotic forms.

From TEMPO editor Tobie Geertsema will come a weekly column, "Going Gourmet," and taking those who like to dine out behind the scenes in area restaurants.

The old TEMPO will still be there intact when the new Tempo debuts. All the regular features which have become popular over the past year will be retained but, with the addition of new pages and columns, TEMPO should have even more appeal.

Helping Hand

Campaign Money Flowing Fast Says Paul O'Dwyer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Paul O'Dwyer, who refuses to back his party's presidential choice, says he will receive the same funds as other candidates from the Democratic senatorial campaign committee.

O'Dwyer said Tuesday the committee also will supply speakers on behalf of his campaign in New York State.

He estimated that his campaign would cost about $1 million and said money from supporters of Minnesota Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy's presidential bid already was flowing in.

The committee did not question him about his role in McCarthy's presidential bid or his persistent refusals to support Humphrey, O'Dwyer said.

The committee did say, however, that if more contributions were received by it, more money would be dispersed to all senatorial candidates, O'Dwyer reported. The list of senators who will speak in his behalf is now being drawn up, he said.

More importantly, O'Dwyer told an airport news conference, he is attracting the help of about 20,000 young people in his campaign.

"I think we will overpower Javits in manpower," he said.

O'Dwyer is opposing Sen. Jacob K. Javits, a Republican who is seeking re-election, and James Buckley, who is running as a Conservative.

PRIEST ON LEAVE—The Rev. Daniel McCarthy, Roman Catholic priest sometimes known as the firemen's chaplain now employed part-time at Rural Fire Department in Scottsdale, Ariz., beside fire engine he will help man since he was granted indefinite leave of absence from his clerical duties. Scottsdale Daily Progress reported in a copyrighted story he was given leave because of stand against papal encyclical on birth control, but Father McCarthy said, "I don't want to attack the church. 10 Craft Unsafe on Hudson, Coast Guard Check Reveals

The Coast Guard Boating Safety Detachment, based at Governors Island, reported investigating 14 pleasure craft in the Hudson River Sunday between Kingston and Poughkeepsie, and said it found ten of them to be "unsafe."

John Ross, a spokesman for the Third Coast Guard District with headquarters on the island, said that of the ten, many were in violation of laws governing boating practice. Most of them, he added, were improperly operated and others were found to have either defective equipment or equipment not approved by the Coast Guard.

A fine for unsafe boating practice on the water, he noted, could go as high as $100.

Even though Labor Day is passed, Ross said, there are well over 1,000 pleasure craft on the waters of the Hudson. The Coast Guard detachment runs safety checks of these craft, he added, much as the police use unmarked cars on the highways.

He suggested that pleasure boat operators who would like information about safe boating should contact the Office of Recreational Boating, Third Coast Guard District, Governors Island, New York.

Successful Investing....

by ROGER E. SPEAR
Investment Advisor & Analyst

Building Boom Several Months Away

Q—What investments would you advise for a person who wants to accumulate as much capital as possible toward retirement in 13 years? I can invest $1,000 now and $200 a month regularly.—P. F.

A—Rather than choose speculative ventures for a "fast dollar"—which seldom work out that way—you would be well advised to pick sound issues in industries that should accelerate faster than the economy.

There is little doubt that one such area is home construction. There is, however, some doubt as to when this boom will begin to be felt. The increase in housing starts in July is encouraging but I would not expect any real building upsurge before the early part of 1969. However, a commitment now in anticipation of a boom would be wise.

I like U. S. Gypsum for its involvement in two areas of urgent need—home building and urban renewal. In an imaginative program with John Hancock, buildings in structurally sound condition are being rehabilitated using, insofar as possible, company products.

My second selection for you is Textron, a conservative participant in the conglomerate revolution. Textron prefers the term multimarket as being more pertinent to management's philosophy of major diversification. The maintenance of a 15 per cent pretax growth rate in earnings is one of the company's aims, with internal growth being as important as expansion through acquistion.

Q—I am a conservative facing retirement in 1970. At that time I will have $210,000 to invest for monthly income. What type of fund best suits my purpose?—M. S.

A—In the last 10 years—predominantly a rising market—growth funds were ahead of other types. The use of capital to meet withdrawal requirements was more than made up by appreciation over the period. Your best course is in diversification using funds, bonds and common and preferred stock. Careful and individual estate planning by an expert is required in your case.

Animal Cruelty Charge Case Is Put Over Again

The cruelty to animals case of Clarence Campbell White, 51 of Pine Bush, was granted another adjournment to Tuesday, Oct. 29 by Town of Rochester Justice Raymond Lawrence.

White was charged in connection with a raid staged by the Sheriff's Department on Aug. 12 at the Clove Valley Ranch near High Falls. White entered a plea of innocent at arraignment Aug. 14, when he appeared before Justice Lawrence and bail was set at $100.

The raid was staged by Sheriff William B. Martin, Deputy Marshall Canosa and SPCA Agent Arnold Adams. At the ranch they found several horses obviously mistreated and lacked food and water, and one was dead.

The owner of the ranch, Wilbur Smith, who is in New York City most of the time gave permission to White to stable his horses at the ranch, but had no knowledge that the horses were being mistreated, investigation revealed. Authorities noted that Smith was not involved in the investigation.

Dyson Suggests New Cabinet Post

John Dyson, Democratic candidate for Congress, today proposed a "cabinet-level Department of Consumer Affairs which would coordinate all the activities of federal agencies that work for the consumer, investigate complaints of unlawful and unethical practices, and recommend goals for legislation, public education and business cooperation." Dyson spoke at a candidate's night sponsored by the Business and Professional Women's Club at the Beekman Arms in Rhinebeck.

"The needs are clear," the Democratic nominee stated, "Congress should press for complete truth in advertising, lending, packaging and standards. Congress must require standards for quality in goods and services that we, the consumer, pay for. A Department of Consumer Affairs is needed to coordinate these efforts, to disseminate information to the consuming public, and to help honest business eliminate unfair competition from negligent and unscrupulous merchants. The 'buyers beware' can never be the standard of ethics for a business transaction."

RVHS Council Dance Friday

The Student Council of Rondout Valley Central High School will sponsor the annual Get-Together Dance Friday, September 20, from 8 to 11 p. m. in the high school cafeteria. The event will also serve as the "kick-off" for the 1968 football season, which will get underway the following afternoon. A band will play for dancing.

Committee for the dance is composed of co-chairmen Barbara Bushnell and Cindy Raymond, Ellen Derman, Jeanne Embr, Pat Mills, Caryl Numrich and Jeanne Sparling. The faculty chaperones will be headed by Student Council Advisor Christopher Westover and Mrs. Westover.

Homemakers to Meet

The High Falls Happy Homemakers 4-H Club will hold its first meeting of the season on Sept. 25 from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Reformed Church in High Falls. Officers will be elected and all members and interested girls from "almost" 9 to 19 years are invited to attend.

Italian Foods Lead The Frozen Category

BY JACK LEFLER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans are becoming more adventurous in their eating. As a result, foods of foreign origin now account for a $150 million annual share of the frozen food market.

Italian, Oriental, Mexican and kosher foods lead in popularity. But dishes native to Hungary, France, Germany, Poland, Sweden and Spain are gaining a place at the table.

Twenty years ago nationality foods for the general public were limited to quaint Italian and fancy French cafes, family owned Chinese restaurants and other such atmospheric eating places.

Anaconda Aluminum Co., a major supplier to the frozen food industry, predicts that the sales volume of frozen foreign foods will be more than doubled in the next 10 years and possibly tripled.

"Today's menu planners want convenience plus originality," says Allan N. Cooper, an executive of Anaconda Aluminum. "They find this in frozen nationality specialities."

Cooper says a survey of his company indicates that Italian foods led the popularity parade of frozen nationality specialties with $90 million in sales last year. Chinese and other Oriental foods were second with sales of $30 million.

Mexican food—considered the fastest growing entry in the field—accounted for $25 million. Sales of kosher foods totaled $5 million.

Pizza has become a standby item; tacos and tamales vie with egg rolls and chow mein; blintzes and bagels are becoming as common as Polynesian skewered ka-bobs or sauerbraten with spatzle.

In New York, for example, it is generally considered likely that Irish Catholics and other ethnic groups buy more kosher products than do Jewish people. Minneapolis, with its strong Swedish heritage, is one of the better markets for Mexican food.

Verdict Given In Death of NYC Teenager

Post-mortem examination results were revealed today in the case of Leona Van Zandt, 16, of New York City, who was found dead Aug. 5 on her father's estate in Shandaken.

Coroner Henry S. Hartley issued a verdict of death due to asphyxia and aspiration of vomitus.

The Van Zandt girl was found in the rear of her father's property in Shandaken by Sheriff's Department investigators using bloodhounds, after she had been reported missing three hours earlier. A preliminary examination at the scene failed to reveal any wounds.

The Van Zandt family has vacationed at their Shandaken home for the past several summers.

Onteora School Taxpayers AGAIN! VOTE "NO"!!!

TOMORROW, THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 19th

BETWEEN 2 and 9 P.M.

Take Two Steps to Get Your Rights:

ONE: VOTE "NO" ON SEPTEMBER 19TH AGAINST THE DEFEATED JUNE 3RD BUDGET, WHICH IS AGAIN BEING SUBMITTED TO YOU WITHOUT ANY OPTIONS (BUSING, EXTRACURRICULAR ACTIVITIES, EXTRA OR NON-MANDATED EDUCATIONAL ITEMS, ETC.).

TWO: THEN, BY LETTER OR TELEPHONE, DEMAND OF THE ONTEORA CENTRAL SCHOOL BOARD OF EDUCATION AN EARLY SCHOOL DISTRICT MEETING FOR A VOTE ON OPTIONS——

(A) BY ACTION OF THE SCHOOL BOARD ITSELF INITIATING AN OPTION VOTE; OR

(B) IF THE BOARD REFUSES TO ACT, BY A PETITION, SIGNED BY SCHOOL DISTRICT VOTERS, FOR THE SUBMISSION OF OPTIONS.

OPTIONS: The Onteora Board of Education, without valid reason, arbitrarily stands for and presses for a package-deal budget. It ignores our democratic right to decide what "extra" or nonmandatory items of education and service we want to pay for. The board practically rushed into a "contingency budget" after the first two budget defeats, without giving the taxpayers of the school district the opportunity to vote on any options. Reject this third budget by voting "NO" for the third time, and demand the right to vote on options!

BUSING: Three-quarters of the schoolchildren in our district must be and are already bused to school under the law. As to the other quarter, several hundred have been walking to school as a matter of choice. Why not decide on busing this quarter by option vote?

TEXTBOOKS: The Onteora Board of Education has the power to take care of the textbook question, but it certainly should not refuse to let the taxpayers decide it by option vote.

DON'T LET REPEATED BUDGET VOTES WEAR YOU DOWN ! ! ! DON'T LET YOURSELF BE DISENFRANCHISED ! ! ! REJECT THIS "ALL OR NOTHING" PACKAGE DEAL ! ! !

Newburgh Over Top On UR

NEWBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — The Chamber of Commerce announced today that Newburgh had raised more than enough money to pay its share of the planning costs of a renewal project under the State Urban Development Corp

The new corporation, headed by planning expert Edward Logue, announced recently that Newburgh had been selected as first in the state to receive corporation aid, but that the community would have to pay $45,000 in planning costs.

A. Kent Rossetter Jr., president of the Greater Newburgh Chamber of Commerce said $60,120 has been raised in voluntary contributions. The excess also will be used in the project as needed, he said.

Mayor George McKneally will present a check to Logue on Oct. 3.

Verdict Given In Death of NYC Teenager

Post-mortem examination results were revealed today in the case of Leona Van Zandt, 16, of New York City, who was found dead Aug. 5 on her father's estate in Shandaken.

Coroner Henry S. Hartley issued a verdict of death due to asphyxia and aspiration of vomitus.

The Van Zandt girl was found in the rear of her father's property in Shandaken by Sheriff's Department investigators using bloodhounds, after she had been reported missing three hours earlier. A preliminary examination at the scene failed to reveal any wounds.

The Van Zandt family has vacationed at their Shandaken home for the past several summers.

Onteora School Taxpayers

AGAIN! VOTE "NO"!!!

TOMORROW, THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 19th
BETWEEN 2 and 9 P. M.

Take Two Steps to Get Your Rights:

ONE: VOTE "NO" ON SEPTEMBER 19TH AGAINST THE DEFEATED JUNE 3RD BUDGET, WHICH IS AGAIN BEING SUBMITTED TO YOU WITHOUT ANY OPTIONS (BUSING, EXTRACURRICULAR ACTIVITIES, EXTRA OR NON-MANDATED EDUCATIONAL ITEMS, ETC.).

TWO: THEN, BY LETTER OR TELEPHONE, DEMAND OF THE ONTEORA CENTRAL SCHOOL BOARD OF EDUCATION AN EARLY SCHOOL DISTRICT MEETING FOR A VOTE ON OPTIONS——

(A) BY ACTION OF THE SCHOOL BOARD ITSELF INITIATING AN OPTION VOTE; OR

(B) IF THE BOARD REFUSES TO ACT, BY A PETITION, SIGNED BY SCHOOL DISTRICT VOTERS, FOR THE SUBMISSION OF OPTIONS.

OPTIONS: The Onteora Board of Education, without valid reason, arbitrarily stands for and presses for a package-deal budget. It ignores our democratic right to decide what "extra" or nonmandatory items of education and service we want to pay for. The board practically rushed into a "contingency budget" after the first two budget defeats, without giving the taxpayers of the school district the opportunity to vote on any options. Reject this third budget by voting "NO" for the third time, and demand the right to vote on options!

BUSING: Three-quarters of the schoolchildren in our district must be and are already bused to school under the law. As to the other quarter, several hundred have been walking to school as a matter of choice. Why not decide on busing this quarter by option vote?

TEXTBOOKS: The Onteora Board of Education has the power to take care of the textbook question, but it certainly should not refuse to let the taxpayers decide it by option vote.

DON'T LET REPEATED BUDGET VOTES WEAR YOU DOWN ! ! ! DON'T LET YOURSELF BE DISENFRANCHISED ! ! ! REJECT THIS "ALL OR NOTHING" PACKAGE DEAL ! ! !

VOTE "NO" AGAINST ADDITIONAL TAX BILLS

Panel Begins Hearings On Country's Violence

WASHINGTON (AP) — The presidential panel set up in Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's dying hours opens formal hearings today in its sweeping probe of violence in America.

Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover were listed as leadoff witnesses at the closed-door session in the same building where the assassinated New York senator had his Capitol Hill offices.

Eight weeks of hearings have been scheduled by the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence to hear testimony and task force reports on such subjects as firearms, disorderly demonstrations, law enforcement and the influence of the news media.

The panel plans a preliminary report to President Johnson before he leaves the White House in January. Its final report is due next June.

A commission aide said the panel has had problems recruiting enough top-notch personnel for the study because the commission will go out of existence after a year.

Johnson created the 13-member commission June 5 as Kennedy lay dying in Los Angeles where he was shot as he celebrated his California Democratic primary election triumph.

Unlike the Warren Commission that investigated the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, the new panel will not limit itself to the specific slaying but will delve instead into a wide area of violence and its causes.

The commission is headed by Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, 69, brother of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and retired president of Johns Hopkins University.

The commission conducted a ground-laying session in July which was closed to the public and newsmen but said later sessions might be open.

The panel will take up the specific subject of assassinations, presumably including the slayings of Sen. Kennedy and civil rights leader Dr. Martin uther King Jr., at its Oct. 2-3 session.

The commission members in addition to Eisenhower are Roman Catholic Archbishop Terence J. Cooke of New York, attorney Labert Jenner of Chicago, former Ambassador Patricia Harris, philosopher Eric Hoffer; Sens. Philip Hart, D-Mich., and Roman Hruska, R-Neb.; Reps. Hale Boggs, D-La., and William M. McCulloch, R-Ohio, and federal Judge Leon Higginbotham.

New Gun Amendment Could Mean Life Term

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anybody using a gun in a federal crime of violence would face the possibility of life in prison under an amendment tacked onto the firearms control bill now moving toward a vote in the Senate.

This was adopted Tuesday prior to the opening of debate today on the most controversial issue over the control bill: whether to amend it to require the registration of all firearms and the licensing of their owners.

The registration proposal by Maryland Democrat Joseph Tydings was rejected by the House and the Senate Judiciary Committee earlier in the year when those bodies generally limited the measure to barring the mail order sale of rifles and shotguns.

The life sentence would be possible for people convicted of carrying a gun while committing such crimes as rape, arson, murder, kidnaping, burglary, theft, racketeering and extortion in a federal jurisdiction.

Assassination of a president also was specified.

The amendment was proposed by Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., and was passed by voice vote after Sen. Thomas J. Dodd., D-Conn., said he knew of no opposition.

Another amendment, also adopted Tuesday by voice vote, would prohibit the confiscation by a government agency of any legally held and used firearm.

Sen. Daniel Brewster, D-Md., said there was nothing in the current bill that would allow confiscations but there is widespread concern among gun owners that stricter firearms controls could lead to that.

The Senate also accepted a provision making an exception to an over-all ban on over-the-counter sales of rifles and shotguns to residents of another state.

The exception, written into the bill by the Senate Judiciary Committee, permits sales to residents of adjoining states if they comply with the laws of both states.

Rejected 45 to 42 was an amendment by Dodd to tighten a requirement for dealers.

It would have required a dealer to have an actual business location, as distinguished from someone who handles sales from his home.

Fuzzy State Election Picture Edges Toward a Sharper Focus

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The fuzzy election picture in New York State edged toward a sharper focus Tuesday but still was not completely cleared up.

The Secretary of State's office announced these developments:

—"Courage party" candidate George C. Wallace definitely will be included on the November presidential ballot.

—The office has turned down a petition to designate Minnesota Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy as the presidential candidate of the Coalition party and has ruled that the presidential electors of that party would not appear on the voting machines.

— Presidential balloting for the Socialist Workers party will be carried out on write-in paper ballot slips to be attached to the face of voting machines. This is because the party listed only 10 presidential electors instead of a full slate of 43.

—The independent nominating petition of the Freedom and Peace party, as it applies to Herman B. Ferguson of Queens as candidate for the U.S. Senate, was declared "null and void" because Ferguson had failed to file the proper acceptance for nomination. All other Freedom and Peace candidates will appear on the ballot.

Secretary of State John P. Lomenzo said Wallace backers had satisfied the requirements of the law in submitting petitions designating Wallace as a presidential candidate.

The Wallace camp submitted 32,524 signatures in support of Wallace, nearly three times the 12,000 required by state law. Not one drew an objection, Lomenzo said.

The Courage party designation was picked by supporters of Wallace because state law prohibits the use of the words "American," or "National" in a party's name. Wallace is running elsewhere under the "American Independent party" label.

McCarthy's name will not appear on the ballot because the senator had advised Lomenzo by letter that he declined "any or all nomination" for the presidency or vice presidency.

The Coalition party, however, has taken the decision to court with hopes of returning McCarthy's name to the ballot.

Lomenzo said he had decided to require write - in ballots for the Socialist Workers party's presidential candidate, Fred Halstead of New York City, "in order to protect the rights of voters to cast a full vote if they so desire..."

"When only ten presidential electors are nominated and the voter pulls the lever, he would be, in effect, unknowingly casting also 33 blank votes," Lomenzo said.

Lomenzo, who has until next Monday to notify county election boards of the names of candidates to appear on the election ballot, said designating petitions for the two other independent parties remain under study by the Election Law Bureau of the Department of State.

Impound Rest of 500G Estate Of Hippie Financial Angel

"God will provide," said Donald B. McCoy, 37, who quit a real estate investment career with the announcement that "I finally realized that if you are unhappy, you are a failure, no matter how much money you have."

The colony is on a 690-acre estate that McCoy leased for $1,000 a month in this suburban area about 25 miles from San Francisco.

Clad only in a shirt, McCoy, in a full beard, was reading to several of his followers from a book about Jesus Christ when a reporter asked about the suit for control of his remaining fortune —estimated in court at $200,000.

"Some of the folks here are worried," he said, "but even if they take all the money away, we will continue to exist."

Arthur E. Lang of Mill Valley, McCoy's former father-in-law, brought the suit in behalf of McCoy's three daughters, aged 6 to 10. Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin County named Lang temporary conservator last week and set Sept. 30 for a hearing in San Rafael on whether to make Lang permanent conservator.

McCoy's former wife, Lang's daughter, now lives, according to testimony, in San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury district, regarded by many as the hippie capital. McCoy's daughters have been living with him on the ranch. The other residents—both male and female—live in communal fashion, apparently at McCoy's expense, in a 19-room mansion and 14-room dormitory.

Lang, in his legal complaint, said McCoy had allowed his estate to dwindle from $500,000 to $200,000 and "is giving away or spending money as fast as he can do it." McCoy said he felt Lang was "up tight" in not appreciating how the money is spent and expressed confidence of a satisfactory outcome of the case.

If you lose, he was asked, would the group possibly become self-sustaining? He said someday he expects the group to be self-supporting, but the thought of any of his followers taking a paying job off the estate—known as Rancho Olompali—was horrifying.

"That would be joining the Establishment—an impossibility for us," he said. "You cannot serve God and mammon."

As McCoy switched the conversation to love and philosophy, his 9-year-old daughter, Dana, curled up against him. "We have a lot of fun here," she volunteered.

A young man constructing a bongo drum from a barrel and a hide agreed with her. Why, he said, when the girls first arrived, they were so "up tight" they didn't want to take their clothes off for nude swimming in the pool.

Miss Karen Ann Graham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Graham, Route 3, Box 74, Saugerties, became the bride of Stephen Vincent Sember of 69 Hoffman Street, Kingston, on Saturday, Sept. 14, at St. John's Church, Veteran.

The Rev. Albert Brodbeck celebrated the Nuptial Mass and officiated at the double ring ceremony. Julia Fiero, organist and soloist, provided traditional wedding selections. White chrysanthemums and gladioli decorated the altar and white chrysanthemum bows marked the family pews.

Miss Patricia Graham of Veteran, was maid of honor for her sister. She wore a full-length gown of satin in shades of blue and a matching blue headpiece. She carried a cascade bouquet of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums.

Attendants were the Misses Janet Stauss, Joy Stauss, both of Saugerties; and Mary Sember, sister of the bridegroom, Kingston. Their gowns and headpieces were identical to that of the honor attendant.

Ronald Sember, Syracuse, was best man for his brother. Ushers were Edward Wendell, Hurley; Daniel Joyce, Kingston, and Richard Short, Veteran.

The bride is a graduate of Ulster County Community College, Class of 1966 and is employed by IBM, Kingston. Her husband is an alumnus of Delhi Tech, Class of 1967 and is employed by Lumb Woodworking Co., Poughkeepsie.

Mr. and Mrs. Sember will reside in Kingston.

Marist Makes History; Enrolls 30 Women

Since its conception, Marist College, Poughkeepsie, N.Y., has experienced an all-male enrollment until yesterday when 30 women became the first co-eds in the college's history. This new atmosphere of femininity was felt throughout the upper and freshmen classes since the co-ed enrollment included transfers from other colleges as well as entering freshmen.

For the first day attending classes many of Marist's women students were exposed to an air of extreme courtesy which seemed dormant before their arrival on campus. Some of the co-eds tried unsuccessfully to mingle unnoticed among the 1,320 men in Marist's student body.

As did many of the women students yesterday, Eileen Weit "felt a little nervous after attending a college which had only women students." Miss Weit, who transferred from Sant Rose College in Albany to become a biology major at Marist, said she experienced "an atmosphere of welcome" and that "the students and faculty seemed very polite." Anne Berinato, formerly of the College of Mount Saint Vincent and now a sophomore at Marist, said she noticed a difference in the instructors at Marist, in that "they seemed more open-minded." Miss Berinato said she came to Marist "because of the Psychology Department here, and the research project I'll initiate in my senior year."

Of all the new co-eds on campus, JoAnn Miller appeared the most relaxed in her new surroundings. Miss Miller had worked with a number of Marist Brothers for a VISTA project in Highland, N.Y., and had become familiar with the college. Now an English major in the teacher education program, Miss Miller found no uneasiness in attending classes dominated by men, but did notice "a little extra politeness during registration." Miss Miller had previously attended Endicott Junior College.

At present, all the women students at Marist reside in the Poughkeepsie area, but none live on campus. The college has plans to increase co-ed enrollment sizeably and eventually provide dormitory facilities for women.

What happens to the world's best margarine container after the margarine's gone?

Virginia Parker uses it to bake cupcakes for her son in the service. She knows if it's airtight enough for our margarine, it will keep her cupcakes fresh all the way to Viet Nam.
Sam Gorn arranges flowers in it. Elvira Palladino turns it into an Easter basket.
The world's best margarine container now has smooth sides.

Our old container. Our new container.
All this fuss over our container. And all we really wanted to do was keep our margarine's flavor fresh and sweet in the most airtight aluminum container we could make. We're still finding ways to improve our container. We've just given it new sides that are smooth. Still airtight, but the ridges are gone so you can get out every last smidgeon of that fresh, sweet Mrs. Filbert's taste.

Neutral-colored paste floor wax makes a good emergency shoe polish.

Ralph Nader Will Be Guest Speaker At Dutchess College

Ralph Nader, whose book "Unsafe At Any Speed" has helped bring about changes in the automobile industry to produce safer cars, will speak twice this week at Dutchess Community College.

In a presentation open to the general public, Nader will speak on "Hazards and Lobbyists" this Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the Dutchess Hall Theatre.

Earlier in the day, at 1 p.m. he will address an audience of faculty and students on "Environmental and Man - Made Hazards."

A lawyer and an outspoken critic of auto safety legislation, Nader has worked on the legal problems and policies of highway safety and automobile design. He has served as a consultant in this field as well as a contributor to many legal publications.

With the recognition that the United States has had the technological potential and economic capability to build safer cars for decades, Nader is concerned about the tolerance of highway accidents.

"Unsafe cars pose a challenge to the legal, medical, and engineering professions, for they have a responsibility to apply their optimum skills to the problem," he has said.

Helpful Hints

To remove skins from beets after they have been boiled, dip immediately into cold water.

Neutral-colored paste floor wax makes a good emergency shoe polish.

New hosiery will fit better if it is given a prewear sudsing. This quick rinse will also remove an excess dye in the hosiery.

For hidden eyelids put white on the eyelids and brown shadow from the crease to the bone. Draw the thinnest eyeline possible. For close set eyes concentrate eye shadow, liner and mascara on the outer half of your eyes. Widen the space between your brows by plucking a few extra hairs over the inner corners of the eye.

Ralph Nader Will Be Guest Speaker At Dutchess College

Ralph Nader, whose book "Unsafe At Any Speed" has helped bring about changes in the automobile industry to produce safer cars, will speak twice this week at Dutchess Community College.

In a presentation open to the general public, Nader will speak on "Hazards and Lobbyists" this Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the Dutchess Hall Theatre.

Earlier in the day, at 1 p.m. he will address an audience of faculty and students on "Environmental and Man - Made Hazards."

A lawyer and an outspoken critic of auto safety legislation, Nader has worked on the legal problems and policies of highway safety and automobile design. He has served as a consultant in this field as well as a contributor to many legal publications.

With the recognition that the United States has had the technological potential and economic capability to build safer cars for decades, Nader is concerned about the tolerance of highway accidents.

"Unsafe cars pose a challenge to the legal, medical, and engineering professions, for they have a responsibility to apply their optimum skills to the problem," he has said.

LUSCIOUS MOCHA TORTE WITH COFFEE BUTTER FROSTING

Extra Rich Mocha Torte

"Coffee and Cake" becomes an extraordinary affair with this decorative, luscious Mocha Torte. Coffee Butter Frosting covers and fills its rich chocolate layers, while the top is draped with Chocolate Glaze.

MOCHA TORTE

4 squares (1 oz. each) unsweetened chocolate
½ cup water
1¾ cups sugar, divided
2 cups sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup butter or margarine
3 eggs
⅔ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Heat chocolate with water in top of double boiler. Cook and stir over boiling water until chocolate is melted and mixture is thickened. Add ½ cup of the sugar. Cook 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Cool to lukewarm. Measure sifted flour. Add baking soda and salt; sift together 3 times. Cream butter or marbarine. Add remaining 1¼ cups sugar. Cream together until very smooth. Add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each. Add flour mixture alternately with milk in small amounts, beating after each addition until smooth. Add chocolate mixture and vanilla. Blend. Bake in 2 greased 9-inch layer cake pans at 350 degrees for about 30 minutes. Cool. Fill and frost top and sides with Coffee Butter Frosting. Pour Chocolate Glaze over top, letting it drip down sides.

Coffee Butter Frosting

Cream ½ cup sweet butter. Add 3 cups confectioners' sugar while continuing to cream, adding enough strong cold coffee to make frosting fluffy and easy to spread on cake.

Chocolate Glaze

Melt 1 package (6 oz.) semi-sweet chocolate pieces and 1 tablespoon shortening over hot (not boiling) water. Remove from heat. Blend in 3 tablespoons light corn syrup and 2 tablespoons milk; pour immediately over frosting.

Hints from Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

Don't dare throw away the case of a retractible inexpensive ballpoint pen when it runs out of ink!

Take out all the insides such as the ballpoint, spring, etc., and put a dab of glue on the pointed end to seal the hole.

When the glue is dry, put your sewing machine needles into the chamber of the long end and screw the pen back together. You will have a dandy, rust-proof container for your sewing needles.

Sure easy to locate in your sewing basket and no stuck fingers whatsover.

Mrs. J. M. Krayak

Dear Heloise:

This is the easy method I use to clean the grill on my barbecue.

I leave the newspaper in several layers and put them in a bucket of water.

When the cooking is done, I put a layer of wet papers on concrete and put the hot grill on top. Lay more newspapers on top and then leave it there until the meal is over.

When I remove the top papers, the grease and food on the grill is all softened from the steam and moisture. It is then so easy to wash. Use a brush where the cross pieces are and it's all nice and clean.

Mrs. Wm. E. Klingler

Dear Heloise:

I find the plastic net onion and potato bags are a must during canning time.

I put peaches or tomatoes in the net bag, hold it by the string and immerse in the boiling water for a minute or two.

No more burned hands and the skins will slip off easily.

Teenage Queen Likes Contests

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Some criticize the miss this and miss that contests as adult exploitation of youth, looks and personality.

But look at it another way: Without them, many a talented and lovely miss would have a financial struggle to get through college and would have to be long past her teens to afford the travel a title means.

There is the case of Miss Teenage America 1968. A $10,000 scholarship, a $5,000 guarantee for personal appearance, plus 10 shares of stock in a major airline and 100 in a soft drink concern pretty well guarantee her education (freshman) this fall at Clark College, aim for a dramatic and singing career.

Then there's the travel. "I've been to almost every state, to Canada, to Puerto Rico," said Miss Teenage America, Stephanie Ann Crane, 18, of St. Louis, Mo. "How else could I have had the chance?"

Miss Crane, a tiny brunette with green eyes, will crown her successor November 30 in a nationally televised pageant in Fort Worth, Tex. She will also pass along some advise which would befit any miss whosis--"be prepared to do a lot of sleeping on airplanes, because there isn't much time for shuteye when you're on tour.

"Always be your natural self, don't try to imitate others.

"Take advantage of the sights . . . you may never have another opportunity as long as you live."

Champion Tigers Toast Unlikely Heroes Wert-Sparma

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

The Detroit Tigers' superstars toasted a .198-hitter and a pitcher who spent the last month in the doghouse when the champagne corks popped in celebration of the city's first American League pennant since 1945.

Even Denny McLain, the majors' first 30-game winner in 34 years, played the role of a mere cheerleader Tuesday night when the Tigers paid bubbly tribute to a pair of unlikely heroes — third baseman Don Wert and pitcher Joe Sparma.

Wert, a sub-.200-hitter who was hitless in three previous trips to the plate, singled with two out in the ninth inning to drive in Al Kaline with the winning run in the Tigers' 2-1 victory over the New York Yankees. The victory, the Tigers' eighth straight, enabled them to win the flag "in the manner born" although the Boston Red Sox had mathematically eliminated the second-place Baltimore Orioles from the race about 15 minutes earlier with a 2-0 triumph in Boston.

Team Knew It

"We knew the Red Sox had eliminated the Orioles," said pitcher Earl Wilson during the Tigers' clubhouse celebration. "But we wanted to win it on our own —we wanted to win a game on the night we won the pennant."

Most of the 46,512 fans in Tiger Stadium were unaware of the Red Sox' victory because the Detroit management did not flash it on the scoreboard. A club spokesman said the management feared the fans might pour out onto the field and disrupt the game.

Sparma, who had blasted Manager Mayo Smith for taking him out of a game in the early innings on Aug. 14, pitched a five-hitter to raise his record to 9-10. He learned that he was the starting pitcher about 10 minutes before the game after Wilson felt soreness in his right arm during two warmups.

Praise for Sparma

"It was great that Sparma got the victory," said Wilson. "Because he's been down so long."

Sparma gave the Tigers a 1-0 lead in the fifth inning when his single drove in Bill Freehan, who had singled and reached second on an infield out by Tom Matchick. Sparma carried a three-hitter into the ninth when the Yankees tied the score on Charlie Smith's single, an infield out and a single by Jake Gibbs.

McLain, Kaline, Willie Horton and all the other superstars who contributed so much to the Tigers' march to the flag, saluted Wert and Sparma over and over again during the clubhouse celebration and shouted in defiance of the National League champion St. Louis Cardinals, "blow 'em back...blow 'em back...way back-"...and then, specifically referring to the great World Series hero of 1964 and 1967, Bob Gibson, "bring on Gibson...bring on Gibson."

Ray Culp pitched a five-hitter and struck out 12 as the 1967 champion Red Sox officially eliminated the Orioles. The Red Sox scored both their runs in the first inning on Luis Alvarado's single, Carl Yastrzemski's triple and Ken Harrelson's double. Dave McNally, a 20-game winner, suffered his 10th loss for the Orioles.

Perry Fires No-Hitter To Blank Cardinals, 1-0

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Gaylord Perry, allowing only two walks, fired a no-hitter past the National League champion St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday night and pitched the San Francisco Giants to a 1-0 victory.

The gangling right-hander, who frequently has lost tough luck decisions because of his team's inability to deliver runs when he was hurling, turned back the Cards 48 hours after they had cinched their second straight National League pennant by downing Houston, 7-4.

Perry, now 15-14 this season, allowed only two men to reach base as he made the most of a home run which Ron Hunt hit over the left field fence in the first inning.

A turnout of 9,546 gave Perry an ovation after he put a called third strike past Curt Flood for his ninth strikeout to end the game.

Perry said afterward that he began thinking of a no-hitter after the fifth inning.

"If they haven't got any hits by then you've got a chance for it," he declared.

He added that the Giants on the bench maintained the tradition of not mentioning his chance for a no-hitter.

"But Jim Davenport, Hal Lanier and Ty Cline came up and told me I had to go hard," Perry told newsmen after the game.

'This Makes Up for Lot,' Beams a Jubilant Hero

DETROIT (UPI)—The Detroit Tigers celebrated the clinching of their first American League pennant in 23 years Tuesday night with a wild clubhouse party during which 30-game winner Denny McLain led a six-man chorus and catcher Jim Price threw a reporter into the whirlpool bath.

The champagne and beer flowed like water from the moment the Tigers reached their clubhouse following an anti-climatic 2-1 victory over the New York Yankees. The Tigers actually had clinched the pennant before Don Wert's game-winning single in the ninth when the Boston Red Sox completed a 2-0 triumph over the second place Baltimore Orioles.

"We knew the Red Sox had clinched it for us with their victory," said Don Wilson. "But we wanted to win it ourselves.

"It was great that Joe Sparma got the victory," added Wilson, who was scheduled to start the game, "because he's been down so long."

Serenade Kaline

A group of six players led by McLain serenaded Tiger veteran Al Kaline in front of his locker with the chant, "blow 'em back...blow 'em back...way back," referring to the forthcoming World Series with the St. Louis Cardinals. Then Kaline joined the group and it paraded around the clubhouse chanting the team theme song.

At the height of the celebration, Price stopped a reporter gathering notes and pointed to the other side of the room.

"What are those guys doing?" asked Price.

When the reporter looked the other way, the 6-foot, 195-pound reserve catcher picked him up and tossed him into the club's whirlpool bath.

"You're a good scout," laughed Price when the reporter climbed out grinning. Then he doused the reporter with a bottle of champagne.

Makes Up for Lot

"This makes up for a lot of things," said Wert over and over, apparently referring to the Tigers' failure to win the 1967 pennant. "This makes up for a lot of things."

Wilson revealed that he had warmed up twice before advising manager Mayo Smith that he was suffering with a sore shoulder. Smith first asked Pat Dobson if he could start the game and then sought out Sparma. Dobson told Smith it would be better to count on him for relief if he was going to be used at all.

"This is great," said Smith, calm as usual. "They all deserve it because they all played like pros to accomplish it."

Nino Is Swamped With Bids After Hernandez Win

Benvenuti, never known as a stickler for the training grind even when preparing for his middleweight title defenses, easily decisioned Art Hernandez of Omaha, Neb., in a 10-round non-title bout Tuesday night.

Matchmaker Teddy Brenner immediately offered the Italian champion a choice of three opponents when he next defends his crown. Former middleweight champ Emile Griffith, who recently beat Gypsy Joe Harris, is one of the contenders Brenner has in mind. The others are Don Fulmer and Luis Rodriguez.

Some 12,000 fans watched Benvenuti, 163 1-2, jab his way to victory. Hernandez weighed 164, but gave up height and reach to the champion.

In the other two bouts on the Maple Leaf Gardens card, George Chuvalo, of Toronto, stopped Vic Brown of Buffalo, N.Y., in the third round and Al Sparks of Nova Scotia, decisioned Rene Durelle, of New Brunswick, in 12 rounds to regain the Canadian light heavyweight title.

Benvenuti displayed lightning form in his encounter with Hernandez, but was unable to deck his opponent, whom he credited with being a "strong" fighter.

Hernandez had Benvenuti in trouble only once—in the second round, when he managed to pummel the champion into the ropes. But the Italian fighter rallied smartly and was punching on even terms when the round ended.

In the eighth, Benvenuti connected with two right crosses, and although Hernandez was able to withstand the barrage, his left eye began to swell.

After the fight, in his crowded dressing room, Benvenuti said he "could have done better."

McAndrew Wins, 3-2

NEW YORK (UPI)—Rookie Jim McAndrew pitched a two-hitter and Ron Swoboda snapped a 2-2 tie in the fourth inning by stealing home on a controversial play which resulted in the ejection of catcher Randy Hundley Tuesday night as the New York Mets edged the Chicago Cubs 3-2.

With Swoboda on third and Jerry Grote on first with one out in the fourth, Ed Kranepool struck out. Grote, who was moving on the pitch, was trapped between first and second and Hundley fired to first baseman Ernie Banks. Swoboda came in from third and dived in under Banks' return throw to Hundley with umpire Ed Vargo ruling him safe.

McAndrew picked up his third victory against seven losses. He did not allow a hit until the fourth when Willie Smith lined a two out two-run double off the glove of Tommie Agee following two walks. Al Spangler singled to lead off the eighth for the only other Cub hit.

KHS Booters Blank Farley in Opener, 4-0

Coach John Hunter has several pleasant surprises to talk about, following the Kingston High School varsity soccer squad's impressive 4-0 opening day win over Cardinal Farley of Dutchess Tuesday at Laughran Park.

For example, he had nice things to say about three new wingmen—Bill Zeeh, the tennis star; Larry Feeney and Harry Wynkoop.

Zeeh scored a third quarter goal to put Kingston ahead 3-0, after Fred Seeger had connected at 9:25 in the first period and 8:07 of the second.

"If these boys (Zeeh-Feeney-Wynkoop) continue to come along, we're not going to have any problem scoring," said Hunter.

Seeger's first goal launched the Kingston scoring when he pushed a pass from Bill Zeeh by the Farley goaltender, MacLeod.

Beautiful Combination

Seeger's second goal came on the end of a beautiful combination play triggered by Scotty Phillips, who drew the defense to him in the middle, then passed it off to left wing Rauscher, who then lifted the ball over the goalie's head and Seeger banged it through.

In the third period, Zeeh took the ball upfield and outraced the defense to score Kingston's third goal.

The finely coordinated Kingston defense kept the pressure on the Cadets most of the game, forcing them to lose the ball every time they moved downfield.

Calls It Team Effort

"It was a fine team effort, with especially fine jobs turned in by Yeh and Korzendorfer," said Hunter.

"I'm more confident about our chances this year now that I know what everyone can do under fire. We're still sloppy on the front line, but we should have this smoothed out by the time we get to Middletown for the first DUSO match," he concluded.

Tiger Fans Kept in Dark

DETROIT (UPI)—The 46,512 spectators at Tiger Stadium Tuesday night were the last to know that the Detroit Tigers had clinched their first American League pennant in 23 years.

The Tigers were assured of the AL pennant when the Boston Red Sox beat the Baltimore Orioles 2-0 in Boston but the result was not posted in Tiger Stadium. The fans in the park were still ignorant of the result of the pennant race more than 15 minutes after the rest of the country learned of it via a UPI bulletin filed by Richard L. Hook at 10:01 p.m., EDT.

Champion Tigers Toast Unlikely Heroes Wert-Sparma

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

The Detroit Tigers' superstars toasted a .198-hitter and a pitcher who spent the last month in the doghouse when the champagne corks popped in celebration of the city's first American League pennant since 1945.

Even Denny McLain, the majors' first 30-game winner in 34 years, played the role of a mere cheerleader Tuesday night when the Tigers paid bubbly tribute to a pair of unlikely heroes — third baseman Don Wert and pitcher Joe Sparma.

Wert, a sub-.200-hitter who was hitless in three previous trips to the plate, singled with two out in the ninth inning to drive in Al Kaline with the winning run in the Tigers' 2-1 victory over the New York Yankees. The victory, the Tigers' eighth straight, enabled them to win the flag "in the manner born" although the Boston Red Sox had mathematically eliminated the second-place Baltimore Orioles from the race about 15 minutes earlier with a 2-0 triumph in Boston.

Team Knew It

"We knew the Red Sox had eliminated the Orioles," said pitcher Earl Wilson during the Tigers' clubhouse celebration. "But we wanted to win it on our own —we wanted to win a game on the night we won the pennant."

Most of the 46,512 fans in Tiger Stadium were unaware of the Red Sox' victory because the Detroit management did not flash it on the scoreboard. A club spokesman said the management feared the fans might pour out onto the field and disrupt the game.

Sparma, who had blasted Manager Mayo Smith for taking him out of a game in the early innings on Aug. 14, pitched a five-hitter to raise his record to 9-10. He learned that he was the starting pitcher about 10 minutes before the game after Wilson felt soreness in his right arm during two warmups.

Praise for Sparma

"It was great that Sparma got the victory," said Wilson. "Because he's been down so long."

Sparma gave the Tigers a 1-0 lead in the fifth inning when his single drove in Bill Freehan, who had singled and reached second on an infield out by Tom Matchick. Sparma carried a three-hitter into the ninth when the Yankees tied the score on Charlie Smith's single, an infield out and a single by Jake Gibbs.

McLain, Kaline, Willie Horton and all the other superstars who contributed so much to the Tigers' march to the flag, saluted Wert and Sparma over and over again during the clubhouse celebration and shouted in defiance of the National League champion St. Louis Cardinals, "blow 'em back...blow 'em back...way back-"..and then, specifically referring to the great World Series hero of 1964 and 1967, Bob Gibson, "bring on Gibson...bring on Gibson."

Ray Culp pitched a five-hitter and struck out 12 as the 1967 champion Red Sox officially eliminated the Orioles. The Red Sox scored both their runs in the first inning on Luis Alvarado's single, Carl Yastrzemski's triple and Ken Harrelson's double. Dave McNally, a 20-game winner, suffered his 10th loss for the Orioles.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Gaylord Perry, allowing only two walks, fired a no-hitter past the National League champion St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday night and pitched the San Francisco Giants to a 1-0 victory.

The gangling right-hander, who frequently has lost tough luck decisions because of his team's inability to deliver runs when he was hurling, turned back the Cards 48 hours after they had cinched their second straight National League pennant by downing Houston, 7-4.

Perry, now 15-14 this season, allowed only two men to reach base as he made the most of a home run which Ron Hunt hit over the left field fence in the first inning.

A turnout of 9,546 gave Perry an ovation after he put a called third strike past Curt Flood for his ninth strikeout to end the game.

Perry said afterward that he began thinking of a no-hitter after the fifth inning.

"If they haven't got any hits by then you've got a chance for it," he declared.

He added that the Giants on the bench maintained the tradition of not mentioning his chance for a no-hitter.

"But Jim Davenport, Hal Lanier and Ty Cline came up and told me I had to go hard," Perry told newsmen after the game.

DETROIT (UPI)—The Detroit Tigers celebrated the clinching of their first American League pennant in 23 years Tuesday night with a wild clubhouse party during which 30-game winner Denny McLain led a six-man chorus and catcher Jim Price threw a reporter into the whirlpool bath.

The champagne and beer flowed like water from the moment the Tigers reached their clubhouse following an anti-climatic 2-1 victory over the New York Yankees. The Tigers actually had clinched the pennant before Don Wert's game-winning single in the ninth when the Boston Red Sox completed a 2-0 triumph over the second place Baltimore Orioles.

"We knew the Red Sox had clinched it for us with their victory," said Don Wilson. "But we wanted to win it ourselves.

"It was great that Joe Sparma got the victory," added Wilson, who was scheduled to start the game, "because he's been down so long."

Serenade Kaline

A group of six players led by McLain serenaded Tiger veteran Al Kaline in front of his locker with the chant, "blow 'em back...blow 'em back...way back," referring to the forthcoming World Series with the St. Louis Cardinals. Then Kaline joined the group and it paraded around the clubhouse chanting the team theme song.

At the height of the celebration, Price stopped a reporter gathering notes and pointed to the other side of the room.

"What are those guys doing?" asked Price.

When the reporter looked the other way, the 6-foot, 195-pound reserve catcher picked him up and tossed him into the club's whirlpool bath.

Makes Up for Lot

"This makes up for a lot of things," said Wert over and over, apparently referring to the Tigers' failure to win the 1967 pennant. "This makes up for a lot of things."

Wilson revealed that he had warmed up twice before advising manager Mayo Smith that he was suffering with a sore shoulder. Smith first asked Pat Dobson if he could start the game and then sought out Sparma. Dobson told Smith it would be better to count on him for relief if he was going to be used at all.

"This is great," said Smith, calm as usual. "They all deserve it because they all played like pros to accomplish it."

Nino Is Swamped With Bids After Hernandez Win

Benvenuti, never known as a stickler for the training grind even when preparing for his middleweight title defenses, easily decisioned Art Hernandez of Omaha, Neb., in a 10-round non-title bout Tuesday night.

Matchmaker Teddy Brenner immediately offered the Italian champion a choice of three opponents when he next defends his crown. Former middleweight champ Emile Griffith, who recently beat Gypsy Joe Harris, is one of the contenders Brenner has in mind. The others are Don Fulmer and Luis Rodriguez.

Some 12,000 fans watched Benvenuti, 163 1-2, jab his way to victory. Hernandez weighed 164, but gave up height and reach to the champion.

In the other two bouts on the Maple Leaf Gardens card, George Chuvalo, of Toronto, stopped Vic Brown of Buffalo, N.Y., in the third round and Al Sparks of Nova Scotia, decisioned Rene Durelle, of New Brunswick, in 12 rounds to regain the Canadian light heavyweight title.

Benvenuti displayed lightning form in his encounter with Hernandez, but was unable to deck his opponent, whom he credited with being a "strong" fighter.

Hernandez had Benvenuti in trouble only once—in the second round, when he managed to pummel the champion into the ropes. But the Italian fighter rallied smartly and was punching on even terms when the round ended.

In the eighth, Benvenuti connected with two right crosses, and although Hernandez was able to withstand the barrage, his left eye began to swell.

McAndrew Wins, 3-2

NEW YORK (UPI)—Rookie Jim McAndrew pitched a two-hitter and Ron Swoboda snapped a 2-2 tie in the fourth inning by stealing home on a controversial play which resulted in the ejection of catcher Randy Hundley Tuesday night as the New York Mets edged the Chicago Cubs 3-2.

With Swoboda on third and Jerry Grote on first with one out in the fourth, Ed Kranepool struck out. Grote, who was moving on the pitch, was trapped between first and second and Hundley fired to first baseman Ernie Banks. Swoboda came in from third and dived in under Banks' return throw to Hundley with umpire Ed Vargo ruling him safe.

McAndrew picked up his third victory against seven losses. He did not allow a hit until the fourth when Willie Smith lined a two out two-run double off the glove of Tommie Agee following two walks. Al Spangler singled to lead off the eighth for the only other Cub hit.

KHS Booters Blank Farley in Opener, 4-0

Coach John Hunter has several pleasant surprises to talk about, following the Kingston High School varsity soccer squad's impressive 4-0 opening day win over Cardinal Farley of Dutchess Tuesday at Laughran Park.

For example, he had nice things to say about three new wingmen—Bill Zeeh, the tennis star; Larry Feeney and Harry Wynkoop.

Zeeh scored a third quarter goal to put Kingston ahead 3-0, after Fred Seeger had connected at 9:25 in the first period and 8:07 of the second.

"If these boys (Zeeh-Feeney-Wynkoop) continue to come along, we're not going to have any problem scoring," said Hunter.

Beautiful Combination

Seeger's second goal came on the end of a beautiful combination play triggered by Scotty Phillips, who drew the defense to him in the middle, then passed it off to left wing Rauscher, who then lifted the ball over the goalie's head and Seeger banged it through.

In the third period, Zeeh took the ball upfield and outraced the defense to score Kingston's third goal.

The finely coordinated Kingston defense kept the pressure on the Cadets most of the game, forcing them to lose the ball every time they moved downfield.

Calls It Team Effort

"It was a fine team effort, with especially fine jobs turned in by Yeh and Korzendorfer," said Hunter.

"I'm more confident about our chances this year now that I know what everyone can do under fire. We're still sloppy on the front line, but we should have this smoothed out by the time we get to Middletown for the first DUSO match," he concluded.

Tiger Fans Kept in Dark

DETROIT (UPI)—The 46,512 spectators at Tiger Stadium Tuesday night were the last to know that the Detroit Tigers had clinched their first American League pennant in 23 years.

The Tigers were assured of the AL pennant when the Boston Red Sox beat the Baltimore Orioles 2-0 in Boston but the result was not posted in Tiger Stadium. The fans in the park were still ignorant of the result of the pennant race more than 15 minutes after the rest of the country learned of it via a UPI bulletin filed by Richard L. Shook at 10:01 p.m., EDT.

Governmental sources and the American Fishing Tackle Manufacturers Association estimate that nearly 60 million Americans go fishing. They both say the number is increasing.

The Department of Interior reports that the sports catch of salt water game and food species now exceeds the commercial catch!

That should easily settle the question of which is the greatest participant sport in America. Fishing's detractors however say it's not a sport, just an excuse for frittering away time.

Not so, says Arthur L. Cone, Jr., a fisherman of 35 years experience, who just authored a major work on the piscine arts entitled Fishing Made Easy, published by The MacMillan Company of New York.

A Brilliant Tome:

This has to be one of the finest tomes of its kind ever made available to the nation's huge army of anglers. Written by a highly experienced practical fisherman, the book offers you facts which will put you on an equal footing with any of today's fishing "big names."

With this book you'll know why fish bite best at certain times of the day, and why these times vary with the seasons. You'll know what size, shape and color of lure to use in any given set of circumstances. You'll know when and why to discard lures for bait and when artificials will outfish worms and minnows—and why.

So thoroughly researched and written in such depth is Fishing Made Easy that it is inconceivable a fisherman could ask a question not answered in this tremendous tome.

Backhands The Critics

Cone, who has written articles on fishing for leading sports magazines, lays a heavy hand on his piscatorial critics, who sometimes chide him:

"What challenge is there for an intelligent man to outwit a humble creature about the size of a pea?

"Aren't fish entitled to their lives, liberty and pursuit of happiness without human intervention, especially in the name of sport?

"These are only a few of the questions people ask me about fishing," says Cone in his introduction.

"My answer to most of them is to point out that golf balls are inedible and then simply admit I go fishing because I like it. This poor logic saves—for fishing—much time I would otherwise waste in argument."

"Don't feel sorry for the poor fish!" Cone goes on. "Actually our piscine population are doing better than ever. With more leisure, more people are fishing. They want better fishing. And as long as politicians depend on votes for election, when the voters want better fishing, they'll get it."

You Can Eat Your Foe:

Cone wryly observes that "fishing is the only extant sport where you can derive the satisfaction of killing and eating your opponent, or if you're in a Roman emperor frame of mind, you may magnanimously set him free to be caught again—as he probably will be."

Fishing Made Easy covers every type of fishing in existence and shows you where and how you can obtain reliable information on fishing conditions, cast every type of lure like an old pro, and save money while catching more fish by selecting the best rod, reel, line, lures, baits or fly patterns for your purposes.

Whether your target is sunfish in a small pond, giant tuna and swordfish far out at sea, flounder, codfish, largemouth bass, pickerel, Atlantic salmon, rainbow trout, or any other species of fresh or salt water fish, the book offers specific advice on what to use and how to fish any body of water for top result.

It's Another World:

"Another good reason for fishing is the scenery," Cone points out. "You can see the world's finest, including a great deal that ordinary tourists never get to view. You can enjoy a good many glowing dawns missed by people who stay abed—but maybe they're more sensible. It's a matter of personal preference."

One of the philosophical benefits of fishing, Cone rhapsodizes, is that it is timeless. Even if you fish every day—spring, fall and winter—you'll find each one different from those before and those that follow. When you're fishing you're in an ancient world that changes very little, even over centuries.

"Of course," Cone philosophizes, "catching fish isn't all there is to fishing. Unlike some sports in which you compete against fellow humans, fishing is a match of wits against nature. Therefore, it often is a humbling experience that builds character.

"As proof thereof, I submit the twelve Apostles, most of whom were fishermen."

Fired Umps Plan Appeal To Commissioner Eckert

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Umpires Al Salerno and Bill Valentine, fired Monday by American League president Joe Cronin, said Tuesday they will petition commissioner William Eckert for reinstatement and permission to organize an umpires union without fear of repercussion.

The pair said they were fired by Cronin because they attempted to form an umpires union in the American League similar to one existing in the National League.

"We will appeal to the commissioner to allow us to vote our conscience on organizing without fear of recourse from the league president," said Valentine, a seven-year A.L. umpiring veteran. "Professional players in all sports are organizing. The National League umpires have an organization and we at least should have the chance to meet."

Salerno said they will "appeal to the baseball commissioner not for ourselves but for our brothers in blue."

Kroll Foursome Pro-Am Winners In PGA Tourney

SARATOGA SPRINGS — Ed Kroll of Cooperstown teamed with three amateurs — Allan Steigart and Leon Perstein, both of Concord, and Jambett of Saratoga Sorings, for a best-ball score of 19-under-par 53 to win the Pro-Am section of the $30,000 New York State PGA championship tourney at the Saratoga Spa golf course.

Kroll's foursome went out in 27 and came back in 26 to finish two strokes ahead of teams led by Gene Broek of Pine Hollow and Len Oaortti of Smithtown Landing, both on Long Island.

Jerry Pittman, the tournament co-favorite, with Tom Nieporte, led the individual pros' scoring with an 8-under-par 64. The Creek Country Club pro had a 33-31. The 64 was the best ever registered on the Spa course, but isn't considered a record, however, since Tuesday's play was from the front tees.

Gene Sarazen of Germantown had a 2-under-par 70. Others in the 70 bracket included: Jack Lumpkin, Oak Hill; Bob Hill, Craig Hill; Frank Commisso, Arendquoit; Box Mix, Albany; and Peter Dunn, Apawamis.

The 54-hole regular tournament started today. Inside the main tourney is a 36-hole event for seniors.

Jets' Mistakes Boost Met Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Columbus guessed wrong twice in the 11th inning Tuesday night, and the Jacksonville Mets, as a result, have taken an almost insurmountable 3-0 lead over the Jets in their best-of-7 Governor's Cup International League playoff series.

Bob Pfeil opened the 11th for the Mets with a single but was forced at second by Tommy Reynolds, and the Jets then got the second out. Not wanting to pitch to Amos Otis, the Jets walked him intentionally.

Then, with two out and runners on first and second, the Jets drew in their outfield to pitch to line-drive-hitting Will Huckle. But Huckle crossed up the strategy with a single over the outfield that sent home Reynolds with the run that gave Jacksonville a 2-1 victory—its third in succession.

A two-base throwing error by Columbus third baseman Rich Hebner allowed Otis to score the tying run in the seventh inning after the Jets had gone in front in the second on Hebner's double and Jack Damaska's single.

Bosox Kayo Birds' Hope

BOSTON (UPI)—The Boston Red Sox mathematically eliminated the Baltimore Orioles from the American League pennant race Tuesday night when they downed the Orioles 2-0 on Ray Culp's five-hit pitching and run-scoring fifth-inning hits by Carl Yastrzemski and Ken Harrelson.

The Orioles loss allowed the Detroit Tigers to clinch the pennant as Culp rang up his 14th victory and struck out 12 Orioles in the process.

Both Boston runs came in the fifth inning when rookie Luis Alvarado beat out an infield single, advanced on an error, and scored on Yastrzemski's triple. Major League runs-batted-in leader Ken Harrelson increased his total to 107 when he scored Yastrzemski with a double.

Loser Dave McNally, beaten for the second time while seeking his 21st victory, held Boston scoreless from the second through the sixth and reliever Gene Brabender shut out the Red Sox out thereafter.

Culp scored his fourth shutout and ninth complete game and his 12 strikeouts matched both a personal and team high for the season. He walked four and was in serious trouble only in the fourth inning on Boog Powell's single, Brooks Robinson's double and a two-out intentional walk before he fanned Larry Haney to end the threat.

Coleman Harriers Set

By GEORGE TOMSON
(Freeman Sports Staff)

John A. Coleman High school's cross country runners start their first year on the varsity inter-scholastic level with high optimism and ambitious nine event schedule.

Coach Dom Cicale, heartened by turnout that doubled last year's response, isn't hiding his optimism. He feels he has a solid nucleus of runners. The only weakness — and it's not fatal—is lack of experience.

Last year the eight team members participated in practice meets with St. Patricks of Newburgh and Cardinal Farley in preparation for this year's first formal schedule.

All eight runners are back with many new prospects, some of which are rated on a par with the returnees.

Coach Cicale's harriers will participate in seven dual meets and have been invited to two invitational meets — the Cobleskill on Oct. 12 and the Fordham on Oct. 26 at Van Cortland Park.

Three runners that Cicale is counting heavily on are Hank Harder, Jerry Grier and Gerald Croce. Also hoping to help Coleman gain a winning season are Craig Renn, Chris Seche, John Gall, Patrick Nee, John Zoda and Ed Blindell.

The schedule:

Oct. 4	St. Patricks-N	Away
Oct. 8	New Paltz	Home
Oct. 12	Cobelskill Invit.	Away
Oct. 15	Marlboro	Away
Oct. 18	Saugerties	Away

Governmental sources and the American Fishing Tackle Manufacturers Association estimate that nearly 60 million Americans go fishing. They both say the number is increasing.

The Department of Interior reports that the sports catch of salt water game and food species now exceeds the commercial catch!

That should easily settle the question of which is the greatest participant sport in America. Fishing's detractors however say it's not a sport, just an excuse for frittering away time.

Not so, says Arthur L. Cone, Jr., a fisherman of 35 years experience, who just authored a major work on the piscine arts entitled Fishing Made Easy, published by The MacMillan Company of New York.

A Brilliant Tome:

This has to be one of the finest tomes of its kind ever made available to the nation's huge army of anglers. Written by a highly experienced practical fisherman, the book offers you facts which will put you on an equal footing with any of today's fishing "big names."

With this book you'll know why fish bite best at certain times of the day, and why these times vary with the seasons. You'll know what size, shape and color of lure to use in any given set of circumstances. You'll know when and why to discard lures for bait and when artificials will outfish worms and minnows—and why.

So thoroughly researched and written in such depth is Fishing Made Easy that it is inconceivable a fisherman could ask a question not answered in this tremendous tome.

Backhands The Critics

Cone, who has written articles on fishing for leading sports magazines, lays a heavy hand on his piscatorial critics, who sometimes chide him:

"What challenge is there for an intelligent man to outwit a humble creature about the size of a pea?

"Aren't fish entitled to their lives, liberty and pursuit of happiness without human intervention, especially in the name of sport?

"Wouldn't you save time and money by buying fish already cleaned and ready to cook at the corner market?

"These are only a few of the questions people ask me about fishing," says Cone in his introduction.

"My answer to most of them is to point out that golf balls are inedible and then simply admit I go fishing because I like it. This poor logic saves—for fishing—much time I would otherwise waste in argument."

"Don't feel sorry for the poor fish!" Cone goes on. "Actually our piscine population are doing better than ever. With more leisure, more people are fishing. They want better fishing. And as long as politicians depend on votes for election, when the voters want better fishing, they'll get it."

You Can Eat Your Foe:

Cone wryly observes that "fishing is the only extant sport where you can derive the satisfaction of killing and eating your opponent, or if you're in a Roman emperor frame of mind, you may magnanimously set him free to be caught again—as he probably will be."

Fishing Made Easy covers every type of fishing in existence and shows you where and how you can obtain reliable information on fishing conditions, cast every type of lure like an old pro, and save money while catching more fish by selecting the best rod, reel, line, lures, baits or fly patterns for your purposes.

Whether your target is sunfish in a small pond, giant tuna and swordfish far out at sea, flounder, codfish, largemouth bass, pickerel, Atlantic salmon, rainbow trout, or any other species of fresh or salt water fish, the book offers specific advice on what to use and how to fish any body of water for top result.

It's Another World:

"Another good reason for fishing is the scenery," Cone points out. "You can see the world's finest, including a great deal that ordinary tourists never get to view. You can enjoy a good many glowing dawns missed by people who stay abed—but maybe they're more sensible. It's a matter of personal preference."

One of the philosophical benefits of fishing, Cone rhapsodizes, is that it is timeless. Even if you fish every day—spring, fall and winter—you'll find each one different from those before and those that follow. When you're fishing you're in an ancient world that changes very little, even over centuries.

"Of course," Cone philosophizes, "catching fish isn't all there is to fishing. Unlike some sports in which you compete against fellow humans, fishing is a match of wits against nature. Therefore, it often is a humbling experience that builds character.

"As proof thereof, I submit the twelve Apostles, most of whom were fishermen."

Fired Umps Plan Appeal To Commissioner Eckert

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Umpires Al Salerno and Bill Valentine, fired Monday by American League president Joe Cronin, said Tuesday they will petition commissioner William Eckert for reinstatement and permission to organize an umpires union without fear of repercussion.

The pair said they were fired by Cronin because they attempted to form an umpires union in the American League similar to one existing in the National League.

"We will appeal to the commissioner to allow us to vote our conscience on organizing without fear of recourse from the league president," said Valentine, a seven-year A.L. umpiring veteran. "Professional players in all sports are organizing. The National League umpires have an organization and we at least should have the chance to meet."

Salerno said they will "appeal to the baseball commissioner not for ourselves but for our brothers in blue."

Kroll Foursome Pro-Am Winners In PGA Tourney

SARATOGA SPRINGS — Ed Kroll of Cooperstown teamed with three amateurs — Allan Steigart and Leon Perstein, both of Concord, and Jambett of Saratoga Sorings, for a best-ball score of 19-under-par 53 to win the Pro-Am section of the $30,000 New York State PGA championship tourney at the Saratoga Spa golf course.

Kroll's foursome went out in 27 and came back in 26 to finish two strokes ahead of teams led by Gene Broek of Pine Hollow and Len Oaortti of Smithtown Landing, both on Long Island.

Jerry Pittman, the tournament co-favorite, with Tom Nieporte, led the individual pros' scoring with an 8-under-par 64. The Creek Country Club pro had a 33-31. The 64 was the best ever registered on the Spa course, but isn't considered a record, however, since Tuesday's play was from the front tees.

Bill Collins of Braeburn CC was runnerup with a 65. Nieporte posted a 69. Other top pro scores: Gene Borak, Pine Hollow, 66; Ed Kroll, Cooperstown, 67; Sam Urzetta, CC of Rochester, 67; Paul Kern, Windsor CC, 68; Joe Diego, Green Hills, 68; Mike Krak, Weepburn, 68; Terry Wilcox, Siwanoy, 68; Gus Grygiel, Oneonta, 68; Bob Watson, Wykagyl, 69.

Gene Sarazen of Germantown had a 2-under-par 70. Others in the 70 bracket included: Jack Lumpkin, Oak Hill; Bob Hill, Craig Hill; Frank Commisso, Arendquoit; Box Mix, Albany; and Peter Dunn, Apawamis.

The 54-hole regular tournament started today. Inside the main tourney is a 36-hole event for seniors.

Jets' Mistakes Boost Met Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Columbus guessed wrong twice in the 11th inning Tuesday night, and the Jacksonville Mets, as a result, have taken an almost insurmountable 3-0 lead over the Jets in their best-of-7 Governor's Cup International League playoff series.

Bob Pfeil opened the 11th for the Mets with a single but was forced at second by Tommy Reynolds, and the Jets then got the second out. Not wanting to pitch to Amos Otis, the Jets walked him intentionally.

Then, with two out and runners on first and second, the Jets drew in their outfield to pitch to line-drive-hitting Will Huckle. But Huckle crossed up the strategy with a single over the outfield that sent home Reynolds with the run that gave Jacksonville a 2-1 victory—its third in succession.

A two-base throwing error by Columbus third baseman Rich Hebner allowed Otis to score the tying run in the seventh inning after the Jets had gone in front in the second on Hebner's double and Jack Damaska's single.

BOSTON (UPI)—The Boston Red Sox mathematically eliminated the Baltimore Orioles from the American League pennant race Tuesday night when they downed the Orioles 2-0 on Ray Culp's five-hit pitching and run-scoring fifth-inning hits by Carl Yastrzemski and Ken Harrelson.

The Orioles loss allowed the Detroit Tigers to clinch the pennant as Culp rang up his 14th victory and struck out 12 Orioles in the process.

Both Boston runs came in the fifth inning when rookie Luis Alvarado beat out an infield single, advanced on an error, and scored on Yastrzemski's triple. Major League runs-batted-in leader Ken Harrelson increased his total to 107 when he scored Yastrzemski with a double.

Loser Dave McNally, beaten for the second time while seeking his 21st victory, held Boston scoreless from the second through the sixth and reliever Gene Brabender shut out the Red Sox out thereafter.

Culp scored his fourth shutout and ninth complete game and his 12 strikeouts matched both a personal and team high for the season. He walked four and was in serious trouble only in the fourth inning on Boog Powell's single, Brooks Robinson's double and a two-out intentional walk before he fanned Larry Haney to end the threat.

Coleman Harriers Set

By GEORGE TOMSON
(Freeman Sports Staff)

John A. Coleman High school's cross country runners start their first year on the varsity inter-scholastic level with high optimism and ambitious nine event schedule.

Coach Dom Cicale, heartened by turnout that doubled last year's response, isn't hiding his optimism. He feels he has a solid nucleus of runners. The only weakness — and it's not fatal—is lack of experience.

Last year the eight team members participated in practice meets with St. Patricks of Newburgh and Cardinal Farley in preparation for this year's first formal schedule.

All eight runners are back with many new prospects, some of which are rated on a par with the returnees.

Coach Cicale's harriers will participate in seven dual meets and have been invited to two invitational meets — the Cobleskill on Oct. 12 and the Fordham on Oct. 26 at Van Cortland Park.

Three runners that Cicale is counting heavily on are Hank Harder, Jerry Grier and Gerald Croce. Also hoping to help Coleman gain a winning season are Craig Renn, Chris Seche, John Gall, Patrick Nee, John Zoda and Ed Blindell.

The schedule:

Oct. 4	St. Patricks-N	Away
Oct. 8	New Paltz	Home
Oct. 12	Cobelskill Invit.	Away
Oct. 15	Marlboro	Away
Oct. 18	Saugerties	Away
Oct. 22	St. Patrick's	Home
Oct. 26	Fordham Invit. at Van C'tland Pk	Away
Nov. 1	Lourdes	Away
Nov. 4	Highland	Home

Coach Jordan Rates Olympic Team One of the Finest

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Trio World Record Holders

By JOE SARGIS
UPI Sports Writer

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE, Calif. (UPI) — "It has to be one of the finest teams ever taken to an Olympics," said Payton Jordan today in describing the record-setting crew of track and field stars he saw in action at the U. S. trials.

"I think the boys adjusted well to the altitude, once they got it out of their minds, and started to concentrate on the events themselves," continued the head coach of the U. S. Men's Olympic team. "Some very fine athletes didn't make it but I think the very best ones did."

The eight day competition wound up Monday on a sunny and bright afternoon with Jim Ryun, the world record holder, winning the 1,500 meter run in 3:49.0, well off his 3:33.1 record and Ed Caruthers of Santa Ana, Calif., shading high schooler Reynaldo Brown in the high jump.

Events Anti-Climatic

The two events proved anti-climactic after Geoff Vanderstock, Bob Seagren, John Carlos and Lee Evans had set world records. Vanderstock took the 400 intermediate hurdles record down to 48.8 seconds, Seagren, vaulted 17-9, Carlos ran the 200 meter dash in 19.7 and Evans the 400 meter run in 44 seconds flat.

"It wouldn't surprise me if we ran 1-2 or 1-2-3 in those events," said Jordan, a man not taken to exaggeration, "We also could do very well in the high jump, the shot put and, of course, the relays races."

Dick Fosbury also jumped 7-3 to join Caruthers and Brown, a 17-year-old high school student from Compton, Calif., in the Olympics. Martin Liquori, a 19-year-old soph from Villanova, finished second to Ryun in the 1,500 in 3:49.5 and Tom Von Ruden of the Army was third in 3:49.8.

Other Olympians

Ryun and Caruthers thus won Olympic berths for the second straight time. The former Olympian who missed out Monday was John Rambo, a bronze medal winner in the high jump at Tokyo.

Other former Olympians who will make the trip to Mexico City next month will be hammer throwers Ed Burke, Al Hall and Hal Connolly, Frank Covelli in the javelin, Willie Davenport in the hurdles, Tom Farrell in the 800 meter run, Randy Matson in the shot put, Al Oerter and Jay Silvester in the discus, Mel Pender in the 100 meter dash, John Pennel in the pole vault, Ralph Boston in the long jump, marathoner-steeplechaser George Young and walker Ron Laird.

The other casualties here besides Rambo were Russ Hodge in the decathlon, Phil Shinnick and Gayl Hopkins in the long jump, Gerry Lindgren and Billy Mills in the 10,000 meter run, Leo Tipton in the javelin and Bob Schul in the 5,000 run. Mills and Schul were gold medal winners in 1964.

Long Training Session

Most of the athletes in the trials spent from four to seven weeks at the 7,377-foot high Echo Summit training base, and according to Jordan, and Hilmer Lodge, chairman of the men's Olympic track and field team, they are better off for it.

"I think about 10 weeks at this altitude is good enough for a proper adjustment," said Jordan, "we'll have about two more weeks of altitude training before the games, so we should be all right on that score."

Lodge called the Yank performances here "simply outstanding."

"The only shame of it," he said, "was that so many men could make the team. A lot of fine boys didn't."

But that is the history of the trials—the separation of the good athletes from the poenial champions. And the U.S. certainly will be sending a flock of potential champs to Mexico City next month.

Confident Ellies Await '68 Opener At Home Field

ELLENVILLE — A confident Ellenville High Blue Devil football team awaits its 1968 opener against Jeffersonville High here Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

Coach Dave Frank is pleased with the progress of the team and feels it will win its share of games.

The left side of the line is anchored by three seniors, end Bruce Hornbeck, tackle John O'Mare and guard Gary Sinick.

Area Sportsmen Continue Drive

SAUGERTIES — Saugerties Area Sportsmen's Clubs meet tonight at the clubhouse of the Saugerties Club to continue its "Dump Javits" drive.

The committee has in its possession a large supply of "Dump Javits" bumper stickers which are available to all interested persons for a small donation. Revenues derived from the stickers will be used to finance the campaign.

Art Sperl of the Saugerties club and Frank Mauro of Glasco club were recently named co-chairmen of the Federated Sportsmen's Club's campaign against Javits. The Federation voted overwhelmingly in favor of supporting the Saugerties Area move to oust the senior New York (R) senator for his stand on gun legislation.

Hunter Safety Program Started

A course in firearms and hunter safety starts Friday at 7 p.m. at the New York State armory in Kingston, for all interested persons.

Sergeant First Class William J. Ferguson of Service Battery, 1st Battalion, 156th Artillery, and Robert J. Houghtaling, an armory maintenance employe, have again volunteered to conduct the program for any interested person over the age of 14 years who have not previously held a hunting license.

License requirements for all persons previously unlicensed now include completion of a course of instruction in firearms safety and a certificate from a designated instructor.

Instructors are designated by the New York State Department of Conservation and must be qualified in the handling of firearms.

Angotti Returns

BRANTFORD, Ont. (AP) — The Pittsburgh Penguins of the National Hockey League said Tuesday that center Lou Angotti, who left camp Monday after a mild rhubarb with Coach Red Sullivan, has returned.

Angotti met with Sullivan and General Manager Jack Riley behind closed doors. There was no comment after the meeting.

Fillies Capture NewYork Stakes

YONKERS, N.Y. (UPI)—A pair of 2-year-old fillies—Elena Barman and Edith Barman—won the Two-divisional New York-bred stakes sponsored by Yonkers Raceway Tuesday night before a crowd of 16,592.

It was Elena's second straight win and she now shows a spectacular 6-6-0 record in her maiden year. She paced the mile in 2:05 2-5 and returned $46.80.

In the second half of the feature, Edith Barman, driven by Ben Webster, took command at the three-quarter mark and swept to a 2 1-2 length victory over Ambush Adious. Her winning time was 2:07 2-5 and she paid $4.60.

Sweet Cere ($16.40) and Mae Flip ($4.20) formed a 7-1 daily double paying $30.20.

Drought of Acorns Taking Heavy Toll of the Squirrels

MAGGIE VALLEY, N.C. (UPI)—The delicate balance of nature has been upset in the southern Appalachian mountains and thousands of squirrels are dying daily in four states because of it.

Late spring frosts earlier in the year and an August drought drastically rediced the supply of acorns, the main staple food for squirrels at this time of year.

Tens of thousands of the bushy-tailed animals are roaming the mountains of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Tennessee in search of food.

Thousands are dying, many from starvation, others are killed when they leave their natural habitat in search of food and are struck by cars as they cross highways.

Frank Barick of Raleigh, chief of the game division of the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission, said, "The squirrels are desperately moving out of the mountains in search of food. Chances are the squirrel crop is going to be low next year because of mass famine."

Although it's the worst he's ever seen, Barick said Tuesday night that it was not a "catastrophic" situation.

"This happens every five or ten years," he said. "Some years, like this year, it's worse than others."

"However, squirrels are also prolific. Twenty to 30 per cent is sufficient to bring back a full population."

State Viet Death

WASHINGTON (AP) — Navy Hospitalman Thomas E. Welker of Darien Center, N.Y., in Genesee County, has been killed in action in the Vietnam war, the Defense Department reported Tuesday.

Welker was the son of Eugina Welker.

Seeks 50 Per Cent More Increase In SS Benefits

NEW YORK (UPI) —Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Wilbur Cohen called Tuesday for a 50 per cent increase in Social Security benefits and the establishment of a $100 minimum for Social Security recipients.

Cohen, in a speech to senior citizens at the Commodore Hotel, also suggested that Social Security be extended to cover disabled persons under 65 years of age and the cost of prescription drugs for the elderly.

Addressing the Golden Ring Council of Senior Citizens, Cohen urged that state welfare systems as they apply to the elderly be discarded in favor of a federal system "that treats everyone equitably."

The cabinet member said there are 2 million aged on welfare in states having varying levels of payments and that the only way to be fair to all would be a federal system of equal payments.

Moscow Denies Report From London On Red Space Probe of the Moon

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet government spokesman today denied a British report that a Soviet space probe has passed near the moon and is believed on its way back to the earth.

The spokesman said the report from Sir Bernard Lovell, director of Britain's Jodrell Bank Observatory, was "a canard—the entire report does not correspond to reality."

No Data on Flight

The spokesman said he had no information on the flight of the Zond 5 unmanned spacecraft, which a Soviet announcement Sunday said had been launched into space from a parking orbit around the earth. The spacecraft's mission was not specified then, and there has been no further announcement about it.

Lovell, one of Britain's leading space scientists, said earlier that Jodrell Bank's big radio telescope picked up signals from Zond 5 in 40-minute bursts throughout the night and the rocket passed within about 1,000 miles of the moon at 5:55 a.m., or 12:55 a.m. EDT.

Lovell said the spacecraft did not go around the moon, but passed on one side of it, and then the signal strength increased many times as it turned toward earth. He predicted that the Russians would try to recover it on Friday, which would be another space first for the Russians and an important step toward landing a man on the moon.

"Once they have achieved this," said the Briton, "we can anticipate that they will put a man in one, send it near the moon, then bring it back without landing on the moon."

This may be tried within months, Lovell said, although the Russians may want to try more exercises on the critical maneuver of hitting just the right angle needed for re-entry of a moon craft.

Felt Large Enough

Lovell said he believed Zond 5 was itself large enough to carry a man to the moon and back.

The first Zond spacecraft took pictures of the back side of the moon three years ago, and other Zond craft since have failed in attempts to reach Venus and Mars.

Three U.S. astronauts are scheduled to take an Apollo spacecraft into prolonged earth orbit Oct. 11 to qualify it for later moon missions. If their planned 11-day mission is successful, it will clear the way for a second manned mission scheduled in mid-December which may carry an Apollo crew around the moon.

Drought of Acorns Taking Heavy Toll of the Squirrels

MAGGIE VALLEY, N.C. (UPI)—The delicate balance of nature has been upset in the southern Appalachian mountains and thousands of squirrels are dying daily in four states because of it.

Late spring frosts earlier in the year and an August drought drastically rediced the supply of acorns, the main staple food for squirrels at this time of year.

Tens of thousands of the bushy-tailed animals are roaming the mountains of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Tennessee in search of food.

Thousands are dying, many from starvation, others are killed when they leave their natural habitat in search of food and are struck by cars as they cross highways.

Frank Barick of Raleigh, chief of the game division of the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission, said, "The squirrels are desperately moving out of the mountains in search of food. Chances are the squirrel crop is going to be low next year because of mass famine."

Although it's the worst he's ever seen, Barick said Tuesday night that it was not a "catastrophic" situation.

"This happens every five or ten years," he said. "Some years, like this year, it's worse than others."

"However, squirrels are also prolific. Twenty to 30 per cent is sufficient to bring back a full population."

State Viet Death

WASHINGTON (AP) — Navy Hospitalman Thomas E. Welker of Darien Center, N.Y., in Genesee County, has been killed in action in the Vietnam war, the Defense Department reported Tuesday.

Welker was the son of Eugina Welker.

Seeks 50 Per Cent More Increase In SS Benefits

NEW YORK (UPI) —Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Wilbur Cohen called Tuesday for a 50 per cent increase in Social Security benefits and the establishment of a $100 minimum for Social Security recipients.

Cohen, in a speech to senior citizens at the Commodore Hotel, also suggested that Social Security be extended to cover disabled persons under 65 years of age and the cost of prescription drugs for the elderly.

Addressing the Golden Ring Council of Senior Citizens, Cohen urged that state welfare systems as they apply to the elderly be discarded in favor of a federal system "that treats everyone equitably."

The cabinet member said there are 2 million aged on welfare in states having varying levels of payments and that the only way to be fair to all would be a federal system of equal payments.

Moscow Denies Report From London On Red Space Probe of the Moon

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet government spokesman today denied a British report that a Soviet space probe has passed near the moon and is believed on its way back to the earth.

The spokesman said the report from Sir Bernard Lovell, director of Britain's Jodrell Bank Observatory, was "a canard—the entire report does not correspond to reality."

No Data on Flight

The spokesman said he had no information on the flight of the Zond 5 unmanned spacecraft, which a Soviet announcement Sunday said had been launched into space from a parking orbit around the earth. The spacecraft's mission was not specified then, and there has been no further announcement about it.

Lovell, one of Britain's leading space scientists, said earlier that Jodrell Bank's big radio telescope picked up signals from Zond 5 in 40-minute bursts throughout the night and the rocket passed within about 1,000 miles of the moon at 5:55 a.m., or 12:55 a.m. EDT.

Lovell said the spacecraft did not go around the moon, but passed on one side of it, and then the signal strength increased many times as it turned toward earth. He predicted that the Russians would try to recover it on Friday, which would be another space first for the Russians and an important step toward landing a man on the moon.

"Once they have achieved this," said the Briton, "we can anticipate that they will put a man in one, send it near the moon, then bring it back without landing on the moon."

This may be tried within months, Lovell said, although the Russians may want to try more exercises on the critical maneuver of hitting just the right angle needed for re-entry of a moon craft.

Felt Large Enough

Lovell said he believed Zond 5 was itself large enough to carry a man to the moon and back.

The first Zond spacecraft took pictures of the back side of the moon three years ago, and other Zond craft since have failed in attempts to reach Venus and Mars.

Three U.S. astronauts are scheduled to take an Apollo spacecraft into prolonged earth orbit Oct. 11 to qualify it for later moon missions. If their planned 11-day mission is successful, it will clear the way for a second manned mission scheduled in mid-December which may carry an Apollo crew around the moon.

Dear Abby

Should Trust Daughter

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

[© 1968 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: My 16-year-old daughter is intelligent, pretty, and has a beautiful figure. This combination has the boys in her set spinning like tops.

So far we have had no reason to worry about her conduct, but there are thousands of parents who "thought" their daughters could be trusted, only to learn that all it takes is the "right" boy, the right time and the right place, and anything can happen.

For my own peace of mind, I want my daughter to start taking the pill. But when she asks "what for," what should I say?

Our daughter has high morals and is thoroughly informed about the facts of life, but my husband fears that if she has the security of the pill she might be tempted to relax her morals when the "right" boy comes along.

I am speaking from experience, which is probably why I worry so much. In my case I was lucky. I didn't get pregnant. I DID marry the boy, and I'm happy.

What should I do? Hope our daughter is lucky too? Or should I insist on one hundred per cent protection? My sister-in-law who has two teen-aged daughters says, "Wait until you think she really needs them, then insist." But I'm afraid by that time it might be too late. Forgive me for not signing my name.

MODERN MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Yours is a good question, and one which I have been asked often. For a mother to give a 16-year-old daughter the pill for her own (the mother's) "peace of mind," implies first, lack of confidence in her daughter's dependability and moral judgment, and second, a surrender of her own control as a parent. It's unfair to the girl, for in effect you are saying, "I hope I can trust you, but just in case I can't, you may as well be safe." This type of temptation is very difficult for a normal 16-year-old to resist.

DEAR ABBY: I recently invited a life-long friend and her husband to a dinner party. I knew her little 4-year-old grandson was staying with her while his parents were vacationing, but I purposely did not mention the child.

Then she told me that she was bringing her grandson! Now, Abby, this woman is a millionairesss, and she could afford to hire a dozen baby-sitters.

I said it was going to be an "adult" party, and I emphasized "ADULT" so she would get the hint, but she ignored it. Well, she brought the boy, which didn't help my dinner party any. In fact, it ruined it. I don't dislike children, Abby. I have grandchildren of my own, but I don't allow them to attend my dinner parties.

What would you have done in a case ike this?

FURIOUS WITH HER

DEAR FURIOUS: I probably would have done just as you did — once. But not twice. You are really "furious" with yourself because you lacked the courage to ask your life-long friend to please leave her grandson at home.

DEAR ABBY: We have been married for 15 years and have three children, 9, 11, and 14. We're just average folks, but we are a lot happier than most, and I'll tell you why.

When we were first married, my husband and I made a pact that if we had children we wouldn't let them run our lives. We'd try to do things as a family, but our whole lives wouldn't center around the kids.

Over the years they have learned the little things that annoy Dad, such as toys in the driveway, fighting, and yelling. They know that messy rooms and tracking dirt in the house irritates Mom, so they're careful about that.

And oh, yes, there is nothing in our household that is considered strictly man's work, or woman's work. Dad can change a diaper, do dishes, laundry, and cook. And I've learned to be a housepainter, carpenter, cement layer, and gardener.

I won't say we've never had our squabbles, but we've never gone to bed mad.

If more couples would concentrate on trying to please each other, like they did when their love was new, there would be fewer divorces.

Sincerely,
FOR BETTER OR WORSE

The late Louis Watson was unique among bridge experts in that he liked to laugh at his own mistakes. Other experts groan over them or ignore them.

South's jump to five clubs was a specialized bid showing support for the last bid suit and a singleton club. The call was somewhat optimistic Two small trumps do not constitute much support but South had just learned the new gadget and wanted to use it.

There was nothing bashful about North's jump to six hearts either. He had already opened the bidding and jumped but as North pointed out later on, the slam wasn't too unreasonable. Just shift the East and West hands around and South would have taken all tricks.

West asked the meaning of the five club bid and decided to open a diamond instead of the more normal king of clubs. Dummy's 10 lost to East's king and South dropped the queen.

East thought awhile and returned the 10 of clubs. South took his ace, entered dummy with the ace of spades, led a trump and finessed his 10.

Most players would have pounced with the king but West was greedy. He wasn't going to lose that trump trick in any event and he was after something worthwhile. He ducked quietly.

South returned to dummy by overtaking his jack of diamonds with the ace and led a second trump. West produced the king and, in Watson's words, "The hand collapsed."

Back came a low club to East's eight. A third diamond was ruffed by West's last trump and another club put declarer four down.

Lombardi Special Good..But

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—If you were doing a television documentary about cars, would you let an automobile company produce it?

If you were doing a documentary about doctors, would you let a medical association produce it?

In short, would you be satisfied with inevitable press agentry when you also have the option of a no-conflict news approach that tells the truth in full, and without adornment?

All right, let's get specific.

This past Sunday night, CBS-TV presented a one-hour broadcast about professional football's most successful coach, Vince Lombardi, now general manager of the Green Bay Packers.

To put on this program, CBS-TV pre-empted the Ed Sullivan Show, which has a key time slot. The promotion for the documentary was considerable. And if viewers knew that it actually was geared to help kick off CBS-TV's coverage of the National Football League season—well, that was justifiable, too.

I confess I really looked forward to the hour because Lombardi is a fascinating man, and he has helped make pro football the fantastically successful television attraction it is.

Well, it was a mildly interesting hour. But it should have been terrific. And the reason it failed to deliver big was simply astounding:

The broadcast—a one-dimensional tribute rather than a genuine study of a rare man—was produced by the National Football League. And it was straight-out press agentry for a man who doesn't need it.

We know, of course, that CBS-TV's association with the league was certainly the prime factor in this hour. But surely somebody along the way must have known that the producing credits at the end of the broadcast were going to cause a lot of raised eyebrows.

It was no surprise, of course, that the hour was going to help the league and the sport. And that's okay. But the impact would have been much more genuine—and the program more substantial—if the study of Mr. Lombardi had been done by a different production organization. Journalism and hero-worship don't mix.

All right, let's get specific.

This past Sunday night, CBS-TV presented a one-hour broadcast about professional football's most successful coach, Vince Lombardi, now general manager of the Green Bay Packers.

To put on this program, CBS-TV pre-empted the Ed Sullivan Show, which has a key time slot. The promotion for the documentary was considerable. And if viewers knew that it actually was geared to help kick off CBS-TV's coverage of the National Football League season—well, that was justifiable, too.

I confess I really looked forward to the hour because Lombardi is a fascinating man, and he has helped make pro football the fantastically successful television attraction it is.

Well, it was a mildly interesting hour. But it should have been terrific. And the reason it failed to deliver big was simply astounding:

The broadcast—a one-dimensional tribute rather than a genuine study of a rare man—was produced by the National Football League. And it was straight-out press agentry for a man who doesn't need it.

We know, of course, that CBS-TV's association with the league was certainly the prime factor in this hour. But surely somebody along the way must have known that the producing credits at the end of the broadcast were going to cause a lot of raised eyebrows.

It was no surprise, of course, that the hour was going to help the league and the sport. And that's okay. But the impact would have been much more genuine—and the program more substantial—if the study of Mr. Lombardi had been done by a different production organization. Journalism and hero-worship don't mix.

Senate Readies Debate on Fortas

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — After months of skirmishing, debate will begin in the Senate next week that will end in either confirmation of a new chief justice or bitter defeat for President Johnson and his nominee.

The stage was set Tuesday when the Senate Judiciary Committee voted 11-6 to recommend acceptance of the nomination of Ab Fortas to the floor.

Future Is Clouded

Despite a delay of more than two months, the favorable vote had been expected. But the future, holding the certainty of harsh debate and the probability of a filibuster, is clouded.

Majority leader Mike Mansfield said he plans to bring the nomination up the first of next week. He said the first attempt to limit debate probably will be made afer four days.

The Republican senators spearheading opposition to the appointment charged the White House was bringing great pressure to bear in behalf of Fortas.

Just this week top Johnson aides refused to testify before the Senate Judiciary Committee, which for the first time personally questioned a nominee for chief justice.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., leader of the opposition, said after the committee approval that his forces were steadily gaining strength. He stopped short, however, of claiming enough votes at this time to defeat the nomination on a simple majority vote.

Long Debate Likely

"We are prepared and ready to go," Griffin said when asked if opponents were organized to carry on a filibuster.

"There is so much opposition and so many senators want to talk that the debate is bound to go on for some time," said Griffin.

Mansfield said in an interview that it will be difficult to cut off a filibuster. Under the rules, a two-thirds majority of senators voing is required to put debate-limiting rule into effect.

Mansfield said if the first attempt to limit debate fails, the size of the vote will determine whether he will try a second time to end the discussion.

Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, although supporting confirmation, has predicted there will be at least 50 votes against cloture, or far more than needed to keep a filibuster going.

Won't Press for Cloture

He indicated in talking with newsmen Tuesday that he would not press his GOP colleagues to vote for cloture.

Warren has retired contingent on confirmation of a successor.

Johnson named another old friend, Federal Judge Homer Thornberry of Texas, to fill the vacancy that would be created by Fortas's elevation from associate justice to chief justice.

The committee, however, has shelved the Thornberry nomination until the Senate either confirms or rejects Fortas.

The opposition has accused Johnson of cronyism in naming old friends to the court and also contends he has no right in the waning days of his administration to make such important and lasting appointments.

Opponents also have claimed that Fortas violated the concept of separation of powers by advising Johnson while sitting on the court and that he has contributed to an increase in pornography by some of the rulings he has participated in.

GENERAL INJURED — Marine Brig. Gen. William C. Chip, assistant commander 3rd Marine Division, was reported to have suffered serious injuries when his helicopter crashed Tuesday. Gen. Chip was directing troops in battle near the DMZ in Vietnam. Chip, 49, sustained a fractured spine and lacerations. He was reported in satisfactory condition aboard the U. S. Hospital Ship Sanctuary. Salazar Condition Still Grave

By DAVID MAZZARELLA

LISBON (AP) — Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar rallied slightly during the night, though still in a coma and partially paralyzed, and an American specialist flew today to join the fight for his life.

Condition Improving

A communique shortly before midnight Tuesday said the condition of the 79-year-old dictator's heart and nervous system was improving. He suffered a stroke Monday as he was recuperating from head surgery on Sept. 7.

Dr. Bissaia Barreto, a longtime friend of Salazar, said on leaving Red Cross Hospital today: "We can think of recuperation again."

But the premier was understood to be still in grave danger.

Dr. Houston Merritt of New York was summoned after U.S. Ambassador William Tapley Bennett offered aid. Merritt is from the neurological institute of the Columbia University Medical Center.

President Americo Thomaz met for two hours Tuesday with the Council of State, made up of 15 prominent officials and citizens whose advice he must seek before naming a new premier.

No Statement

No statement was released afterward. Observers believed the length of the meeting indicated that the question of succession was far from settled.

Two men considered possible successors to Salazar—former Cabinet ministers Marcello Caetano and Joao Antunes Varela—attended the meeting as members of the council.

Caetano is simetimes mentioned as a possible short-term premier while Salazar is incapacitated or while support crystalizes for one man. Varela, who is younger, is considered by some observers a more likely candidate for the long-term succession.

No Clear Edge

But many men, military and civilian, have been mentioned, and no one appeared to have a clear edge at this stage.

There was no evidence of any pronounced national shock at the stroke suffered by the authoritarian leader who has ruled Portugal and its vast overseas territories for 36 years. But as word of his condition spread throughout the capital, people gathered in small knots in the doorways of shops and cafes to hear the hourly news broadcasts.

Many said they could not envision the country under another's leadership.
